MEMORIAL DAY.

All ex-sailors and ex-soldiers of the United States service in this vicinity are invited to meet in the Common Council room this Wednesday evening, at half-past seven o'clock, to organize for participation in the procession and observances of Memorial Day. PER ORDER.

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday, May 22d.

Robert Foster, Albert Chamberlain and George Peirce, all drunks, were each fined $3, costs $6.90; all gone to Brentwood.

A decent appearing man was brought up, charged with having said things not proper to say, to a lady, while under the influence of anger; the Court judged the charge sustained, and fined him $2, costs $6.90; but as he has never before figured in our Police Court reports we refrain from mentioning his name. He appealed, and gave bonds to prosecute the same; but afterward paid the fine and costs, probably considering that the cheapest way to settle the affair.

WRECKED IN PORT.

The steamer "Mystic" started from one of the north-end wharves with two coal-loaded gondolas in tow, Tuesday afternoon, when the strong flood tide swept the hindmost gondola across the bows of a large schooner lying at the head of Fernald's wharf, the heavy-loaded craft striking with such force that her broadside was crushed in. The unfortunate gondola immediately filled with water and turned bottom up, and now there is a coal mine at the bottom of the Piscataqua. The man steering the gondola had a narrow escape, but by climbing up the schooner's bow in double-quick time he escaped entanglement with the sinking wreck.

HANDS OFF.

The first private burglar alarm in this city has been put up by Mr. John F. Shillaber, connecting his gun and locksmith shop on Bow street with his residence. The machine works by electricity and is noiseless in the daytime, being shut off at the house before the store is opened; but after the connection is restored in the evening, when the store is closed, the opening of either door or window sets the electrical bell to clattering, and once started it won't stop; it is useless to throw boots and swear, or to shut the door or window the opening of which has induced the racket; the noisy machine can be stopped in only one way, and that is by going up to it and closing a stop which holds the clapper. And it would be of no use for an enterprising burglar to cut the wire between the house and store, for that act would break the electrical circuit and set off the alarm; and even if he should get through a window (by breaking out glass and sash) without giving the alarm, he would be almost certain to start the machine by touching some of the innocent looking objects in the store which he must not touch if he wishes to keep his nocturnal visit a secret from the proprietor at his home. A modification of this invention, which works on the principle of the hotel annunciator, is used as a door bell, and keeps up a loud but not disagreeable tinkling as long as the bell-pull is kept drawn out, and ceases the instant the handle is released. One of these electric bells has been put up on the door of Hon. Marcellus Eldredge's fine new mansion on Islington street. In connection with his burglar alarm, Mr. Shillaber has put in a Morse key and sounder at each end of his line, and telegraphs back and forth from house and store ad lib. This is the first private Morse telegraph line in the city.

While we are on the telegraph line we may as well give one or two other items, which may be of interest to our readers. After investigating Mr. Shillaber's arrangement for demoralizing burglars, we called in at the counting room of the Eldredge Brewing Company, and inspected the working of the telegraph between that office and the brewery. The instruments used on this line were made by the Howard Watch Company of Boston, the principal parts with which we have to do being an operating and reading dial at each end; the operating dial is surrounded with ivory keys—one for each letter of the alphabet and one for the "space" between words—and when the key marked with any letter is pressed the indicating needle points to that letter, the needle on the reading dial at the other end doing the same. In this way messages between the two points can be rapidly spelled out, the instruments leaving no record of the messages sent.

From the Eldredge Brewing Co's rooms we went to the office of Hon. Frank Jones. Here a House printing telegraph, as improved by Welch & Anders, of Boston, is in use. The machine appears to be a cross between a sewing machine and a piano; the keys, instead of being arranged in a circle around a dial, are in a line like those of a piano; and whenever the line is in use the operator must keep a Hall treadle going, the electricity employed being generated by magnets instead of chemical action. As each key is touched the corresponding letter is distinctly printed in "Roman" on an endless strip of paper, at each end of the line, and a duplicate of all messages sent is thus preserved, so that if a mistake occurs it is easy to trace it to its source. To show us how it worked the machine was put in motion, and the operator at the brewery notified—"Just started up for experiment, to show how telegraph works," and immediately the answer came back, "Well, start her up again, and give us some orders!" which demand was instantly obeyed. The saving in time and trouble effected by these private lines between the breweries and offices is very great.

MORE TELEGRAPH.

The Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Co., finding the public respond heartily to their endeavors to accommodate, will soon establish a number of supplementary stations in this vicinity, viz.: permanent stations—at the Rockingham House and the Eldredge Brewing Co's office; for the summer season—at Steamboat Wharf, near foot of Deer street, and the Farragut House, Rye Beach; for the winter, to accommodate the fisheries—at C. E. Walker & Co's, Water street. With the exception of the Eldredge Brewing Co's office, all these stations will be open for the public, and each will be in charge of a trained operator. The business over this company's wires has increased to such an extent since the rates were reduced that the New York office, which it was supposed would be big enough for years to come, is already found too small to accommodate the traffic; there are two through wires from New York to Portland, and construction parties are extending the line to St. John, N. B. The two wires between Boston and Portland are found insufficient for the business offering, and one of the wires is to be duplexed immediately.

MASONIC.

G. M. John J. Bell of Exeter, G. L. Daniel W. Edgerly of Farmington, D. D. Chas. A. Tufts of Dover, and D. L. Russell B. Wentworth of Rochester, will officially visit St. Andrews Lodge on Thursday evening, May 24th. Work on M. M. degree.

JOTTINGS.

A young lady friend of ours has lost a fine red silk handkerchief, all hemstitched, and if any one finds it and restores it to its owner we shall feel under obligations.

Hon. T. E. O. Marvin, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is to form a Society of a similar character in Dover to-night. Mr. Charles W. Gardner will deliver a lecture appropriate to the occasion, the subject of which will be "The rights of animals."

Harry Bloodgood's minstrel, variety and burlesque combination are to give one of their select entertainments at Franklin Hall to-morrow evening. The performances given by this troupe in other towns and cities this season have received very flattering notices from the press, and we feel safe in assuring our citizens that they may expect and will see a good show to-morrow evening. Reserved seat tickets may be procured at Stavers' Bazaar, at fifty cents each.

The thirty-sixth annual report of the Directors of the Concord Railroad for the past year shows the total gross earnings to have been $871,528.08, and the total expenditure $576,766.75, leaving a balance of $294,761.33 of receipts over expenses. From this have been paid two dividends of five per cent. each, amounting to $150,000.

The property on North road known as "Walker's field," with the house and barn on the same, were sold at auction by Messrs. Morse & Ilsley on Saturday, to Mr. Nathan Jones, for $1750.

News and Notes.

During Whitmonday amusements at Hull, Eng., a balloon about to ascend was blown against a gas jet and exploded. Eighty-six spectators were injured. Sixty proceeded to their homes after having their wounds dressed. Six of the cases are dangerous.

E. M. Gates and Fannie Landers were lately married at the jail door in Liberty, Mo. Gates has been imprisoned for about a year for obtaining money under false pretences. He stood just inside of the jail and she on the outside, the twain joining hands in the doorway. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bride returned to her home and the groom went back to his cell.

A Havana letter of the 16th says that the Customs Collector of Camacho is in prison for embezzling $700,000, gold, of the Government revenues. Another defeat of the Spaniards is reported near Puerto Principe, in which they lost 18 officers killed and 750 men killed, wounded and prisoners.

The Boston case ball club beat the Louisvilles, 5 to 0, Monday; and the Hartfords beat the Indianapolis club, 1 to 0.

At a recent meeting of Liberals in a Scotch town, Rev. David Macræ mildly remarked that "the attempt to go to war on behalf of Turkey was a diabolical one. There seemed to be parties who, for selfish ends, would maintain the integrity of hell and subsidize the devil."

Thirty persons were drowned by the wreck of a vessel plying between Adelaide, Australia, and the Albany Isles.

Among opinions handed down by the Supreme Court of New York, General Term, was one affirming the order granting an additional allowance to the defendant in the suit of Francis D. Moulton vs. Henry Ward Beecher, for malicious prosecution growing out of the late unpleasantness in Plymouth Church. That suit has been dropped on the court's refusal of a change of venue to some northern county.

B. F. Flanders, Assistant U. S. Treasurer in New Orleans, is charged by the N. Y. Sun with stealing $300,000 belonging to the government, through crookedness in cotton transactions soon after the close of the war.

New Hampshire Items.

Daniel Webster Osgood, late of North Andover, Mass., died in Raymond, May 16, aged 35 years, 3 months 6 days. He went from Raymond with the Fifth New Hampshire Regiment as a musician in the late war. For some years past he was leader of the band in Lawrence, Mass. His disease was consumption.

The Spring Conferences of the New Hampshire Unitarian Association assembled at Peterboro, Monday afternoon, Gov. P. C. Cheney in the chair. Delegations from Concord, Manchester, Dover, Nashua, Keene and Wilton were present. In the evening, Rev. R. L. Collyer of Boston addressed a full house.

Henry Plaisted has committed suicide near Ashland. Evidence against him in regard to firing his father-in-law's, J. B. Huckins, buildings, burned on Thursday night, was very strong. That Sheriff Brown, who worked the case, followed him so close was undoubtedly the cause.

The trial of Alvin H. Johnson, for the murder of his wife at Bristol, commenced at Plymouth on Monday. It will be remembered that about the first of July last the body of a woman was found in the Pemigewasset River about a mile below Bristol, but in such a state of decomposition as to render her identification extremely difficult. All clothing, with the exception of shoes and stockings and a bit of ribbon about the neck, had been removed, and she had been literally scalped to avoid identification. As Mrs. Johnson had been missing several months and her husband's accounts of her whereabouts were conflicting, suspicions were aroused that the body might be hers, which were speedily confirmed, and led to the arrest of her husband. Johnson is twenty-six years of age, was born in Campton, and lived there until he was twelve years old, since which time he has led a roving life, seldom finding employment in any place long at a time. Intellectually he is inferior to men in general, although superior to his wife, who was but little more than an idiot, and whose reputation was even more unsavory than his.

J. H. Bowers and S. B. Tyler, two old and highly respected citizens of Nashua, died last Saturday evening, aged 65 and 78 years respectively.

For twenty-six years the Winnipesaukee Lake Cotton and Woollen Manufacturing Company have successfully denied the right to run logs through their dam at Lake Village, at the outlet of Lake Winnipesaukee. G. Cook & Co., sash and blind manufacturers of Laconia, recently purchased one hundred and sixty thousand feet of lumber lying in the water above the dam. About three o'clock Sunday morning a force of twenty men under the direction of Cook & Co., commenced opening the dam for the passage of the logs. Employes of the Lake Company resisted by inserting fresh planks for those removed, but these quickly disappeared under the axes of the Cook party. Logs were kept running through all day, and the dam was replaced at 8 o'clock in the evening. Large, excited crowds witnessed these proceedings. Cook & Co. openly hold themselves responsible. Public sentiment appears largely in their favor.

A Japanese Belle.

Describing the toilet preparations of a Japanese damsel, a correspondent says that that it is a matter of no light consideration, and to be in good time for the feast she must be up and dressing long before the sun rises from behind Fuji, the great sacred mountain. The long, coarse tresses of black hair must be washed, combed and greased till the head shines like a knob of polished black marble. The cheeks must be rouged to the proper tint, the throat, neck and bosom powered—carefully leaving, however, on the neck three lines of the brown skin of the owner, in accordance with the rules of Japanese cosmetic art. Then the eyebrows must be carefully rounded and touched with black, the lips reddened with cherry paste, with a patch of gilding in the centre. When all this has been done, and she gets together a proper allowance of pocket-handkerchief paper, her tobacco pouch, pipe and fan, she sallies forth.

—A Missouri wedding party, on a bridal tour last week, consisted of the groom, aged 85 years, the bride, aged 76, and a son of the former, aged 61.

—Experiments have recently been successfully made in Italy on a method of burning petroleum under steam-boilers, which consists simply in pouring the oil over a thin layer of asbestos. The petroleum burns with intense heat, while the asbestos, being incombustible, is not affected, but serves as a means of retaining the oil and acting as a wick. During the experiment sheets of paper placed beneath the furnace were not injured, although the heat from the oil above was most intense.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the inspiriting climate of New England.
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

LANGDON PARK
PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any persons can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SHAKE, Keeper, at No. 3 Mt. Vernon St.
Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.
Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.
The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements now in hand in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 30, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water or houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own ers or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind upon the stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. For any such offence or fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them in the city or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine or privy, over either or the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing all irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

'Squire Sedam.

In Hamilton county, Ohio, they are trying to break the will of the late Squire Sedam. The contestants say he was crazy, and have undertaken to prove it by showing that he administered justice instead of law.

The office which the Squire held was in a certain sense hereditary. He was elected nine or ten times, and the term of office was for three years. His father, Col. Sedam, had been a magistrate before him. When his father died, he succeeded him. The office had been in his family from 1800. To be exact, his father was first commissioned in 1795.

It was shown that where one party brought a case, if he could see the other party before the trial came off, the Squire would try and have a compromise arranged. He would even go and see the other party and try and have the matter settled so as not 'have this quarrel between neighbors. Once a man came to institute a suit before him. It was winter, and quite cold. The Squire had not got out of bed. He sent word to the suitor to sit down on porch until he had got up. The Squire rose and dressed himself and went to town, leaving the man sitting on the porch in the cold. There was nothing heard more of that suit. He sometimes sent men to jail, and, after keeping them there a couple of hours, let them go. He was also known to banish men to Kentucky. A leaf from Squire Sedam's docket was produced, containing the entries in a case in which a party was sued by Snead, Collard & Hughes, bankers. The following was the judgment in the case:

1. Both attorneys are responsible for all costs.

2. Any person putting his money in such a bank, ought to lose it.

3. The claim is rather unsound and fishy like.

4. Four per cent per month is unconstitutional in Storrs Township.

5. No monopoly of that kind can recover from the godly citizens of Storrs Township.

6. Both parties are required to come into court with clean hands.

7. A man who will not pay his own debts shall not recover off his neighbors.

8. Notice of appeal is considered contempt of court.

He generally fixed his trials for Saturday afternoon, and in pleasant weather he would hold them out in his orchard. He had a long bench under the apple trees. He would open court, and, if it were in watermelon times, he would have melons to eat. If a particular friend were present, he would have crackers and cheese. While he was calling his cases, he would send the parties out behind the smoke-house to settle them if they could, saying, "If you come back here, you will get in chancery and there will be no chance for you." If the parties could not settle, he would make a compromise of their case, and when he got through, he would order them to pay the constable a dollar. He very seldom gave litigants what they claimed, but he was never known to charge costs. He had even been known to go out of his township and not charge fees for the service.

The Squire had very vivid descriptive powers. He was an admirable talker when he chose. He could make fun out of almost anything, and very frequently used this means to reconcile the parties or shame them out of court. When Judge Cox brought suit to recover a fee, the Squire asked him how long he had known the defendant. Judge Cox said ten or twelve years. "And didn't you know that he was a poor, trifling cuss, and wouldn't pay you?" Judge Cox admitted that he knew all that, but thought he could get his fees. The Squire said he wouldn't encourage any such proceeding and gave judgment for the defendant. "You ought to have got your money out of him long ago," the court remarked to the discomfited suitor.

On another occasion he rendered a judgment against a steamboat captain for the wages of some of the crew. While the captain was gone up town to get a bond for appeal, the Squire broke open some of the pork barrels and gave the men the amounts of their judgments in pork. When the captain returned and offered his appeal bond the squire said "Appeal be hanged! The judgment is paid." The captain returned with his bondsmen.

It seems a pity that the last act of this peacemaker should become an occasion for litigation. It is enough to make the old man turn over in his grave. At last advices, the case was still on trial.

Potato Beetles.

We observe a number of remedies for the Colorado potato beetle advertised in the newspapers, most of which are particularly recommended because they are "soluble in water," Paris green being well known to be insoluble. All these remedies as a matter of course owe efficiency to their poisonous character, otherwise they would not kill the insects; and if soluble they would be absorbed by the pores of the potato plant and the tubers. Their solubility would therefore make them dangerous by poisoning the potatoes. Nothing has yet been found that will compare with Paris green for the certain destruction of this insect, and its entire safety is partly owing to its insolubility and its not being absorbed by the plant. Another point of safety is the iron contained in all soils, mostly about one hundred times as much as is required to neutralize the poison as soon as it is washed down. Still another is the very minute portion required, when compared with the entire bulk of the soil in which the plants grow. The fact that it has been used on tens of thousands of farms at the West for several years past, without the slightest trace of any injurious effect on the wholesome character of the potato, is a conclusive proof of its entire safety.—Country Gentleman.

The War.

The strongholds of Asia Minor were selected and fortified without any suspicion that modern progress would invent field artillery; so they are mostly all commanded by higher hills at short ranges. These out-lying hills have been in turn fortified by earthworks, but when these are taken, the fortress becomes untenable. In this way Ardahan fell an easy prey to the Russians. The Russian force which attacked Ardahan numbered 17,000. The garrison of Ardahan numbered 8000, besides which several thousand were encamped before the town. During the flight of the Turks the Russian cavalry inflicted a loss of 700. The London Times' Vienna correspondent says that the fall of Ardahan, besides securing to the Russians their position before Kars, opens out a new line of operations either against Kars or Erzeroum.

War between Greece and Turkey is announced as inevitable.

It is reported that an amicable understanding has been arrived at between Russia and England, both in substance and form as regards the Suez Canal, and in substance as regards Constantinople.

A Scoundrel's Suicide.

The death of Henry Plaisted in Ashland, on the 20th inst., has brought to light a chapter of crime which shows that he died none too soon. Plaisted, it appears, was married about a year ago to a Mrs. Hoyt of Holderness. Mrs. Hoyt had two little boys, children by her first marriage, and soon after the marriage Plaisted began to abuse his wife and the children in a most shameful manner. In March last Mrs. Plaisted stole away from his home, and soon afterward she obtained a divorce from her husband, the Court giving her an interest in the homestead and also the custody of their child. From the time of the divorce Plaisted exhibited a most malignant hatred of his wife and a desire for what he termed revenge for her leaving him. He publicly threatened her life, and said that he would be revenged upon any person who harbored her or her children. The two boys had been taken home by Mr. Huckins, their grandfather. Plaisted was especially exasperated because the Court had given Mrs. Plaisted an interest in the homestead, and he remarked that he would see how much she would get out of that. Four weeks ago in the dead of night Plaisted's buildings were burned to the ground. On the night of Thursday, the 17th inst., the farm buildings of Mr. Huckins and their contents were burned. The flames communicated so quickly to the house that the family barely escaped with their lives. The circumstances of the fire were such that there seemed no doubt but that it was the work of an incendiary, and the community were unanimous in the opinion that Plaisted had applied the torch. The suspected incendiary was missing after the Huckins fire, and a posse of men were distributed in various localities for the purpose of preventing the escape of Plaisted, who was believed to be concealed in the woods in the vicinity. Friday and Saturday passed and no trace of the fugitive criminal was discovered. Hunger and exhaustion, however, began at length to tell on him, and subsequent developments afford reason for believing that Plaisted at length began to realize that his escape was impossible, and so resolved that he would not be taken alive. For forty-eight hours he had fled from forest to swamp under cover of darkness, and not daring to ask a single person for food. Finally, driven to desperation, he shot himself through the heart. Sunday morning the body of Plaisted was found amidst the ruins of the house, his revolver being found by his side. He had fired only once and his death must have been instantaneous. The suicide was born in North Hampton, and was about 35 years old. He was a son of Cyrus P. Plaisted, a very respectable citizen of Ashland.

Another Rum Tragedy.

George A. Austin, twenty-seven years old, was beating his wife Mary E. Austin, who is forty years old, at Bow, on Tuesday night, May 22. Mrs. Austin ran for protection to the room of William J. Flanders, her son by a former marriage; and young Flanders, while his step-father was choking his mother seized a gun heavily loaded with pistol bullets, and fired, four bullets hitting Mrs. Austin in the arm and three entering her husband's shoulder. Mrs. Austin's arm has been amputated, and she will recover; the man will die. The boy, who is but seventeen years old, is under arrest. Austin was drunk at the time he was beating his wife.

News and Notes.

An organization of lawless men exists in several border counties of Missouri and Arkansas, who call themselves "Ghouls," but are more familiarly known as ku-klux. Their chief purposes are to run and protect small illicit distilleries in the mountains, and kill or whip, or otherwise punish all persons who oppose them and show any disposition to enforce the laws.

The disaster at the launching of the Saratoga, previously reported, was the first accident that has occurred in that shipyard since Roach has had control of it, and he has launched forty vessels without the slightest accident. John Fountain, who had entire charge of the launch, makes the following statement: "I found the ship ready to move, and called for all hands to get out from under before I commenced cutting loose. The men who were down by the after blocking evidently did not hear the order or did not obey, as they had fully five minutes to get out from the time the order was given until the ship started. Some of the men remained under, which is frequently the case, to attend to the forward blocking."

The prominent liquor dealers of Manchester closed their saloons on Tuesday, the 22d inst., in obedience to orders from the City Marshal. Most of them are storing their goods in places of safety to avoid seizure.

In addition to the war with Russia the Turks have begun a war on female vanity. Hamdi Pasha, Turkish Minister of Police, has issued a decree ordering all Turkish women to discard the European costume and return to the national one; thus obliging them to sacrifice on the altar of patriotism the furred robe, high-heeled boots, the Paris hat, and the chignon itself. But the Constantinople official does not appear to have succeeded, for a correspondent writing from that city states that the ladies make their appearance at the Valley of the Sweet Waters with boots the heels of which are higher than ever, and other articles of attire in accordance.

Four men and three women were drowned at Malognawatch, Cape Breton, on Sunday, by the upsetting of a boat while on their way to church.

John C. Simpson of Oregon county, Mo., has been convicted of illicit distilling. Simpson is fifty years old, was County Judge two years, and has been a Baptist minister twenty years.

The market value of the mines on the Comstock lode in January, 1875, was $271,059,200, and in May, 1877, it is $38,394,800. The authentic news of some journals would say the loss greatly exceeds 250 per centum.

Secretary of War McCrary and General Sherman, General Hancock, Generals Warren and Tower of the U. S. Engineers, and other officials, visited Boston on Monday and inspected the fortifications.

Levi Pyle, the colored boy who attempted to outrage the wife of his employer, and failing in that beat her until he thought she was dead and then threw her into a cistern of water, from which she was rescued alive, was taken from jail at Blandville, Ky., by an armed mob, and dragged to the woods by a rope around his neck. His dead body was afterward found hanging to a tree, riddled with bullets and with the clothing burned off, indicating that the miserable creature was tortured to death.

From recent developments it is established that ninety-seven years ago a revolutionary claim for $8,000 was brought against the government. The latter refused to pay it. It was pressed from time to time, until last winter, when it was taken before Congress, which body gave the claimant the right to go before the Court of Claims with his case. He won it, together with nine-seven years' interest. The government appealed the case to the Supreme Court, which affirmed the decision of the court below, and this spring the claim, which, with interest, amounted to about $51,000, was paid at the Treasury department. In this case procrastination was the thief of money as well as time.

We are informed that the Lowell Machine Shop has been obliged to to take the new cotton mill at Atlanta, Ga., in payment of its claim for furnishing the machinery. The enterprise has thus far proved a failure, the full capital stock not being forthcoming. Northern capital can alone make the enterprise a success. The South is poor. It needs capital; but to get it it must make a radical change in its treatment of Northern republicans. The republican party contains a large share of the capital and enterprise of the country. The Southern prejudice against republicans as such is foolish and pernicious. They are the progressive and expansive element of the country, and the South should welcome them as the West does, with open arms. The South cannot afford to ostracise them either socially or politically.—Nashua Telegraph.

Emmett Lyon, the notorious desperado who broke jail at Manchester and discharged a pistol at the turnkey's wife and escaped, has been apprehended at Springfield, Ill.

Ella Josephine Barrows, daughter of President Barrows of the Tilton Seminary, one of the presiding elders of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was married at Plymouth Tuesday morning to Prof. R. Shipley of Fort Edward, N. Y.

On Wednesday, May 23d, at the opening of the court at Plymouth, counsel for Johnson, the Bristol wife murderer, stated that he wished to withdraw his plea of not guilty, and plead guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. This was accepted, and Johnson was sentenced to ten years in State prison.

Political.

A friend of Cronin of Oregon, who had quite passed out of remembrance, comes forward to say: "He is not a foreigner, but a native of New York; he is a good-looking man, without facial peculiarity, except in the eyes of hostile reporters; he is a strictly temperate man, and one of the best lawyers in Oregon."

We hope it is not true, as reported, that Governor Stone of Mississippi proposes to allow the De Kalb atrocity to die out. The words attributed to him are that it will not do to "stir the thing up." It will never do to let such things rest. If the Governments of the Southern States can fulfill the promises made in their behalf and repress disorders, punish crime and execute the laws, we look to see them do it and prove that "home rule" means the protection of life and the rights of citizens. If they cannot, let them acknowledge it, and admit that home rule means brutal outrage and murder unpunished. Nothing but vigorous and determined action on Governor Stone's part will prevent a wide-spread and well-founded distrust of the power and disposition of local authorities in the Southern States to punish such crimes, when democratic politicians are concerned in them.—Boston Globe.

The Petersburg (Va.) Index-Appeal intimates that Jeff. Davis' memoirs of the Confederate Government will be likely to make a lively rumpus among the ex-rebel leaders, by revealing the cause of several mysterious misunderstandings between high officials of the Confederate Government while the war continued, and exposing many mistakes by which "the cause" suffered.

The trial of the democratic Sheriff Wallace of Cincinnati, convicted of conniving at the escape of repeaters, ended on Saturday with his sentence, a fine of $500.

The St. Louis Times, a democratic paper, speaking of the butchery of the Chisolm family, says: "The plain truth is that not only the State of Mississippi, but the democracy of the Union, is on trial in this matter." And further: "That State and that party cannot afford to lie under the imputation of having aided or permitted those outrages, or of having suffered them to go unavenged."

Ex-Gov. Chamberlain retires with dignity from the office to which the people elected him, but in which he could not be sustained except by the forces of the federal government. He declines the place of Solicitor of the Treasury. The offer and the declination were equally creditable. The President manifested his unabated confidence in the Governor, and the Governor declines to accept anything that might be construed into a compensation for the loss of his position at home, which he has filled with credit and honor, and from which he is driven by revolutionary violence.—Providence Journal.

The Krupp Gun.

The name of Krupp is more frequently heard in connection with discussions of war in the East than the names of either the Turkish or Russian commanders, and the engine of war to which his name has been given bears a conspicuously important part in the list of factors to be estimated. But the Krupp gun that is employed in Turkish service is a very different implement from the huge specimen that gave Americans their idea of this species of war engine, at Philadelphia last summer. These guns are made of cast steel, and pure wrought iron, melted in crucibles and then run into large ingots, which are worked under powerful steel hammers. The breech block, in loading, is draw n out far enough to allow the charge and projectile to pass through a hole in its end; an exterior lever working on a hinge starts the block, which, being guided by power grooves, can be readily moved in or out. The larger calibres are from six to fourteen inches. The heaviest Krupp guns used at the siege of Paris were 6-inch, weighing about 6000 pounds, and firing fifty-five to sixty-pound projectiles, and these were opposed to the heaviest French naval guns. The largest Krupp guns weigh about 112,000 pounds, so the range of manufacture must be evident. Turkey, Roumania and Servia were among the first to follow the example of Prussia in the use of the Krupp gun, and Turkey is now well supplied with field artillery of this character.

DR. QUAIN'S

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 8th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been slowy since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardships of the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I sent him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been a free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MTHOR. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

FIRE-WORKS LEGISLATION.

We suppose our city authorities have received, in common with those of other cities, the circular letter from the office of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, asking that the manufacture, sale or discharge of fire-crackers or fire-works be forbidden on the approaching Fourth of July. The Fire Underwriters send along with their circular the draft of a law such as they would like to see passed, and a formidable array of statistics, showing that the ruin caused by the fire-cracker has been something prodigious. According to their statement, since 1865 the total loss by fires resulting from the fire-crackers has been $20,000,000. The Fourth last year was an exceptionally fortunate one, but yet $244,000 worth of property was destroyed. It is estimated that for every dollar's worth of fire-crackers imported into this country there has been $100 loss by fire. We do not suppose our city government can bring itself to prohibit so sweepingly as the Fire Underwriters would have it; but it should consider the question carefully, and make whatever regulations are practicable. The following form of ordinance is recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters for adoption by cities and towns in the United States:

"No person shall cast, throw or fire any squib, rocket, cracker, torpedo, grenade, or other combustible fireworks or explosive preparation, within the city; and every person, for every such offense shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five dollars.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to sell or offer for sale within the limits of the city, any crackers, squibs, rockets, or other combustible fireworks; provided however, that this section shall not apply to the sale of any such article when sold in the original package as imported, and every offender against any of the provisions of this section shall pay for each and every offense two dollars.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to manufacture, within the limits of the city, any crackers, squibs, rockets, or any combustible fireworks, and every offender against the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars for each and every offense."

A LIBERAL "SUBSCRIBER."

If there is a possible chance to play a mischievous trick anywhere in the world, the college student will discover the chance and play the trick. At Dartmouth the favorite pastime is to cut up pranks with the ribs and trucks of old Evans, the murderer; but a Rochester (N. Y.) "student" recently studied out a new style of joke, which had the especial merit of making life a burden to one of the Professors and also victimized in a small way nearly every publisher of a daily paper in the country. The New York Tribune thus describes this latest invention of that demon, the college student: "A naughty student of Rochester University has made Professor O. H. Robinson very unhappy. The publishers of thirty or forty newspapers received a postal card with this message: 'Please send daily for one year. Will remit soon. Address Professor O. H. Robinson, Rochester University.' The Professor was somewhat alarmed when he found these newspapers swelling his mail every morning, and still he wonder grew when bills for the year's subscription were presented." We may remark, by the way of parenthesis, that Prof. Robinson received the CHRONICLE for a week or so, no doubt to his utter astonishment. And the Tribune greatly underrates the number of papers for which the Professor involuntarily subscribed, for the pranks of a student took the Newspaper Directory and sent one of his "favors" to nearly every daily paper in the country. We know where that student will go to, some time in the future.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

There have recently been made additions to the material resources of the Fire Department, which will render that efficient department still more serviceable than ever. Two thousand feet of new hose has been procured, made by the same firm (Eastman & Co., of Concord,) that manufactured the excellent hose procured last year, the two sets being fitted with nickel-plated couplings.

On Wednesday there arrived a new two-wheeled hose carriage, built by Joseph T. Ryan of South Boston; it is fitted with all the modern improvements, and will carry 1,000 feet of hose and six men. In case of fire the hose company will lay one line of hose while the hosemen attached to the first steamer on the ground are laying another, so that as soon as steam is up two streams of water instead of one can be thrown; and should a fire occur in the outskirts of the city, where a long line of hose is necessary, the new hose carriage and its hose and crew will be of especial value. The four-wheeled hose-carriages are done away with in large cities, the two-wheeled ones being so much more easy to handle. The new carriage cost $750, and is stationed at the Hanover street engine house.

A new supply-wagon has also been procured, to carry coal for the steamers when at work, tubs for fresh water for the boilers, buckets, and all other gear needed around the engines when in actual use. This wagon is at present located under the Court House.

Chief Engineer Marston has had a new attachment made to the suction of Dearborn Steamer, No. 1, which obviates the necessity of handling the suction hose at every fire; the machine was recently tried with the new attachment, steam sufficient to work with was raised in seven minutes, and the trial was entirely satisfactory in every respect.

Sagamore Steamer, No. 2, will be sent to Portland some time this week to receive a new boiler, have her pump bored out, and be put in thorough repair by the company that built her.

The city can congratulate itself in having a Fire Department of which each member, from "the Chief" down, is earnestly interested in the department's attainment to the highest possible standard of efficiency; and the Fire Department Committee of the City Councils, and the entire City Government, display a praiseworthy readiness to give every practicable encouragement and assistance to the Department.

JOTTINGS.

Harry Bloodgood's minstrel and combination troupe appear at Franklin Hall this evening. Reserved seat tickets fifty cents each. This company appeared in Lawrence, Mass., a few evenings ago, and on the following day the American gave them the following notice: "City hall was well filled last night to witness the entertainment by the Bloodgood troupe, and the applause was long and loud. Bloodgood has a capital show and excelled all his former efforts. Especially good were the Daly Brothers, clog dancers and Negro and Irish character sketch artists. The audience exhausted itself in recalling them, and they were exhausted in responding. Clayton and Weston gave performances on the full stock of a music store, with several musical instruments of their own invention in addition; and Bloodgood's 'Ole Uncle Rufe' and his lecture on everything mixed, carried the audience into convulsions of laughter."

Mr. N. M. Perkins, formerly of this city and well known as a member of the late Naval Band, has purchased the "Auburn cigar and tobacco store" and business at Lewiston, Me., and settled down there.

The five-mile race for $250 a side, $100 forfeit, between Col. Hilton's "Julius Cæsar" and Mr. Locke's "Kenoza Boy," which was to have taken place on the Dover race course on Saturday, May 26th, is "off" Mr. Locke having withdrawn his horse and paid the forfeit.

The Memorial committee have secured the banquet room in Franklin Block for the preparation of evergreens and flowers, where they request the ladies to meet on Monday, to arrange the same.

According to the annual address of Most Worthy Grand Master John J. Bell of the Most Worthy Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, St. John's Lodge of Masons of this city, is the largest in the State, numbering three hundred and fifteen members. St. Andrew's lodge stands fourth in the list, having a membership of two hundred and thirty-five.

One of the pair of California quails that have occupied a cage in the window of Mr. John S. Sides' saloon for some months past, has laid a dozen eggs, and Mr. Sides expects a flock of quail chickens if all goes well.

A Maypole, cut on the farm of Mr. Samuel Langdon, and by him presented and drawn to Langdon Park on Wednesday, May 23d, was set on the top of the hill, in the centre of the grounds, by the trustees, in the afternoon—that being the date of the settlement of New Hampshire, when David Thompson and his party landed at Odiorne's Point. The public celebration for the pole will be held June 14th, at the Park, at the same time with the parade of the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery to celebrate the centennial of the U. S. Flag. The Maypole is like the original in America, a straight and handsome pine tree fifty feet high.

Moutengerin Women.

Montenegrin women have the same passionate attachment with the men to family and country, and display much of the same valor. Goptchevitch supplies two most remarkable examples. A sister and four brothers, the four of course all armed, are making a pilgrimage or excursion to a church. The state of war with the Turk being normal, we need not wonder when we learn that they are attacked unawares on their way, in a pass where they proceed in single file, by seven armed Turks, who announce themselves by shooting dead the first of the brothers and dangerously wounding the second. The odds are fearful but the fight proceeds. The wounded man leans against the rock, and though he receives another and fatal shot, kills two of the Turks before he dies. The sister then presses forward, and grasps his rifle and his dagger. At last all are killed on both sides, excepting herself and a single Turk. She asks for mercy, and he promises it, but names her maidenly honor as the price. Indignant, and perceiving that now he is off his guard, she stabs him with the dagger. He tears it from her hand, they close and she dashes the wretch over the steep precipice into the yawning depth below. The second anecdote is not less singular. Tidings reach a Montenegrin wife that her husband has just been slain by a party under the command of a certain Aga. Knowing the road by which they are travelling, she seizes a rifle, chooses her position, and shoots the Aga dead. The rest of the party take to flight. The wife of the dead Aga sends her an epistle. "Thou hast robbed me of both my eyes. Thou art a genuine daughter of Tsernagora. Come to-morrow alone to the border-line, and we will prove by trial which of us was the bettter wife." The Tsernagorine appeared, equipped with the arms of the dead Aga, and alone, as she was invited. But the Turkish woman had thought prudence the better part of valor, and brought an armed champion with her, who charged her on horseback. She shot him dead as he advanced, and, seizing her faithless antagonist, bound her and took her home, kept her as a nursemaid for fourteen years, and then let her go back to her place and people.—W. E. Gladstone, in Nineteenth Century.

Nerves That Quiver,

Heads that ache, stomachs that inflict dyspeptic torments, muscles and joints racked with the rheumatism, are infallibly restored to health by the celebrated elixir, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine prescribed by physicians, possessing infinite purity, and which no one takes in vain who is afflicted with any of the numerous complaints to which it is adapted. It frequently happens that so-called remedies fail to produce a permanent effect. This is because they are merely palliatives, and therefore do not remove the cause of the maladies, whose symptoms they after after a time cease to ameliorate. This is notably the case with opiates and sedative drugs. It is not so, however, with Hostetter's Bitters, which are a searching specific that conquers the disease as well as banishes its indicia.

The Teeth of Dyspeptics.

Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth, unless its effects be counteracted with Sozodont. This pure vegetable antacid and disinfectant protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them, and preventing the formation of tartar.

A wretched mistake! Not to buy Spalding's Glue.

"Hurrah for the next who dies," exclaims the irreverent host. Better hurrah for the man who lives by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures coughs, colds and lung difficulties. Price 35 cents.

A CENTURY is almost beyond the existence of any American business house, but for this long period Walter Baker & Co's great Chocolate manufactory has been a pride to Boston. Increasing years add testimonials of excellence from all parts of the world. Their goods are for sale all over the country, and are deservedly popular.

The most excellent attributes to the success of a first-class hotel are courteous treatment, a well-appointed cuisine, and well-furnished rooms. You can find all these at the Colonnade Hotel in Philadelphia.

The Grand Central Hotel, New York, will sustain its well-merited popularity, and earn greater, by the sensible reduction of its rates from $4.00 to $2.50 and $3.00 per day.

State of New Hampshire,

ROCKINGHAM, SS.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of MARY D. HUTCHINGS, late of Portsmouth, in said county, deceased, represented insolvent, and to all concerned, Greeting:

You are hereby notified that the Report of the Commissioner of Insolvency on said estate will be offered for acceptance at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in said county, on the second Tuesday of July next, at 10 o'clock A. M., when and where you may appear and show cause, if any you have, against the acceptance of said report.

And it is ordered that Josiah S. Bailey, the Administrator of said estate, give notice by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in said county, the last publication thereof to be at least one week prior to said court.

Dated May 18th, A. D. 1877.

By order of the Judge.

Fraudulent Failures.

Perhaps the most lamentable circumstance in connection with the frauds and failures that have happened during the last three years is the fact that it seems possible for a man to be guilty of almost any delinquency in regard to money, and yet to retain his social position if his dishonesty be only on a sufficiently large scale. To give an instance in point: A man came to a friend for a loan of $100,000 and the friend, with very great difficulty, managed to oblige him. Within a few weeks the borrower failed, having, meanwhile, settled largely on his wife, and his failure caused the ruin of the lender. Not long since the latter observed to a friend, with great emotion, "I have experienced to-day the greatest insult I ever had in my life. That fellow, P., who ruined me, positively had the audacity to ask me to drive up town in his carriage, which, with its liveried servants, was at his office door." The P.'s are reported to "live delightfully," and their dinners and parties are greatly in request. The head of another firm, which failed at over $6,000,000 not long ago, and haven't paid one cent on the dollar, lives with similar elegance. As long as the doers of such deeds are exempt from social ostracism, commercial morality will remain what it is. —N. Y. Sun.

—Deal gently with the herring—the shad is so constructed as to take care of itself.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SHART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements has far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,
is one discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative as could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
F. W. HILTON, Proprietor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. His offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below the water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within twenty-four from the promulgation of this ordinance, and thereafter on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting to do so, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect, a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal in any kind about their stalls or stores over night, nor shall they be allowed to throw into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall use the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the Health Officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, yard or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by section of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, yard or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, so placed that offensive substances therefrom will be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other wholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

DANIEL W. JONES, M. D.,
ROBERT SHILLABER,
DANIEL DANIELSON,
Health Officers.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST FOR THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the Worst Cases. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Severe Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extensive practice with marvelous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 150.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

All who have been taught anything relative to the first settlements of our State, have been taught that the first were in Portsmouth and Dover, in 1623. But the place where these began in Portsmouth was not in what is now the compact part of the town, in fact, not in what is any part of Portsmouth now. The place was included in the town at first and for some years. When Rye was constituted in 1726, it was made up of a part of Hampton and a part of Portsmouth. The place where the settlers landed and began operations, was afterwards named Little Harbor, also Odiorne's Point. It is about three miles from Market Square, in a southerly direction.

In November, 1871, being in Portsmouth, I walked out there to plant my feet on the spot where the settlement of the State was commenced, and to see what is there to be seen. One lone house, a handsome farm residence is there. The owner and occupant was found to be Mr. Eben L. Odiorne. It was found by conversation with him and documents in my possession, that the name Odiorne's Point came of his family, a long line of his ancestors having resided there, running through about two hundred and sixteen years. The first of the name, who came over the water and lived in Portsmouth so far as I know, was John Odiorne. He was in town in 1657, and if not at Little Harbor then, was in 1660. He had a son, Deacon John Odiorne, who, it is said, lived at the same place. Descendants followed down to Eben L. Odiorne, already named. That line of geneology it is not intended to give. But the first John had a son besides Deacon John, whose name was Jotham. He was born about 1675, and in 1724 was one of the Counsellors of the Colonial government. Farmer says he resided at Newcastle. He died Aug. 16, 1748, aged 73 years. Deacon John, above named, had a son Ebenezer, who lived in Greenland. He had the title of Captain. Capt. Odiorne had a son, who settled in Exeter. This was Deacon Thomas Odiorne. He was living in the latter part of the last century, I think. The name Odiorne was in Exeter, but a few years since, and may be now, and probably are descendants of this old Odiorne family.

Ex-Gov. Edward Kent,

Of Maine, a native of Concord, this State, died at Bangor, on Saturday, May 19, aged seventy-five years. He was a graduate of Harvard, and among his classmates were Ralph Waldo Emerson and Josiah Quincy. He was a lawyer by profession, and was governor of Maine from 1838 to 1840. His election in September, 1840, gave great encouragement to the whig party, and was the precursor of Harrison's triumph. It was this victory that gave rise to the campaign refrain:

"Have you heard the news from Maine, Maine, Maine,
How she went, hell bent,
For Governor Kent?"

Judge Kent helped to form the republican party in Maine, and in 1859 he was appointed an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Maine, serving until 1873. He was a fine specimen of the old school gentleman, lawyer and politician.

P. B. and Paris Green.

Prof. S. Dana Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, writes as follows to the Boston Journal regarding the use of Paris green to kill potato bugs:

"Will you oblige me by publishing these few lines on Paris green for potato bugs, in reply to several correspondents. Paris green (known by a variety of other names,) is a fine powder composed of arsenic, copper and acetic acid, and contains about half its weight of arsenic in a semi-soluble form. Five or six grains of this irritant metallic poison are sufficient to cause death in an adult, and the least quantity is deleterious to health. It is dangerous to inhale or to handle it in any quantity; and this is the material that is used on potato plants. It is said that this is the only efficient destroyer of the beetles known, and it has been used in the West for this purpose, without recognized injurious effects. Nevertheless the danger is much too great to permit its use by New England farmers. It is not known that the arsenic or copper is absorbed by the plant; they may be; but assuming that they are not, then the dangers attending the common mode of digging and gathering potatoes from the adhesion of particles of the poison, in a soil upon which it has been scattered, the danger in distributing it and in placing it in the hands of the workmen, and the danger to animals, such as poultry, hogs, sheep and even dogs, who may venture into the fields, make only part of a list of dangers that may be readily brought to mind. And when we add to this that the effects of metallic poisoning may not be observed for months, or years in some cases, there is certainly reason for saying that the indiscriminate use of Paris green on these plants may be more disastrous in its results than the loss of several crops of potatoes. I cannot suggest any harmless chemical agent that will drive off the bugs; but do not use any metallic poison."

—Some extraordinary births have been recently reported at Hartford. A twenty-pound child came into the world there the other day, and it is now stated that a German woman gave birth to five children last week, all of whom are now living.

The Era of Good Feeling.

The Meridian (Miss.) Mercury is a representative democratic paper of that State; was one of the earliest and most outspoken advocates of the "Mississippi plan" (i. e., murder,) in politics, home rule in State government, Tilden's election, etc. Commenting on the cowardly and brutal murder of Judge Chisolm and other republicans, including Judge Chisolm's son and sixteen-years-old daughter, by an armed mob of democrats, the Mercury says: "April 29, in DeKalb, never ought to be investigated, and if wisdom and statesmanship prevail, never will be. On that day the higher law, which antedates common law and all other law, ousted them and all their ministers of jurisdiction, and for a brief period of time, sufficient to its purposes, held sway. Its judgments were final. No court is competent to distub them. Every attempt to review them will be both futile and mischievous. Special instructions to grand jurors are likely to go unheeded, and to save an exhibition of their impotency, had best not be given." But notwithstanding the Mercury's advice and prophecies, Governor Stone of Mississippi shows a disposition to "stir this thing up" after all. He has called a special session of the Court in Kemper County for the purpose of having the murder of Judge Chisolm and others investigated. Now the question is whether a Grand Jury will be found to do its duty fearlessly.

The era of good feeling in Louisiana is wonderful to contemplate. Two negro postmasters for Feliciana parish have arrived at their destination and been notified that they would be killed if they remained, unless they resigned their office. On Saturday night last, at Jackson, James Law, a colored Representative in the last Legislature, was assassinated at his door by a body of armed white men, and no arrests have been made. Postmasters Chapman of Clinton and Dula of St. Francisville, both educated negroes, have written Postmaster-General Key full details of these affairs. Probably as soon as the bull-dozers have murdered or driven out of the State every white republican, and every "nigger" who can read, the era of good feeling will set in some more.

A Nest of Pirates.

A vessel commanded by Capt. Rideout was lost on the French shore of Newfoundland in 1874. A St. Johns paper says a person from Bonne Bay relates the following: The Captain had $1000 on his person at the time. The craft went ashore near a hut occupied by an old hunter, known as "Jacko." All the crew got ashore and built a tent. A certain "B. W.," with the members of his family, understood to be hunters, wreckers, etc., visited the tent and offered to pilot the crew to the channel. The offer was accepted, and while the party were crossing a pond, the crew were shot, three falling at the first volley. The "W's" cut a hole in the ice and put the bodies down, after robbing them. Jacko, aware of the circumstances, was bought over, but becoming sick, confessed. The informant also states that a Nova Scotian craft fishing there found on the shore the remains of the captain, named Sterling, fearfully chopped up. The people are confident the crew were all murdered by the same gang. Many other vessels and crews, he believes, met with the same fate. He further states that the people at Port au Port do little else than plunder. In his opinion they would not hesitate to use lights to decoy vessels on the shore. The matter has been placed in the hands of the Chief of Police of St. Johns to investigate. It is said the officers of Her Majesty's ship Eclipse, visiting the shore now, will be directed to seek information relative to the crime.

The War.

A despatch received in London from Erzeroum, Thursday morning, stated that a desperate battle was in progress around Batoum, the Grand Duke Michael having been reinforced by 20,000 men. The Russians are closely investing Kars, with 90,000 men. A force of 8000 Turks is shut up in a small fortified town thirty miles from Ardahan, being unable to reach Mukhtar Pasha or to retreat. The Circassian revolt is becoming more alarming to the Russians, and the Mahommedan insurrection in the Crimea is spreading.

Hobart Pasha is trying his hand at alarming the Russians from Sebastopol to Odessa. His main fleet, reported to consist of three monitors and five broadside frigates, is hovering around the coast at the mouth of the Dnieper, threatening Kinburn and Odessa, while other detachments menace the Crimea. The description of his vessels, as counted from Odessa, indicates very closely their identity. The "monitors" are first-class turreted frigates, each of 10,000 tons and twenty-six guns, mostly ten-inch rifles. The frigates are all about 6500 tons and twenty-one guns, nine-inch calibre. These ships are the best and most powerful in the Turkish navy. If any force threatens Odessa it is likely to be these vessels, and Hobart Pasha is likely to be their commander. To oppose them the Russians have their two Popoff kas at Nicolaieff and a coast town with torpedoes. The Russian generals are massing all available men and material along that portion of the coast which seems to be threatened.

Despatches from London say negotiations between England and Russia in relation to a demarcation line to be observed during the war, are proceeding quietly, and are expected to result in a satisfactory termination.

The Servian reserves have been called out, to meet fully armed and ready for immediate service.

The Roumanian chambers have voted to suppress the annual tribute paid to the Porte. This action is merely supplementary to the declaration of Roumania's independence of Turkey.

The North German Gazette states that Russia has declared to Tunis that if military or pecuniary aid is rendered to the Sultan the Bey must prepare to see his capital bombarded. The Tunis Government is also disquieted by the concentration of a French force on its frontier.

News and Notes.

Barque Pharo, at Halifax from London, reports that she ran into the barque Ella Vose on the Newfoundland banks on the 17th of May. She struck her amidships, and while the vessels were together the first officer and five men escaped from the Ella Vose to the Pharo. After the vessels separated nothing was seen of the Ella Vose, which was loaded with corn, from Baltimore for Queenstown. The weather was foggy at the time.

Bears are very bold in Milo, Me. There have been fifteen or more sheep and lambs killed there this Spring, and a number bitten. Friday night, May 18th, C. M. Herrick had three sheep killed; on Saturday a company of men watched for bruin, who made his appearance about ten o'clock in the evening. Mr. D. B. Tolman fired at him, breaking his leg. The bear ran for the woods, and the men after him; after following him about one mile through the woods and shooting ten bullets into him he was killed. He weighed 325 pounds.

Fred Smith, aged fourteen, and Howard Abbott, aged twelve, both sons of well known citizens of Biddeford, left town Wednesday for parts unknown. Young Smith carried off with him $119 belonging to his brother. The police are making diligent search. Herbert West, aged fourteen, and Charles Bradbury, same age, disappeared on Monday, and nothing has been heard of them since. These precocious youths have no doubt been luxuriating in dime novels, or reading "The Boys of New York," which is about on a par with the dime novel literature.

Another rotten building has fallen, with fatal results. At Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Wednesday, a large brick block in course of construction fell in, burying some twenty men in the ruins. One man was taken out dead in a short time, and four or five others who cannot live; while others had limbs broken, ribs crushed, faces stove up and disfigured, and were otherwise injured.

The Town Hall presented to the town of Ayer, Mass., by Dr. J. C. Ayer, in consideration of its adoption of that name, has been pronounced unsafe for use by a competent architect, and in accordance with this decision the town authorities have forbidden the using or letting of the hall. The architect found the rafters unable to support the great weight upon the roof, and not being properly secured at the base the walls are pushed outward several inches to such an extent that any sudden jar would cause the fall of the structure.

The city forester of Boston likes the English sparrows. He says their introduction there is attended with great benefit, almost beyond all calculation in the destruction of caterpillars and canker worms, and he denies that they molest or interfere with any other bird.

A Paris despatch to the London Times, under date May 23d, has the following: France will doubtless pronounce overwhelmingly against President MacMahon at the elections, even if the Senate gives a majority in favor of dissolution, which is very doubtful. The refusal of the Senate to authorize dissolution would inevitably cause MacMahon's resignation.

United States District Attorney Howard estimates the number of murders committed in Utah since the Mormons made their settlement at Salt Lake City at 600. Until 1871 no person was ever even indicted by the courts for that crime; and since that time only one murderer has been convicted and executed, viz., John D. Lee, for his participation in the Mountain Meadow massacre.

The dead body of Hon. William N. Matson of Hartford, Conn., who was last seen alive on board steamer Granite State on a trip to New York, Dec. 29, 1876, was picked up in the Sound, near Ricker's Island, on Wednesday. His gold watch was still in his pocket.

In Mississippi there is already active preparation for the Fall campaign, but quiet reigns in Kemper County. All the wounded men and women have died, and Gov. Stone, good, easy man, doesn't want to "stir this thing up."—Tribune.

New Hampshire Items.

During the past three months a large number of bold burglaries have been committed in Manchester, until hardly a merchant felt safe in leaving his store unprotected. Wednesday evening four French Canadians were arrested on suspicion. Large quantities of property were found, connecting them with eight burglaries. The others of the gang are still at large.

It is understood that Johnson, the Bristol wife murderer, confessed to killing his wife by drowning her in Pemigewasset river, near New Hampton bridge, on the 5th of April, 1876. His counsel, to whom he confessed, refuses to make his confession public, but it is understood that he first made his wife unconscious by liquor and ether, and then threw her into the river.

The following officers have been appointed on the staff of the first Brigade New Hampshire Volunteer Militia: A. W. Smith, Concord, Assistant Adjutant-General; David Urch, Portsmouth, Assistant Inspector-General; Ezekiel Morrill, Concord, Medical Director, each with the rank of major; George W. Nichols, Manchester, Brigade Quartermaster, John S. Rowell, Exeter, Brigade Commissary, Herbert Taylor, New London, Aid-de-Camp, each with the rank of captain; William G. Kidder, Portsmouth, Aid-de-Camp, with the rank of first lieutenant.

Alec Rand and Gus. Lambert, two young men of Manchester, have been arrested for numerous buglaries and thefts in that city, and considerable stolen property recovered. The evidence against them is conclusive, and they acknowledge their guilt. They will doubtless go to State prison.

A Unique Fact of History.

In January, 1795, the French entered Amsterdam under the command of Pichegru, who, compelled to obey the formal orders of the committee of the French nation, unwillingly conquered Holland. He was afraid of exposing his army to certain destruction in case the Hollanders once more cut their dikes, but the severity of the winter allowed him to cross the frozen rivers with his artillery, and soon squadrons of cavalry crossing the solidified waters, marched to the extremity of North Holland and captured the Dutch fleet, which was imprisoned by the ice in the port of Helder—a unique fact of history, which certainly authorized Pichegru's troopers to be entitled horse marines, and perhaps originated that expression. The call of "All hands on deck to repel mounted boarders!" must have astonished the ancient mariners of the Batavian Navy. Think of an admiral striking his flag to a colonel of dragoons, or a company of hussars picketing their roughshod horses on the spar-deck of a frigate!

—A Russian has invented an "electric candle" which promises to give the gas companies pause. Six of them in a public hall in Paris, gave a light equal to that from one hundred Argand gas burners.

—The deformity of unequal limbs is now obviated by making the longer limb shorter. Apparatus has been contrived by means of which a peculiar fracture of the thigh bone is produced. When the injury is repaired by nature shortening results and the deformity no longer exists. So it is said.

—At a recent meeting of the French Anthropological Society a long report was read proving that, notwithstanding the priests' exertions, Druidism is not quite extinct in Brittany, where some of the people still adhere to pagan practices. This causes the clergy to desire to destroy druidical remains, and a petition has been made to the government against such iconoclasm.

PROPOSALS FOR RATIONS.

HEADQUARTERS MARINE CORPS,
QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON,
1 May, 1877.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until 12 o'clock, M., of Tuesday, the 12th day of June next, for furnishing RATIONS to the U. S. Marines at one or more of the following stations, from 1 July, 1877, to 30 June, 1878:

HEADQUARTERS MARINE CORPS,
QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON,
3 May, 1877.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until 12 o'clock M., of Thursday, the 7th day of June next, for supplying WOOD and COAL to U. S. Marines at one or more of the following places, during fiscal year ending 30 June, 1878.

The Wood to be merchantable Oak, and to be delivered, piled, measured and inspected, at such points within the limits of the Marine Barracks, as may be designated by the commanding Marine Officer, free of expense to the United States.

The Coal to be good White Ash Anthracite Egg Coal, free from dust, and to weigh 2240 pounds to the ton, to be inspected by the commanding Marine Officer, and delivered at such points within the limits of the Marine Barracks as may be designated by him, free of expense to the United States; and both Wood and Coal to be furnished upon the monthly or quarterly requisition of the Commanding Officer, showing the quantities required in accordance with regulations, viz.: At

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
110 tons of Coal.
70 cords of Wood.
CHARLESTOWN, MASS.
110 tons of Coal.
70 cords of Wood.
BROOKLYN, N. Y.
180 tons of Coal.
20 cords of Wood.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., ASSISTANT QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, &c.
15 tons of Coal.
75 cords of Wood.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
(Including Guard at Naval Magazine.)
120 tons of Coal.
250 cords of Wood.
ANNAPOLIS, MD.
40 cords of Wood.
GOSPORT, VA.
50 tons of Coal.
80 cords of Wood.
MARE ISLAND, CAL.
50 cords of Wood.
100 tons of Coal.

(With the privilege of increasing the quantity one third.)

The Wood and Coal furnished at Washington city to be measured, weighed and certified by the Government Inspector appointed by the Navy Department, and the expense attending such inspection, &c., paid by the contractor.

Blank forms of proposals can be obtained upon application at any of the marine posts.

Payments will be made upon receipt of accounts duly authenticated by the commanding officers of the posts at which wood or coal has been delivered. The right is reserved to reject all bids considered unreasonable.

A guaranty, to be signed by two responsible persons, who are responsibility must be certified to by the United States District Attorney or United States Collector, must accompany each proposal, otherwise it will not be considered.

To be indorsed, "Proposals for Fuel," and addressed to the undersigned.

WILLIAM B. SLACK,
Major and Quartermaster, U. S. Marine Corps.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 2[illegible] years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I am able to eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am free from pain in stomach very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will speedily cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the Plains. I shall send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Jadviard Mills got some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been an hour from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yea, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have live applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MTHOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

E. G PIERCE, JR., P. M.

THOUGHT HE LOOKED GUILTY.

For a few days past an agent has been in this city, endeavoring to introduce a really useful article of household convenience, and one of his patrons was a certain lawyer whose name was for some years prominent in Police Court reports, though not as defendant or counsel. The agent having performed his work entirely to his customer's satisfaction, the latter drew a check for $40, and the agent sought fresh fields and pastures new. Entering "the finest hotel in New England," he sought to make a trade with the landlord, incidentally remarking that he had just finished with Mr. ——, "and here is his check for forty dollars," exhibiting it. The landlord looked sadly at the check, then at the agent, and then back at the check. "What's the matter?" asked the agent, a little flurried; "isn't this check good?" Without giving a direct answer the landlord called to a gentleman not far off reading a paper, and who had seen and heard all that passed, "Aaron, just look here a moment, please." Up came "Aaron," looked at the check, and then asked mine host contemptuously, "Where did you get that?" "This? his, it's mine," broke in the now thoroughly wretched agent; "isn't it worth anything?" "Well, I don't want to give you forty dollars for it," said "Aaron," and the agent was in despair. As it was then past bank hours the poor man could not at once put the worth of his check to the test, so he walked down street, vowing vengeance dire if it should turn out to be worthless. Meeting a hardware merchant whom he was slightly acquainted with he showed him the check, told his suspicions and asked if they were well founded. "Well," returned the merchant, "the fact is, I don't want any trouble with Mr. ——, and I'd rather say nothing about it." This was too much, and chucking the check in his vest pocket the agent exclaimed, "I'll be blessed ["blessed" is a free translation of the word he actually used] if I didn't think he looked guilty when he was writing it!" What the poor man thought of his wicked tormentors, when his check was promptly cashed on presentation Thursday morning, we do not know; but we presume they will scoot if they see him coming within a day or two.

FISHY.

There has been this Spring a scarcity of bait very unfortunate for the fishermen out of this port. There has been an unusually good school of fish on the fishing-grounds in the neighborhood of the Shoals, and when the fishermen could get bait they have been generally rewarded with good fares. Large schools of herring have been hanging around, but amounted to nothing as a bait-supply, as the herring would not "mesh" in the nets owing to the "firing" of the water. The weirs at the head of the river and Great Bay have furnished large quantities of alewives for bait, and had it not been for them the outside fishermen would have been even worse off than they have been; and as it was, even if they got good fares the cost of the bait took up a large share of what would otherwise have been profits.

Lobsters have been more plentiful this season than for some years past, some of the fishermen getting more than they could dispose of. They are smaller than the average, but "hard-shelled," well filled out and heavy, and finely flavored.

Many of the boats are fitting out to "drag" for mackerel, which if successful pays better than cod-fishing.

We find a great diversity of opinion among the fishermen regarding the effect trawling has on the numbers of fish. About half the fishermen are confident that trawling has greatly reduced the fish in numbers and in size, and that the thinning out is evident from year to year; the other half maintain that the fish are as plenty as ever, but that they do not strike close in on the coast in such numbers as formerly, as the trawling on off-shore grounds keeps them baited up so that they can get enough to eat in deep water. It is in this way the latter theorists account for the fact that where large, marketable fish used to be caught in large numbers on hand-lines,—say just outside of Whale's-back,—it is now rare to catch anything bigger than a cunner, or cod a foot long.

DOWN WITH THE FIRE-CRACKER.

Every paper that has commented at all on the move made by the National Board of Underwriters (and a great many of them have done so) to do away with the fire-cracker-style of celebrating the Fourth of July, has thoroughly supported the measures advocated by the insurance men. Several cities—Boston for one—have decided to have no public exhibitions of fireworks this year, though we do not know that any have prohibited private exhibitions. As a sample of how the papers in the large cities talk we give the following from the Boston Post:

"There has been more or less war made upon the fire-cracker ever since the oldest inhabitant burned his fingers with his first pack, and various reasonable grounds of opposition have been urged. It offends all the senses that take cognizance of it and accomplishes no definite purpose except to stimulate a depraved taste in the 'unspeakable' small boy. It frightens horses, disturbs invalids, and—most potent objection of all—it destroys property—not by the hundreds but by the millions of dollars. For this latter reason the public generally ought to sympathize and co-operate with the fire insurance companies, which through the National Board of Underwriters have begun a crusade against Fourth of July fire-crackers and other loose pyrotechnics. The figures that are given to support this action and show the bad effects of these commercial pests, it is not necessary to reproduce; if they are correct, as is probable, they are conclusive, and ought to stir local governments to adopt measures of protection. Another reason why these ancient nuisances should be abandoned is the desirability of reforming the public taste. There are methods of entertainment, more refining, but not more expensive, that a little pains on the part of public-spirited people would easily put in the place of the offensive practices now indulged in, and the masses would be better for the change. The present year is a good one in this city to try something of that kind."

A strong argument against fireworks can be drawn by their enemies from an incident which occurred in Metz, Germany, May 7th, when the roof of the magnificent cathedral, which was over five centuries in building and is one of the finest Gothic piles in the world, was destroyed by a fire kindled by fireworks. It was only by the desperate exertions of the firemen and all the troops of the garrison that the fire was confined to the roof, and had there been any wind the whole edifice would have been wrapped in flames, inflicting a damage not to be estimated in dollars and cents.

The people of Portland we presume need no warning as to the peril involved in the setting off of fireworks in what is generally the hottest and dryest season of the year, having learned that lesson thoroughly over ten years ago; that once-destroyed city sternly sits down on the whole fireworks business; and it would seem that a precaution which it is sensible for a city to take after it is well nigh ruined, would be quite as properly taken by cities that have not yet been laid in ashes. Locking the stable door after the steed is stolen is all very well, but it is better to lock it while the horse is still in his stall.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The following is the annual appropriation bill, as it passed the Common Council on Thursday evening, May 24th:

JOTTINGS.

The last half of Mr. Lamprey's dancing school in Congress Hall commences on Saturday, May 26th.

The Common Council on Thursday evening passed an ordinance licensing and governing hacks, carts, drays and job wagons doing business at the railroad stations and steamboat landings. The Aldermen referred the ordinance to the proper committee.

The Atlantic & Pacific Telegraph Company are putting up a second line of wire between this city and Dover. Two new offices were opened by this company on Thursday, one at Nashville, Tenn., tariff (from this city) 25 cents, former tariff $1.-50; and one at New Bedford, Mass., tariff 25 cents, former tariff 40 cents.

A meeting of the ex-soldiers and sailors was held at the Common Council chamber Wednesday evening, to take action for participation in the general exercises of Memorial Day. A company organization was formed, and it was voted that the veterans meet at the old Masonic hall in Franklin block, (entrance on Fleet street) on Wednesday next at 12:30 o'clock, to revive the old drill, previous to being assigned to one of the divisions of the procession. Members will appear in dark clothes and hat with white gloves. A committee was appointed to communicate by mail with the soldiers and sailors who were not present at the meeting, and also with those residing in Kittery, relative to their participation in the memorial exercises.

The navy yard anchor-hoy was on Thursday taken up to Portsmouth bridge to assist the wrecking schooner which is engaged in trying to raise the sunken schooner Ceres. The bow of the Ceres is deeply embedded in sand, which the force of the strong tides has packed solid around her, and the divers are finding it extremely difficult to work. But little hope is entertained of raising the vessel.

Eastern railroad stock sold in Boston on Wednesday at $2.50; Portland, Saco & Portsmouth, $80; Kearsarge Mills at $41.

We are credibly informed that two young men of this city were about ten days since discovered at an early hour in the morning indulging in the pastime of shooting birds in Harmony Grove Cemetery. Is it not possible that we have now found out in them the names of those marauders who rob graves of flowers and other friendly tokens that have been left exposed on the tombs of our departed?

Dr. Pierce of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., has perfected, by the combination of certain vegetable extracts, a natural specific, which he does not extol as a cure-all, but one which admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most positive and reliable remedy for those weaknesses and chronic complaints that afflict the women of the present day. This natural specific compound is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is sold by druggists.

Nerves That Quiver,

Heads that ache, stomachs that inflict dyspeptic torments, muscles and joints racked with the rheumatism, are infallibly restored to health by the celebrated elixir, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine prescribed by physicians, possessing infinite purity, and which no one takes in vain who is afflicted with any of the numerous complaints to which it is adapted. It frequently happens that so-called remedies fail to produce a permanent effect. This is because they are merely palliatives, and therefore do not remove the cause of the maladies, whose symptoms they after after a time cease to ameliorate. This is notably the case with opiates and sedative drugs. It is not so, however, with Hostetter's Bitters, which are a searching specific that conquers the disease as well as banishes its indicia.

The Teeth of Dyspeptics.

Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth, unless its effects be counteracted with Sozodont. This pure vegetable antacid and disinfectant protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them, and preventing the formation of tartar.

A wretched mistake! Not to buy Spalding's Glue.

State of New Hampshire,

ROCKINGHAM, SS.

By the Hon. Judge of Probate for said County.

TO the heirs at law and creditors to the estate of MARY D. HUTCHINGS, late of Portsmouth, in said county, deceased, represented insolvent, and to all concerned, Greeting:

You are hereby notified that the Report of the Commissioner of insolvency on said estate will be offered for acceptance at a Court of Probate to be holden at Portsmouth, in said county, on the second Tuesday of July next, at 10 o'clock A. M., when and where you may appear and show cause, if any you have, against the acceptance of said report.

And it is ordered that Joseph S. Haley, the Administrator of said estate, give notice by causing this citation to be published three weeks successively in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in said county, the last publication whereof to be at least one week prior to said court.

Dated May 18th, A. D. 1877.

By order of the Judge.

GOOD ADVICE.

Come, all ye Bilious people,
Who would be free from ill,
And try that Magic Remedy,
The Little Giant Pill.

There is no sham about it,
'Tis honest, pure and true;
And all the good it promises,
Most faithfully will do.

If troubled with Sick Head-Ache,
Twill cure the throbbing pain,
And soon its soothing influence,
Will make you well again.

Then try the Little Giant!
How good words fail to tell!
But if you use it faithfully,
You will be strong and well.

"Circular" Advertising.

The plague of circulars has fallen upon London, and the society journals of that metropolis are crying out against the infliction. Dwellers in American cities will readily sympathize with those who are beset with this nuisance. The circular boy stands at the corner of the streets, or in the approach to a public place, and thrusts his grimy paw under the nose of every passer-by. The persecuted party must either make a detour or go to the trouble of reading about the latest corn-plaster, or the best place to get a suit of clothes for nothing, or a square meal and a chromo for fifteen cents. This gad-fly style of advertising repels more custom than it attracts. With the same expense and trouble invested in a good advertisement in a daily newspaper, the information which it is sought to convey to the public is furnished to a much wider circle of readers than by the cumbersome circular methods. The advertisements in newspapers are sought after, read and respected; the advertisements in circulars are looked upon as scrips of audacity, and, unless dropped at once to paper the pavement, are only reserved unread to kindle fires and light cigars. Only when a business is so mean that a newspaper will not advertise it is the circular justifiable, and then it certainly is not, for the business itself is indefensible. As a rule those who advertise by circular do not do business on the square.—Boston Post.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements has for made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England.
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. His offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own ers or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the premulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to have any state or tubs, pails, pieces of offal of any kind about their sta ls or stores over night, nor suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall upon such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 15. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the Worst CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, COUGHS, CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, writes as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing phys cian, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvelous success., and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

An Authentic Apparition.

A writer in the current number of the Church Quarterly Review vouches for the following marvellous incident: "The fact is that this class of what are called "ghost stories' is so numerous, and so thoroughly well authenticated, that the hesitation would rather be as to whether they be properly supernatural at all. We mean that the question arises whether it may not be possible in the nature of things—under certain circumstances—for the departing spirit to manifest itself to distant friends at the instant, the fleeting moment, of transition from this world to the other? If any one replies, if so, why is it not even more common? our answer is easy. There are numbers of things quite natural which are much more uncommon than the well-ascertained instances of this class of events. In the house in which these pages are written a tall and wide staircase window, with a northern aspect, throws a strong side-light on the entrance into the chief living-room, which stands at the end of a passage running nearly the length of the house. It was after midday, in midwinter, many years since, that the writer left his study, which opens into the passage just mentioned, on his way to his early dinner. The day was rather foggy, but there was no density of vapor, yet the door at the end of the passage seemed obscured by mist. As he advanced, the mist, so to call it, gathered into one spot, deepened, and formed itself into the outline of a human figure, the head and shoulders becoming more and more distinct, while, the rest of the body seemed enveloped in a gauzy, cloak-like vestment of many folds, reaching downward so as to hide the feet, and from its width, as it rested on the flagged passage, giving a pyramidal outline. The full light of the window fell on the object, which was so thin and tenuous in its consistency that the light on the panels of a highly varnished door was visible through this lower part of the dress. It was altogether colorless, a statue carved in mist. The writer was so startled, that he is uncertain whether he moved forward or stood still. He was rather astonished than terrified, for his first notion was that he was witnessing some hitherto unnoticed effect of light and shade. He had no thought of anything supernatural, till, as he gazed, the head was turned toward him, and he at once recognized the features of a very dear friend. The expression of his countenance was that of holy, peaceful repose, and the gentle, kindly aspect which it wore in daily life was intensified (so the writer, in recalling the sight, has ever since felt) into a parting glance of deep affection. And then, in an instant, all passed away. The writer can only compare the manner of the evanescence to the way in which a jet of steam is dissipated on exposure to cold air. Hardly, till then, did he realize that he had been brought into close communion with the supernatural. The result was great awe, but no terror, so that instead of retreating to his study, he went forward and opened the door close to which the apparition had stood. Of course he could not doubt the import of what he had seen, and the morrow's or the next day's post brought the tidings that his friend had tranquilly passed out of this world at the time when he was seen by the writer. It must be stated that it was a sudden summons; that the writer had heard nothing of him for some weeks previously, and that nothing had brought him to his thoughts on the day of his decease."

Harvard College Morals.

Harvard College students are sensitive upon the reproaches cast upon them for their connection with the recent Soldene exhibition in this city. They say the stories of their attendance upon these performances have been greatly exaggerated. There was some indiscretion on their part when the troupe first came here last December, but on its second visit the numbers who witnessed the performances were much smaller. The young men say they bear the blame of the sins of others, for well-dressed youth who have no connection with the college are often supposed to be its students. I suppose the truth is that there is about the same amount of human nature among these young men that will be found in five or six hundred youth with as little restraint anywhere. It would be strange indeed if some of them did not make asses of themselves by following after these women. The great bulk of the students, however, should be exempt from reproach in this connection. They come from good families, and have brought with them the effect of home influences. There never was a time when study was more faithful at Harvard College than it is to-day, and if the rules of discipline in some respects are relaxed, those exacting study are more severe than ever before. The moral atmosphere of the college is not as bad as has been represented, and a larger proportion of the students are faithful to their opportunities than in earlier years. If a boy be naturally bad, there will be no difficulty in his finding bad company, in any city, if away from home; but there is plenty of good company, too, in Harvard college, and it is not made unattractive by any means. It is as safe to send a boy there as to any other city, provided he comes well fortified by good tastes, sound principles, and worthy aspirations.—Boston Cor. Hartford Courant.

The War.

According to a despatch from the English Military Commissioner with the Turks in Asia, Mukhtar Pasha has been utterly unable to hold the mountain passes between Kars and Erzeroum. The Commissioner adds that the Turks are obliged to retreat without giving battle, and attributes the rapid advance of the Russians to the total want of efficient preparations on the part of the Turks. He fears that Erzeroum will not be able to hold out for any time. The London Telegraph's despatches from Erzeroum on Wednesday night say that the movements of the Russians have been so amazingly accelerated that the exact situation is now difficult to follow or describe. It would be impossible to exaggerate the critical importance of the military situation at this moment.

A despatch from Trebizond, dated Thursday night, gives the intelligence that Moukhtar Pasha has removed the headquarters of the Turkish army from Erzeroum to Ecsingjan, a town on the Euphrates, about seventy-five miles west-southwest from Erzeroum. The reasons for this retreat are not given. Ersingjan has good railroad connections, and is less liable to interruption than the former station; but the fact of a further retreat inland is looked upon as an acknowledgment of Turkish weakness. The same despatch reports that the Russians made two attacks on Kars Wednesday, and each time were repulsed with considerable loss. They then withdrew beyond the range of the Turkish guns, but are evidently preparing for another movement. Meantime the main body of Russians moved forward, together with large reinforcements, and took up very advantageous ground at Alti, where they halted. It was their presence there which doubtless induced the Turks to withdraw their headquarters. Alti is about sixty-five miles from Erzeroum, and the next attack will undoubtedly be made on that town. The Russians are moving rapidly in that direction, with field pieces and siege guns.

The Russians are mobilizing a reserve force of about 15,000 Cossacks of the Don, to be used chiefly in operating in the disturbed provinces of Abasia, where Circassian outbreaks are becoming very annoying. The Cossacks are the only men that can cope successfully with the Circassians, as their style of warfare is about the same.

News and Notes.

Jacob Steinmacher, a watch-chain manufacturer of New York, quarrelled with his young and beautiful wife continually, through jealousy; the wife in a fit of anger took a dose of prussic acid, in his presence, and died immediately; and two days later the man blew his brains out with a pistol, beside her coffin.

Government detectives have discovered that McClenahan is the name of the head-centre of the grand smuggling operations at Montreal, by which hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of goods get smuggled through the lines to the United States by bribery of the customs officers, baggage men, etc. They have also discovered that whole cargoes of liquors are smuggled in canal boats under supposed loads of grain, in one instance a valuable cargo being landed in New York and sold to a firm within a stone's throw of the Custom House.

It is stated that the gunboat Yantic, which arrived at Norfolk a few days ago, is so rotten that her battery of guns was left at Cape Town, Cape of Good Hope, as her commander deemed it too perilous to all on board to bring them further.

It is announced from Liverpool that Fairchild, United States Consul there, is absent on leave, and that Badeau, Consul-General at London, is going to Liverpool to receive ex-President Grant. The Mayor of Liverpool has tendered his hospitalities to the distinguished traveller.

At San Francisco, on the 24th, the testimony taken on the trial of one Stainbrook, charged with complicity in the murder of the Chinese at Chico, reveals that it was a heartless and cold-blooded atrocity on the defenceless Chinamen. There are no doubts that Stainbrook will be convicted for both murder and arson.

An Havanna letter reports the capture of the battalion of Holguin by the insurgents in the eastern department, the defeat in a two hours' engagement of 400 Spanish troops, near Palmo Soriano, and the capture and sack of a place called Azerradero by the insurgents under Gen. Maces.

The report of the Canadian Fisheries Commission shows an increase of exports of Canadian fish to European countries, which indicates a strong tendency to a change in the course of trade in certain kinds of coast fish, formerly supposed to find sale only in the markets of the United States.

Schooner G. P. Whitman, Capt. Jerome McDonnell, recently weighed out 140,000 pounds of fresh halibut at Gloucester, on her return from a trip to the Banks. This is the largest fare of fresh halibut ever landed.

Pettengill & Co., have issued a small edition of their Newspaper Directory in sumptuous form, with interleaved blank pages, Russia leather binding, etc. This is much the most trustworthy and complete Newspaper Directory published, and is entirely free from the damaging suspicions of blackmail which have attached to some other ambitious efforts in the same direction. Messrs. Pettengill & Co. are one of the oldest and best established firms of advertising agents in the United States, and can always be depended upon for honest and capable work.—N. Y. Tribune.

Political.

What is the matter with Gov. Williams of Indiana? The democratic journals outside of Indianapolis are accusing him of being the tool of the "rings" at the capital, and are saying all sorts of ugly things about him. Perhaps the truth is leaking out gradually that it requires something besides a pair of blue jeans breeches to make a capable executive.

Robinson, the renegade republican whom Samuel J. Tilden elected Governor of New York, has given the most striking instance of narrow-minded partisanship on record, in vetoing an appropriation to pay for a portrait of Lincoln, painted by order of the State and paid for from the public Treasury. He approved of an appropriation for the purchase of a bust of Washington, but then Washington was not an active member of modern republican party. A public-spirited citizen of New York city has offset this petty action of the Governor by offering to pay for the frame himself.

President Hayes' policy seems entirely satisfactory to "Col." Pat. Donan, formerly editor of the Lexington, Mo., Caucasian,—the fellow who printed a full-sized picture of a horse-pistol at the head of an article advocating the assassination of President Grant. Donan says: "I consider the course of our howling democratic irreconcilables, of whom this fellow Knott is a fair specimen, as a commingling of lunacy and crime. The man who to-day would throw one straw in the way of the chariot wheels of pacification and fraternization is a public enemy to the South. Mr. Hayes has thus far shown himself a patriot instead of a partisan, the President of the whole Republic, and not of a party. He has in ten weeks done more for the South, more for the restoration of the Union, indeed, and more for the peace and prosperity of the entire country than has been accomplished in the whole twelve years of Grant and Andy Johnson. He has given home rule to the South, and rest to her people. So long as he holds to his present heroic and patriotic policy, he deserves and should have the support of every true man in the land, but especially in our redeemed fairy sunny Southern land."

New Hampshire Items.

Rev. J. H. Learned has accepted a unanimous call to the Baptist Church at Amherst, and has already entered upon his labors.

Keene's total valuation is $5,500,080; polls, 1842; amount assessed, $60,900; rate per cent. on $1000, $10.70. The valuation is about $250,000 less than last year, and the per cent. $1.20 per thousand greater.

A series of school meetings have lately been held in Hanover, the result of which was a vote carried largely by the professors and students to bond the town to the amount of $10,000 for a new schoolhouse.

Mrs. J. S. Milliken of Charlestown hung herself on Wednesday of last week, but as she lived alone she was not discovered till several days afterward. Misfortunes, ending in mental depression, were the cause of the act.

The valuation of real estate and personal property of Nashua is $6,988,768, to which is added 2926 polls at a total value of $292,600, making a total value of $7,281,368. The tax per $100 is $1.70. The rate last year was $1.50 per $100.

The Mirror says, that of the very numerous cases of relief furnished to the poor of Manchester, the name of a single German does not appear on the list. The Germans came to Manchester in large numbers to obtain employment and are poor, but their frugality and thrift enables them to care for themselves, while the Irish element in Manchester draws heavily upon the County Treasury for charitable aid, after expending their wages at the rum shops.

A Noble "Sport."

The St. John (N. B.) Globe prints the following, which shows that the society with the long name has a "mission" in England as well as in this country:

A case that was lately brought up in an English court is calculated to excite men's sympathies, and deeply move their feelings, although it relates only to a brute. The Secretary of the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals applied at Beaconsfield for a summons against three of the huntsmen of Her Majesty's staghounds for cruelty to a hind. There had been a hunt and the poor animal had made a desperate run for life. At last it got into a pond, and two dogs were sent in after it. They chased, bit and tore it, but, becoming exhausted, were called out, and other dogs sent in, and when these were tired out another relay was at hand—so that in an hour and a quarter six dogs took their turn at the poor beast. Even then it was not conquered. Finally a larger and more savage hound was sent into the pond. Even it did not succeed in conquering the animal until it had frightfully mutilated its hind quarters, and had actually torn open its skull, leaving the brain exposed. The dreadful character of the "sport" which permits such cruelties as this must disgust ordinary humanity. The Secretary said, in presenting his case, that he did not appear against hunting, but against an incident in it, which every gentleman must deplore and deprecate. The British "Magistrates setting in petty sessions" appear to be a petty specimen of petty men, for they declined to issue the summons on the ground that the hind was not a domestic animal, but they had doubts of their own judgment, for they added that that if the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was of a different opinion "it could find an opportunity to test their judgment." It would have been much more in accordance with the spirit of humanity to have granted the summons and thrown the raising of this issue upon the wretches who so brutally treated the poor beast.

How to test the Quality of Coffee.

The following tests for determining the purity of coffee may be of interest and great value to housekeepers: Take some cold water in a glass and throw on to it about half a teaspoonful of the coffee to be tested, stirring it around so as to wet the grains. Pure coffee will float, and scarcely colors the water. Beans and chicory sink to the bottom. Chicory colors the water at once, beans more slowly. Test the portion that floats by chewing it. Coffee will thus be recognized by its taste. Nut shells, which also float, are hard and brittle. A species of nut which has lately come into use very strongly resembles coffee when ground up, by floating on the water, as well as by its feeling between the teeth; but the difference can easily be detected, because the adulterating ingredient is nearly tasteless. After subjecting the suspected article to the above test spread some of it on a sheet of paper and examine it carefully for grains of rye, oats and peas. The pea ingredient will frequently be found in pieces one-eighth the size of a pea and the rye in half grains. Chicory is tough when taken between the teeth and has a bitter taste, different from the bitter of coffee. The varieties of coffee can only be distinguished from each other by an expert, and even an expert is frequently at fault. Pure ground coffee can be purchased at most respectable grocery stores—even those who sell the imitation article noted; for be it understood that such "coffee" would never be sold if there was no demand for it. People come in and inquire for cheap coffee, and cheap coffee, like cheap everything else, is at least only an imitation of the genuine. That, however, there is some huckstering in genuine coffees there is no doubt. The lower grades are often mixed with to extend the higher, as, for instance, Maracaibo is mixed with Java, and Java with Mocha. One thing should be remembered about coffee, and that is that the ground product should cost from seven to ten cents per pound more than the raw berry, in order to enable the grocer to sell it at a profit. It may, therefore, be set down as an axiom that a man might just as well expect to buy gold dollars for fifty cents in currency as to purchase pure ground coffee at half the price of the raw berry.

Nerves That Quiver,

Heads that ache, stomachs that inflict dyspeptic torments, muscles and joints racked with the rheumatism, are infallibly restored to health by the celebrated elixir, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine prescribed by physicians, possessing infinite purity, and which no one takes in vain who is afflicted with any of the numerous complaints to which it is adapted. It frequently happens that so-called remedies fail to produce a permanent effect. This is because they are merely palliatives, and therefore do not remove the cause of the maladies, whose symptoms they alter after a time cease to ameliorate. This is notably the case with opiates and sedative drugs. It is not so, however, with Hostetter's Bitters, which are a searching specific that conquers the disease as well as banishes its indicia.

The Teeth of Dyspeptics.

Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth, unless its effects be counteracted with Sozodont. This pure vegetable antacid and disinfectant protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them, and preventing the formation of tartar.

A wretched mistake! Not to buy Spalding's Glue.

It is very safe to say that the most fastidious guest never leaves the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., dissatisfied with his visit to that famous hostelry.

FOR BREAKFAST many persons find coffee positively injurious. Walter Baker & Co. prepare a "Breakfast Cocoa," which preserves the nutritive portion of Cocoa, yet leaves no sensation of heaviness after its use. Highly recommended by physicians, and sold by all grocers everywhere.

"Hurrah for the next who dies," exclaims the irreverent host. Better hurrah for the man who lives by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures coughs, colds and lung difficulties. Price 35 cents.

The Grand Central Hotel, New York, will sustain its well-merited popularity, and earn greater, by the sensible reduction of its rates from $4.00 to $2.50 and $3.00 per day.

Great Fortunes in Gold and Silver

ARE reported daily from the BLACK HILLS and the SAN JUAN MINES. Thousands are flocking thither from all parts of the country. The rush for California in '49, and Pike's Peak in '59, was nothing compared with this new Eldorado.

But all who are bound to go, or think of going to the Black Hills Gold Mines, or the San Juan Silver Land should get all the facts they can before they start,—such as the location of the mines; actual yield to this time; the best routes; cost of getting there; cost of living; business openings; population of the towns and camps; character of the country, etc., etc.

THE COLORADO STATE DIRECTORY
FOR 1877, 220 pages,

Contains all that the capitalist, or emigrant wants to know about Colorado, San Juan and the Black Hills mines.

The Directory, together with a supplement and a Map of the San Juan country and the Black Hills, will be sent post-paid for one dollar. Address,

"What Everybody Says Must be True."

The incontrovertible testimony offered by those who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription induced the doctor to sell it under a positive guarantee. Many ladies have refrained from using it on account of a general feeling of prejudice against advertised medicines. Let me ask a question. Are you prejudiced against sewing machines because you have seen them advertised? or can you doubt the ingenuity and skill required in their invention? Again, would you refuse to insure your house because the company advertised that it had paid millions in losses, and yet had a capital of several millions? Do such advertisements shake your confidence, and create prejudices? Then why refuse to credit the testimony of those who have found the Favorite Prescription to be all that is claimed for it in overcoming those ailments peculiar to your sex? Why submit to the use of harsh, and perhaps caustic treatment, thus aggravating your malady, when relief is guaranteed, and a positive, perfect, and permanent cure has been effected in thousands of cases?

WABASH STATION, Ill., Oct. 34, 1876.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Allow me to extend my most sincere thanks to you for the great benefit my wife has received from the use of your Favorite Prescription. She suffered most intolerably before using your medicine, and I had tried the skill of several physicians but to no purpose. Finally, I thought I would give the Favorite Prescription a trial, and she is now sound and well.

Very gratefully yours,
D. A. HUNTER.

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May, John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS a tumary ago, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I know I shall yet gain flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains that they have experienced and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could not get anything to relieve me. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. R. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MTHOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

CITY AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening:

Leave to encumber Chestnut and Warren streets for building purposes was granted the heirs of J. W. Pierce.

Petition of E. W. Cochrane for leave to erect a post in front of the lot upon the corner of Congress and Chestnut streets was referred to the committee on streets.

Petition of the various temperance organizations for a meeting of citizens to take into consideration the closing of the rum shops was laid on the table.

The committee on gas lights, to whom were referred the bills of John Dame and Daniel Webster, reported said bills, recommending that they be paid, and it was so ordered. Same committee reported bill of Portsmouth Gas Light Company, which was laid on the table.

Voted, That the committee on Gas Lights, with Mayor added, be requested to confer with the Directors of the Gas Company in reference to the bills for street lights.

Voted, That the City Marshal be notified that no further bills for provisions and supplies will be paid unless authorized by the Mayor.

The committee on claim of H. P. Colson for damage to sleigh, recommended that he be paid $7.50. The recommendation was adopted.

The committee on city lands and buildings reported that Mr. Peirce will let the land rear of Court House yard for $75 a year. Said committee was instructed to offer fifty dollars a year rent.

The committee on police, to whom were referred sundry bills for witness fees, reported, recommending that the bills of John Quinn and John O'Connor be paid, and that the bill of George O'Connor be not paid.

The committee on claims recommended the payment of Samuel S. Whidden for dog killed, to be paid from the dog tax. Voted that the claim be paid.

Asa T. Walker's complaint of street sprinkling apparatus in Brewster street was taken from the table.

Voted to refer the petition of Asa T. Walker to the committee on streets; said committee to inquire as to the cost of filling the lower part of Brewster street so that the apparatus for pumping water for street sprinkling may be removed, or that this part of the street may be used for resting and turning the teams used for street sprinkling; also to consult with Mr. Walker to see if such proposed alterations will be satisfactory to him, and report to this board.

Sent up, the following bills passed by the Common Council: "An Ordinance making appropriations for the year 1877," "An Ordinance authorizing the transfer of certain unexpended appropriations," "An Ordinance for licensing and governing owners and drivers of hacks, coaches, carts, drays and job wagons." All these bills were read once and referred to the proper committee.

The report of the committee on application of James Lawry for purchase of a lot in Cotton's burying ground was accepted, and it was Voted, That Mr. Lawry be notified that the city is not disposed to sell a lot on that ground.

THE HACK ORDINANCE.

The following is the ordinance relating to the licensing and governing of hacks, drays and job wagons, as passed by the Common Council on Thursday evening:

SECTION 1. The Mayor shall from time to time grant licenses, to such persons as they may deem expedient, to set up, use, and drive any hackney coach or cab for the conveyance of passengers for hire, and any job wagon or other carriage for the transportation of the baggage of passengers to and from any railroad depot or steamboat landing, in this city.

SECTION 2. For every license granted there shall be paid to the City Clerk the sum of one dollar per annum for the use of the city, and the City Clerk shall pay the same over to the City Treasurer.

SECTION 3. No such license shall be sold, assigned or transferred without the consent of the Mayor and Aldermen; under penalty of forfeiture of such license.

SECTION 4. Every driver of any such hackney coach, cab, job wagon or other carriage, or other person having charge of the same, shall wear in some conspicuous place when attending to his duties as such driver, a badge having the number of his license.

SECTION 5. The Mayor shall authorize the person to give directions respecting the standing and disposition of such hackney coaches, cabs, job wagons or other carriages at any railroad depots or steamboat landing in the city, and respecting the disposition and conduct of the drivers thereof persons having charge of the same at such places.

SECTION 6. If any person shall set up, use or drive any hackney coach, cab, job wagon or other carriage between the places named in Section One of this Ordinance without first having obtained a license as aforesaid provided; or if any person shall drive any such carriage between the places aforesaid without a badge as hereinbefore provided; or if any person so driving any such carriage or having charge thereof shall refuse to obey any order or directions of any person authorized by the Mayor to give directions as aforesaid respecting the disposition of such carriage or respecting the standing, disposition and conduct of the drivers thereof or any person having charge thereof; shall be punished by a fine not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars and by forfeiture of his license if he have one.

SECTION 7. A price to be charged by said driver of any hackney coach or cart, job wagon or other carriage for the transportation of passengers or baggage shall be established by the Mayor, and said prices shall be posted within said hackney coach and upon said transportation wagon in a conspicuous place, and any violation by such driver, by charging in excess of said prices, shall be fined not less than five dollars or more than ten dollars for each offence.

MONUMENTAL.

Messrs. Editors:—Passing through the South Cemetery a Sunday or two ago, my attention was attracted to a fine looking monument marked "Bilbruck," and I said to a friend near by that it was the finest specimen of monumental work in the Yard. I was curious enough to examine its base to find who wrought it and I read the name of "J. S. Treat" thereupon, and at once concluded that he was its builder. I was somewhat surprised, therefore, a week or so later to read the following in the Portsmouth Journal:

One of the finest ornamental monuments adorning Harmony Grove Cemetery has just been erected on the lot of Mr. George Bilbruck. It is of marble, ten feet shaft, fluted, surmounted by a handsome urn, and stands twenty feet high. It was finished by Mr. James Borthwick, marble-worker at the Silas Philbrick yard, and is in every respect a superb piece of ornamental work.

Now, I shall doubtless live to want a headstone or something of the sort, to indicate where I may be buried, and I shall naturally enough seek the best workman. So it is important that the record be correct, and if Mr. Treat's name is wrongfully inscribed on the piece of work alluded to, it should be chipped off. JUSTICE.

JOTTINGS.

Rev. James Pike, D. D., Presiding Elder of Dover district and formerly pastor of the M. E. Church of this city, will preach in the Methodist church on Sabbath morning.

Rev. H. W. Bellows, D. D., of New York, is to preach at the Unitarian church on Sunday.

Rev. E. M. Grant will give the third sermon in his course on "What it is to be a Christian," on Sunday forenoon; subject, "What made you a Christian?"

Rev. Mr. Hubbell will preach in the North Church, Sunday evening, a sermon prepared at the request of the Grand Army Post, New Haven, upon "The Observance of Decoration Day." The usual afternoon services will be omitted.

Mrs. Sarah M. C. Perkins is to lecture for the Temperance Reform Club at Mechanics' Hall on Sunday evening, 27th instant. Mrs. Perkins comes among us strongly endorsed by those with whom she has been laboring, and a good address may be confidently expected. A fee of five cents admission will be charged. Half-hour praise service before the lecture.

A good place to go to get a meal at any hour of the day, well cooked and neatly served up, and at a reasonable price, is at Webster's Dinning Rooms, Nos. 19 and 21 Fleet street, corner Congress street, under Franklin Hall. Open on Sunday from eight o'clock A. M. to nine o'clock P. M.

The entertainment given at Franklin Hall on Thursday evening by Harry Bloodgood's combination was well attended, the gallery being completely filled with a congregation of thirty-five centers, and some three hundred of the reserved seats on the lower floor being occupied. The entertainment was one of the best ever given here by Bloodgood,—and he has given many good ones at different times. The "telephone," clog dancing, Irish and negro character sketches, the musical performances of Clayton and Weston, and Bloodgood's "Old Uncle Rufe" and lecture, were all capitally done and greatly enjoyed. The company is the best Bloodgood has ever had with him, and gives a correspondingly good show.

The roundabout way which the law sometimes takes to do a thing is well illustrated in a case recently sent up to the law term by the court at Exeter. It grows out of a suit brought by Nellie M. Sawyer of Raymond, the wife of George A. Sawyer, a brakeman who was killed on the Portsmouth & Concord Railroad. The suit is to recover pay for the suit of clothes which Sawyer had on at the time of his death, and which were spoiled by the accident, and for $6,000 exemplary damages, the defendant being an employe on the railroad on which he was killed.

Hiram G. Gove, of Raymond, who was lodged in jail here some days ago to await trial on a charge of shooting at a neighbor in Raymond on account of disputed ownership of a cow, has become a raving maniac. On Friday he was taken to the Insane Asylum at Concord by Sheriff Kent, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Shephard of Raymond, both officers having their hands full to take care of the unfortunate man and prevent him from destroying property, injuring himself or others, or escaping. Before arrangements for his transfer to the Asylum were completed he smashed up everything smashable in and about his cell in the jail, and on the way to Concord broke a pane of glass in the car; and after arriving at the Asylum he made a sudden spring at a window, put his foot against the sash and went through into the open air, carrying the whole window with him. He was quickly secured, however, and safely lodged in the Asylum, to the great relief of both officers and of Sheriff Kent in particular, a furious lunatic not being a very pleasant person to have charge of.

At the adjourned parish meeting of the Universalist society, held Thursday evening, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Wardens, William Simes, John Hodgdon, 2d, Edward J. Moulton; Parish Clerk, Alfred Senter. It was voted to have a volunteer choir with a paid leader at the close of the present church year.

The Portsmouth City Guards have elected Edward F. Hickey captain. Hickey is one of the well-known "lightning drillists," and not quite twenty-one years of age.

On Friday forenoon the jury in the case of McIntire vs. Eastern Railroad, which had been on trial at Exeter most of the week, rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of three thousand dollars. The sum asked was $30,000.

The assignee's sale of the estate of A. H. Hill takes place to-day, Saturday. Morse & Ilsley, auctioneers.

In the case of the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire vs. the Eastern Railroad Company, which is an equity suit removed from the State Court, brought before the recent session of the United States Circuit Court in this city, counsel for the plaintiff moved to dismiss this bill without prejudice. To this the counsel for the defendants objected, and the motion was subsequently withdrawn. The defendants were allowed until July first to file an answer.

No Hotel has received during the past year more unlimited or well-merited praise from its guests than the American House, Boston. This famous Hotel has always borne a good name, and we congratulate the Proprietors on the reputation they have achieved.—Chicago Hotel Reporter.

—The old King of Gaboon, in Africa, is dead at the age of nearly one hundred. His eldest son, Adaude, at once, on succeeding him, cashiered the hundred women of his father's harem, liberating fifty slaves, and abolished the sacrifice of human beings at religious rites. Admiral Ribaut and staff, of the French squadron in the Gulf of Guinea, assisted at the coronation ceremonies. The Admiral gave the King a cow and a bull by way of starting a herd of cattle for his majesty.

GOOD ADVICE.

Come, all ye Bilious people,
Who would be free from ill,
And try that Magic Remedy,
The Little Giant Pill.
There is no sham about it,
'Tis honest, pure and true;
And all the good it promises,
Most faithfully will do.
If troubled with Sick Head-Ache,
'Twill cure the throbbing pain,
And soon its soothing influence,
Will make you well again.
Then try the Little Giant!
How good! words fail to tell!
But if you use it faithfully,
You will be strong and well.

Daily Chronicle.

—The bard of Europe is bombard just now.

—"Nobody knows to this day," says the Brooklyn Eagle, "what a time Noah had of it in the ark with the antediluvian ancestors of the present Kentucky mule."

—Mrs. Pratt of Brooklyn asks a legal separation from her husband just because he flung a pitcher at her, hit her with a lighted kerosene lamp, drew a knife across her neck and threatened to cut her throat, threw glass bottles at her, stuck a fork in her leg, poured hot tea over her, hit her in the back with a bootjack, and refused to give her money. When will wives learn that patience is their brightest ornament?

—In an interview with a Pittsburg reporter Don Cameron related the following business experience: "In 1861 and 1862 I employed every dollar I had in the world, together with a great deal of money belonging to other people, in manufacturing pig-iron. I kept the furnace in operation as long as I could borrow money to run it. The result was that I piled up over 7000 tons of iron, at a cost of $11.50 per ton. This immense pile of iron was the subject of much tribulation. There it lay for months, and there was no indication of an advance in price. I would occasionally go and look at it, and become heartsick at the gloomy prospect of getting my money back. At length pig-iron started upward; at first it advanced to $30 per ton, at which figure I sold a small quantity. Then it reached $50, $70, and finally $80 per ton, and when I had closed out that 7000 tons I found that I had realized an average profit of about $40 per ton. This was the first money I ever made."

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St. Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any large r sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative ever prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a genile sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy elief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. His offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water or houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or pigs, owned either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the Worst CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, writes as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG: My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

A Romance of War and Law.

The result of a suit before the Superior Civil Court on Thursday, in which George W. Ela, of New Hampshire, sued Major J. Homer Edgerly of this city to recover on a promissory note for $100 given by Edgerly during the war, has already been reported. There was, however, quite a romance connected with the case, which is worth telling. It seems that in the spring of 1864 the Third New Hampshire Regiment was lying at Hilton Head, S. C., and Mr. Edgerly, then First Lieutenant of Company E, came home on a leave of absence. Captain Richard Ela of his company entrusted to him $100 with which to purchase a sabre, belt and other accoutrements to be sent to him. Lieutenant Edgerly gave him his promissory note for the amount, as collateral for the money, and on arriving in Boston bought the sword, etc., and forwarded them to Captain Ela by Adams' Express. After about forty days' absence, Lieutenant Edgerly rejoined his regiment, which had by this time been transferred to Bermuda Hundreds on the James River, and was at once detailed to command Company H. The next day the regiment started on the march, and the following day Captain Ela was killed in a charge at Drury's Bluff. Lieutenant Edgerly had had no opportunity to secure the return of the promissory note, and it was accordingly found among Captain Ela's effects after his death, and bearing no indication of what it was given for. The suit was brought by Mr. George W. Ela, father and administrator of Captain Ela, to compel payment. At the time the note was made Lieutenant Edgerly was an "infant" in law, being only twenty years old, but the defence was not based on this ground, nor on the outlawing of the claim—the note being over thirteen years old—but on the ground that value had been rendered, and that the note was void. By lucky chance Captain Stearns, formerly of the Third New Hampshire, was found just before the trial, and he was able to testify to the essential facts. He came home on a leave of absence at the same time with Lieutenant Edgerly, and, after a few days passed in New Hampshire, they came to Boston together, visited a military out-fitter's on Washington street, and Captain Stearns bought some tactics and other articles for himself, while Lieutenant Edgerly bought the sabre and belt for Captain Ela. Captain Stearns also remembers seeing Captain Ela wear the sabre after his return to the regiment, and before the battle in which the latter lost his life. But for Captain Stearns' testimony, it must have been very difficult for Major Edgerly's counsel, Messrs. West and Gould, to prove his case, as the firm of which he bought the sabre has dissolved, and its members gone elsewhere, and the express receipts showing its delivery to Captain Ela have been long since destroyed. Major Edgerly is prominently known in Grand Army circles here, and is the officer who pulled down the rebel flag at Fort Fisher, for which he was breveted Major by President Lincoln.—Boston Globe.

The Cossack.

The Cossack is a little chap, about five feet five, even on his high heels, but at once sturdy and wiry. His weather-beaten face is shrewd, knowing and merry. His eyes are small, but keen, his mouth large, and between it and his pug nose—rather redder than the rest of his face—is a tuft or wisp of straw-colored moustache. His long, thick, straight hair matches his moustache in color and is cut sheer round by the nape of his neck. He wears a round oilskin peakless shako with a knowing cock to the right, to maintain which angle there is a strap round his chubby chin. Below the neck the Cossack is all boots and great-coat exterlorly. The great-coat, which is of thick gray blanketing, comes down below his knees; his boots come up to them. He is more armed than any man of his inches in Europe, is our little Cossack friend, and could afford to lose a weapon or two and yet be an averagely dangerous customer. Weapon number one is the long black flagless lance, with its venomous head that seems itching to make daylight through somebody. He carries a carbine, slung in an oil-cloth cover, on his back, the stock downward. In his belt is a long and well-made revolver in a leather case, and from the belt hangs a curved sword with no guard over its hilt. Through the chinks in his great-coat are visible glimpses of a sheepskin undercoat with the hair worn inside. His whip completes his personal appurtenances; he wears no spurs; and he rides, cocked up on a high saddle, with a leathern band strapped over it, a wiry little rat of a pony.

—Cuvier tells us the trunk of the elephant is composed of forty thousand or more small muscles, interlaced in all directions.

—The last target firing with the celebrated 81-ton gun at Shoeburyness, England, was a very expensive affair. The load consisted of 425 pounds of powder—the heaviest charge ever fired from rifled ordnance—and a 1700-pound shot, and the target against which the ball was fired cost $80,000 and consisted of 24 inches of iron and 15 inches of teak, backed by a heavy structure of piles. The shot penetrated almost entirely through the whole structure, and as the target can only be used four times in all, each discharge of the gun, without counting the cost of the powder and shot, represents $7500.

The War.

Advices from various sources in Asia Minor claim that the Turks in Armenia are in a critical position. The Russian forces investing Kars and Erzeroum have secured advantageous positions commanding both places, and their surrender is said to be certain.

Advices from Crete report a terrible state of affairs existing on the island. The Turks have combined against the Christian population, and are committing most horrible outrages. Women are insulted, ravished and debased, and the entire population are in a state of the greatest terror and excitement. It is rumored that British protection has been solicited.

The blowing up of a large Turkish monitor on the Danube, by Russian launches bearing torpedoes, is announced.

News and Notes.

The dwelling of Henry Tower, of North Clarendon, Vt., was burned Friday night, and his two sons, aged nine and eleven years, were burned with it.

In the United States Court at Hartford, Friday, Judge Shipman pronounced sentence on John C. Tracy, President, and James L. Chapman, Cashier of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, who had pleaded guilty respectively to deceiving the Comptroller of the Currency and to perjury and embezzlement by which the bank lost $598,000. Tracy was sentenced to the Connecticut State Prison for six years and six months at hard labor, and Chapman to the Connecticut State Prison at hard labor for fiveyears and a nominal fine of one dollar. Both these men moved in the best social circle, and were prominent in religious matters.

The teller of a bank in Great Barrington, Mass., stole $24,000 in 1871, and paid $1,500 to a man who helped him to escape. The bank officers later obtained proof of the facts, and by a lawsuit have recovered the $1,500.

A curious episode occurred at a fashionable party at Providence the other evening. Among the guests was a young, handsome and richly-dressed woman who had been recently engaged to a New Yorker of high standing, who accompanied her. She wore an elegant antique bracelet, the gift of her lover, who said it was an heirloom of his family, brought over from Holland. A New York woman present, after scrutinizing the ornament, startled the company by remarking that it was the same bracelet which her cousin had lost in a New York theatre and which contained a picture of Miss Cary. The bracelet was opened, and sure enough, the identical picture was revealed. In the flutter that ensued the would-be bridegroom vanished, and hasn't been seen since.

The Turkish Government has restored to the University of Pesth the valuable library known as the Corinna library, carried off by the Turks when they overran Hungary. The restoration was received by the Hungarians with public demonstrations of joy. Parts of Hungary favor the Turks and are antagonistic to Russia.

Jonathan P. Cilley, the present Adjutant-General of Maine, is a son of Hon. Jonathan Cilley, who was killed in a duel near Bladensburg, Maryland, February 24, 1838, while a member of Congress from Maine, by William J. Graves, member from Kentucky. The latter died at Louisville in 1848. Cilley's second in that memorable duel, ex-Senator George W. Jones of Iowa, is still living, and Graves' second, the late ex-Gov. Henry A. Wise of Virginia, died but a few months ago.

New Hampshire Items.

The Rhode Island base ball club were defeated by the Manchesters on the grounds of the latter, Friday afternoon, by a score of 6 to 1.

Joseph Austin, who was shot by his stepson at Bow last week, died Friday night.

The report that the Faculty of Dartmouth have forbidden any student to smoke, dance, drink spirituous liquors or play billiards, is explained by the vote passed some weeks ago, that no student who expended money for these purposes should be considered as being in such circumstances as to need a scholarship and consequently should be denied any if application was made.

Political.

Gov. Kemper of Virginia seems determined to make "chivalry," which is the Southern name for murder, unfashionable in his State. He has instituted a rigorous search for the murderers of the two revenue officers in Lee County, and says of his intentions: "While this affair is grossly exaggerated, I want it distinctly understood that I scorn the idea that Virginia cannot preserve the peace within her own borders under any and all circumstances. Any intimation that she cannot is a slander upon the good name of the Commonwealth. I have the force to uphold the arm of the law, and you may state, and I do not care how strong you put it, that should affairs in Lee County or anywhere else in the State demand it, I would call out the whole militia and command them in person." When the guilty men are discovered and brought to justice the public will believe the Governor means what he says.

In the next Electoral College the South will poll 138 solid democratic votes. Only New York (35 votes) and Indiana (15 votes) are needed to elect a President in 1880. In these two States the democrats can consolidate all their money. These won and with the solid South besides we shall have 188 votes, and that is more than is required to elect. The republicans can have every other State. The death knell of republicanism is sounded, and a restored Union is near at hand. With the triumph of democracy, which is so certain, the party understood from the beginning to be an American, not one, retired from office because he wore the gray, and had the manhood to be proud of it, and refused to forswear himself for a pitiful salary. The South need not go North for a President in 1880 unless she chooses.—Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer.

The New York Tribune, which has been so determined an enemy of "carpet-bag governments" for years past, now suggests to Gov. Stone of Mississippi that the only difference between him and a carpet-bag governor "seems to be that the latter could not enforce the laws, while the former can but will not. The carpet-bagger's case is the better of the two." And it adds: "Gov. Nicholls will prove his ability to govern Louisiana by the promptness with which he exterminates the bulldozer. He should do what his party blamed his predecessor for not doing, and should lose no time about it."

The Deacon's Sunday.

"Beautiful! beautiful!" mentally ejaculated Deacon Barnes at the close of a sermon about heaven. "Those are my sentiments exactly."

And so enwrapt was he with his thought, as he pushed out of church, that he forgot to ask lame Mrs. Howe to ride home with him, as was his usual custom.

"Perhaps it is just as well," he thought, "for she is a worldly old woman, and would probably have drawn my thoughts away from heaven."

At the dinner table his son exclaimed, "Oh, father, I have a situation at last!"

"Have you forgotten it is Sunday, John?" asked his father, sternly. "Don't let me hear any more such talk."

John ate his dinner in silence. How could his situation be a wrong to speak of on Sunday? He was so thankful for it that it seemed to come from the hand of God. God knew all about the restless month in which he had answered an advertisement every day. When the minister gave thanks in church for all the mercies of the past week, John's heart gave a grateful throb, and he determined anew to acknowledge God in all his ways. John ate his dinner in silence, while his father thought about heaven. In the afternoon Mr. Barnes' nephew, a stranger in the place, came over from his boarding-place, opposite, and sat on the piazza talking with John.

"I can't allow this, Tom," said Mr. Barnes, at the door with the Bible in his hands; "you must not sit here breaking the Sabbath. Go back to your boarding-place and read some good book."

Tom started up angrily, and spent the afternoon fishing and bathing with an old colored man, his only other acquaintance in the place, while Deacon Barnes sat in a rocker on the piazza with a handkerchief over his face, and thought about heaven. Presently two little grand-daughters came out on the piazza with a large picture-book and ran down near him. There was a flutter of leaves and a great deal of buzzing, as the little yellow heads bent over the book, and finally they laughed outright.

"Children, where's your mother?" very sternly demanded Deacon Barnes, springing to his feet.

"Up stairs, putting baby to sleep," they answered together.

Deacon Barnes strode into the hall.

"Ellen! Ellen!" he shouted. "I should think you might keep these children quiet on the Sabbath. They won't let me even think."

Ellen had been awake all night with a fretful baby. She had hushed him, and he had just fallen asleep when her father's voice roused her and woke the baby.

"Please send them up stairs," she said very wearily.

And all that sultry afternoon she amused the three children in a close upper room, while their grandfather rocked and fanned himself and—thought of heaven!

Turkish Information.

Sultan—The sovereign of the Turkish Empire—the recognized organ of all executive power in the State. His headquarters are at Constantinople.

Porte—The Government of the Turkish Empire.

Sublime Porte—The official name of the government, so called from the gate of the Sultan's palace.

Grand Vizier—The chief minister of the Turkish Empire.

Divan—The Turkish Council of State—the "Cabinet."

Grand Mufti—Chief Interpreter of the Mohammedan law and head of the "wise men"—jurists, theologians and literati—who assemble for consultation on his order. He is mostly styled the Chief of the Faithful. A writer says a fetwa or decree from him would summon around the standard of the Prophet all the fanatical hordes of Islam to fight to the death against the "infidels, in the firm belief that death on the battlefield is a sure passport to Paradise."

Pasha—Governors, Viceroys, commanders, civil and military rulers of provinces.

Beys—About the same as Pashas.

Sheik—The name given the heads of Arabian tribes or clans. It means elder, or eldest in dignity and authority.

Osmanli—A Turkish official.

Islam—The religion of Mohammed.

Islams—Mohommedans themselves.

Mussulman—A follower of Mohammed.

Ottoman Empire—Another name for the Turkish Empire, and derives its name from Osman, its founder.

Osmanlis—The Turks proper.

Not all the followers of the Prophet are Turks. In European Turkey there are in round numbers five million Mohammedans, less than half of whom are Osmanlis, the rest being of Slavonic descent, but none the less ardent worshippers of Islam.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—It was an efficient remedy suggested by the learned judge who had been offended by repeated disorders in the court room. Speaking to the bailiff, he said: "Sir, if this noise occurs again, I shall speak to your successor."

—A youth of six years, on returning from church inquired of his father if those who engaged in silent prayer on entering the church, all made use of the same words. His father was unable to inform him, but asked what lead to the enquiry. The boy replied that he overheard the prayer of Mr. X, who on bowing his head made use in an audible voice of the following words: "I wish to heaven I had bought a barrel of flour before this cussed war broke out. Always my luck."

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking Dr. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; and recommend you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been a as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, 75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that four pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherre, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MYHOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend these Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor and agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The committee on flowers request the assistance of the ladies in working up evergreen into wreaths, streamers, etc., and invite them to meet this (Monday) afternoon for that purpose, in upper Franklin Hall—entrance on Fleet street. Persons who have wreaths, bouquets or cut flowers which they desire to have placed upon the graves of kindred or friends, are requested to write the name of the deceased and the cemetery upon a card and attach it to the flowers before giving them in charge of the committee. By so doing, mistakes will be avoided. Such memorials are requested to be left at the hall on Wednesday, as early in the day as possible.

The committee on marking graves desire, preparatory to decoration on Memorial Day, to have a flag planted on every grave; but many graves are without headstones and omissions are quite possible. If on Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning any one cognizant of the location of a grave should find it unmarked by a flag, a notice of that fact left at Stavers' store, under Franklin Hall, will cause it to be at once attended to,—and the committee earnestly request that such notice may be given them.

JOTTINGS.

A distinguished son of Portsmouth, Hon. Charles H. Harris, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Kingdom, is in town, for a short home visit.

Mr. Albion K. P. Deering, one of our well known citizens, died on Saturday morning of consumption, after a long illness. During the palmy days of shipbuilding at this port, the firm of Deering & Yeaton, of which the deceased was senior member, for many years did a large part of the rigging work done here, and had the reputation of being skillful and faithful workmen. Mr. Deering was a Knight Templar and a member of other societies, and was prominent in the Order of Odd Fellows.

At the assignee's sale of real estate of Aaron H. Hill, bankrupt, which occurred Saturday forenoon under a license from the United States District Court, Messrs. Morse & Ilsley, auctioneers, sold all the right of Mr. Hill in the homestead at No. 120 State street, for $5100, and the same right in the dwelling house and land at No. 4 Court street, for $1250. The property was bid off by a gentleman named Little, belonging in Portland, a brother of Mrs. Hill.

Oscar Joseph Pfeiffer of this city is assigned to give a political disputation with a fellow-student at Dartmouth College, on "Is our Government sufficiently responsible to the people?" at the Commencement exercises, June 28.

Miss Emily E. Tomlinson, of this city, is teaching the school in district No. 6, in Seabrook.

The Lawrence American says that reports are in circulation to the effect that the Eastern Railroad will, in some unexplained way, rid itself of or repudiate its lease of the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad, and make use of the Boston & Maine tracks between Dover and Portland.

NUMISMATICS, ETC.

The origin of coin is involved in great obscurity, and the question of leather or wood being first used has never been fairly settled. Herodotus ascribes the invention of coin to the Lydians, and Pliny attributes it to Bacchus. The Romans commenced the making of silver coin in the year 480 and gold about the year 640; the Jews had coins before the time of Maccabeus, which they designated shekels, talents and drams; and of the earliest coiners of metal, were also the Chinese. Coin was first made by placing the metal between two dies and striking with a hammer. This was used in England until the reign of William III. In France the mill was used from 1553 to 1585, and alternated between that and the hammer process until 1645. England took the mill in 1623, and in 1662 its use was universally established. The rapidity of its work can be estimated by the fact that four boys can strike 30,000 pieces in an hour. The first gold coined in England, as far as there is any account, was by Henry II., and the first issue of copper the farthings and half pence made during the reign of Charles II. Shells were at an early day current for coin in the Maldives, Indies, Congo and particularly in the States of the Great Mogul; also fruits, cocoa, maize, etc., were used in Mexico and in the East Indies; but maize ceased to be common money as soon as America was discovered.

A few days ago, when at the residence of Mr. James F. Jenness on Hanover street, we were invited to look at some old coins; and supposing we should be entertained by the sight of perhaps a few hundred, such as one generally sees on exhibition, we accepted the invitation and proceeded to the repository in which the ancients were kept. Hardly had the door opened when we were made aware that it was to no ordinary entertainment we had been invited, but to a feast of rare dishes of ye olden time that would have quickened the pulse of the numismatist or antiquarian. We were first shown two large cases containing specimens of silver and copper coins comprising nearly 40,000, enough to supply ten or twelve museums with more complete collections than are usually seen on exhibition at the present day.

In silver, the oldest piece which we were shown was a Roman scudi, dated 1236. Mr. Jenness' collection of foreign silver coin numbers from ten thousand to twelve thousand pieces, embracing specimens from almost every country and from one to six hundred years old. In American silver dollars he has from the years 1793 and 1794 up to the last issue, five or six complete collections, excepting for the year 1804; [it is said that only five of this latter date ever came from the mint, and many who supposed they had one in their collection have been sadly grieved when they discovered that the date was altered from the issue of 1801;] in half-dollars and quarters-dollars ten or twelve full sets; and in ten, five and three cent pieces his collection is complete. The first issue of three cent pieces was in 1851, and it continued until 1859. There were no silver dollars coined in the year 1793, nor from 1805 to 1835, nor 1837 and 1839. Those of 1836 and 1838 were only patterns, with a flying eagle on the reverse. Of half dollars none were issued in the years 1793, 1798, 1799, 1800, and 1816. Of quarter dollars none were made of dates 1793, 1794, 1795; from 1797 to 1803; from 1804 to 1814, 1816, 1817, 1829 and 1830. Dimes were not coined in 1793, 1794, 1795, 1799, 1806, 1808, 1810, 1812, 1813, and from 1815 to 1819. Half dimes were not coined in 1793, 1798, 1799, 1804, 1806 to 1828.

The silver dollars which are rare, are of the years 1794, 1804, 1851, 1852, 1858; of half dollars, 1796, 1797, 1804, and 1815; quarter dollars, 1796, 1823, 1844 and 1846; dimes, 1796, 1797, 1798, 1802 and 1846; half dimes, 1794, 1802, 1803, 1805, 1846; and three cent pieces, the date of 1855.

One of the oldest copper coins was a Jewish shekel, and like the style of all ancient currency had square corners. In foreign copper coin we might safely estimate from 15,000 to 17,000 specimens in this collection.

Of the silver Pine Tree Shilling, and sixpenny and four-penny pieces, which are difficult to obtain, we noticed some twenty or thirty specimens.

In American copper cents he has fifteen or sixteen complete collections, and about one-half as many of half cents. It seems quite conclusive that no cents were coined in 1815. The mint shows no record of coinage of that date, and no collector has seen a genuine 1815 cent; some changed from 1813 have been in the market, but the counterfeit has been usually detected. In 1856 the nickel (or "buzzard," as many called it) cent was first introduced, and is very rare, as is also the date of 1857; copper cents of 1793, 1799, 1804, 1823 and 1857 are very rare. A cent of 1804 is valued at fifty dollars; 1793 and 1799, at forty dollars, if in good condition. Of half cents there were none coined in the years 1798, 1799, 1801, 1812 to 1824, 1830, 1837, 1838, 1839, 1858 and 1859.

It is very remarkable that in so large and rare a collection that the die on almost every piece is as perfect and legible as when issued from the mint.

A feature which brought up some pleasing reminiscences, was the sight of the twelve and a half cent (or "nine-penny") pieces, the price in our youthful days for admission to a concert,—and the four-penny that would buy molasses candy enough for every scholar in school to have a lick at; and we could not help pondering, as we examined one after another of the more ancient coins, on their unwritten histories, of the worlds they perchance helped to conquer, how in the changes of life they had borne a part in every happiness and mingled in the shadows of every grief, and whether in the treasury of the king or in the hands of the peasant, have been the great moving yet dumb actors in life's struggles.

Mr. Jenness has also collected the various bank bills that were circulated by the towns and cities in the several States, also fractional currency issued by the government and by our merchants during the war; Confederate and Continental money of the different valuations; and postage stamps from the Franklin three-cent issue up to those in present use.

In medals, both silver and copper, are those of the several Presidents from Washington up to the present Chief Magistrate, and many others of more ancient date.

Mr. Jenness has not confined his collection to coins and paper money, but has also gathered in old documents and other articles of interest. Among the papers is an autograph book, which was a present to Mrs. Jenness, containing the signatures of President Lincoln, and the Vice President, Cabinet and Members of the Senate and House of Representatives during President Lincoln's term. Mr. Jenness considers this as one of the principal attractions in his cabinet.

A pocket book, which was presented to Mr. Jenness, was accompanied with the following note, which tells its story: "This is the kind of a Pocket Book was in use a hundred years ago. It belonged to Captain Benjamin Jenkins and the two dollar bill in it is the kind of money the army was paid with in the Revolutionary War. I have heard him say, after they gained their independence, in less than a year they could not buy a pair of shoes for a hundred dollars of this money. I have heard him tell his sufferings in the war. 'Tis fresh in my memory now as some time ago. He was captain of the Sea Fencibles company in the war of 1812, at Newcastle. J. Witte."

Of miscellaneous articles in the collection we also noticed an English pewter plate brought over by the Gardner family, and a composition or brass face of a clock of date 1609, as fresh as if just taken from the factory, which was found by Mr. Nathaniel D. Miller amongst some old composition; also a U. S. Seal of 1802, and the upper point of the rod which once graced the spire of the North Church; an almanac two hundred years old, and a deed of the land now owned by Mr. Henry S. Hartshorn near Sagamore Bridge, of which the following is a copy:

"These presents testifies I Henry Sherburn of Portsmouth In Piscataqua River yeoman for a valuable consideration In hand paid by Tobias Lear of ye same place Mariner have bargained and sold, aliened, assigned and sett over and by these presents doth bargain, sell, assign and sett over unto ye said Tobias Lear, a parcel of land from a marked spot in ye fence on ye northwest side down to ye water side and so up to ye head of a Cove against Thomas Onions and thence on a strait line to a little field that was first fenced in by Jonathan Sherburn and so striking on ye northwest of ye highway to a great rock allowing two rod for a highway; and a parcel of fresh marsh lying up in the woods, containing by estimation four acres be it more or less, said parcel of fresh marsh adjoineth to some marsh ye said Elizabeth Lear who possesseth as also a parcel of salt marsh lying near ye house wherein Tobias Langdon late lived containing by estimation five acres be it more or less as it is now fenced in, to have and to hold ye above mentioned tracts of land upland and marsh to him ye said Tobias Lear his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forever with all ye privilege thereunto belonging to said Henry Sherburn his heirs, executors and administrators and for every of them doth covenant, promise to and with ye said Tobias Lear his heirs, executors administrators and assigns and with every of them ye as present and before ye unsealing hereof he standeth seized and possest of all ye before mentioned land in a good estate of fee simple and that he hath not heretofore made any former bill of sale or mortgaged ye said premises nor any part thereof to any other person but to he his heirs executors, administrators will all times hereafter defend ye title thereof unto him ye said Tobias Lear, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns against all persons whosoever in witness whereof I have hereunto sett my hand and seal dated in Portsmouth aforesaid this first day of January anno domino 1667 and ye 19th year of ye reign of our Sovereign Lord Charles ye second King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland and Defender of ye faith &c. There were many other interesting and valuable articles which time did not permit us to note, but among the last that attracted our attention were the Directories of Portsmouth from the first to the last publication. The first one was published in the year 1821, by Wibird Penhallow. The former owner of this copy was evidently a jolly fellow, and in notes which were written against many of the names, his neighbors' traits of character were commented on according to his ideas of their qualifications. We give a few samples: "George Ayers, mason, candidate for President;" "John S. Cutts, baker, philosophical;" "Peter Emery, smart fellow;" "John Gaines, lost his boots in the town clock." Those who were in the habit of indulging in liquor he classified from the "moderate drinker" and "drunk on every Saturday night," to the "all the time drunk." Among the list of streets and lanes we find many of which some of the present generation have never heard,—Cotters lane, Cold lane, Cores street, Fetter lane, George street, Gravesend street, Horse lane, Methodist lane, Puddle lane, Short street, Windmill lane, etc. The preface written by Mr. Penhallow shows the kindly feeling he entertained toward his townsmen: "The author of the Portsmouth Directory feels it a duty he owes himself to declare, that in mentioning the different professions and occupations of the inhabitants of this town, he has not exercised any preference to one more than the other; as a book of this kind is a new thing in this place, it may be thought by some that he has evinced partiality when nothing of the kind was intended." The memory of Wibird Penhallow is fresh in the minds of many, and we feel moved to express (in the words so often repeated by him) a confident hope that in the "great hereafter" he has found the ever "Pleasant day—just so."

Mr. Jenness commenced when a school boy, twenty-one years ago, to collect coins for his museum, and was indefatigable in his efforts to obtain every attainable kind issued by the several nations. Mr. John Elwyn, a connoisseur on this subject, was of great assistance, often calling at Mr. Jenness' office and helping to classify and give the coins their standard valuation. The original value of this collection was about $5,000; its present value will approach $10,000. Mr. Jenness has had numerous offers but they have not proved tempting enough for him to dispose of it. The coins are always kept in the bank, excepting when taken out for a friend or visitor to see.

Nerves That Quiver,

Heads that ache, stomachs that inflict dyspeptic torments, muscles and joints racked with the rheumatism, are infallibly restored to health by the celebrated elixir, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine prescribed by physicians, possessing infinite purity, and which no one takes in vain who is afflicted with any of the numerous complaints to which it is adapted. It frequently happens that so-called remedies fail to produce a permanent effect. This is because they are merely palliatives, and therefore do not remove the cause of the maladies, whose symptoms they alter after a time cease to ameliorate. This is notably the case with opiates and sedative drugs. It is not so, however, with Hostetter's Bitters, which are a searching specific that conquers the disease as well as banishes its indicia.

The Teeth of Dyspeptics.

Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth, unless its effects be counteracted with Sozodont. This pure vegetable antacid and disinfectant protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them, and preventing the formation of tartar.

A wretched mistake! Not to buy Spalding's Glue.

It is very safe to say that the most fastidious guest never leaves the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., dissatisfied with his visit to that famous hostelry.

FOR BREAKFAST many persons find coffee positively injurious. Walter Baker & Co. prepare a "Breakfast Cocoa," which preserves the nutritive portion of Cocoa, yet leaves no sensation of heaviness after its use. Highly recommended by physicians, and sold by all grocers everywhere.

"Hurrah for the next who dies," exclaims the irreverent host. Better hurrah for the man who lives by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures coughs, colds and lung difficulties. Price 25 cents.

Daily Chronicle.

—An enterprising bank watchman in Eufaula, Ala., placed some burglars' tools near the vault, killed a hen and scattered the blood about the place, and discharged his pistol several times, creating the impression that he had driven off a band of burglars. The hen was found, and prospects of a reward vanished.

—A young gentleman from Chicago—the Tribune recounts the adventure—was insulted in a cafe in Paris by a professional bully and duelist. The friends of the American insisted that he must fight, and by a judicious use of stimulants induced the timid soul to send a challenge. The fatal morning came and the enraged duelists confronted each other on the Belgian frontier. "Keep cool!" said the Chicago warrior's second. "Stick your sword into him—that's all you have to do; never mind any of his monkey-shines, but go in just as if he belonged to St. Louis and hadn't them tom-cat mustaches." Despite the assurance that his friends, if worse came to the worst, would have his remains put up on ice and shipped to Chicago, the American showed no signs of fight until he was face to face with the enemy, when, to the astonishment of the bystanders, he parried and thrust like a madman, and in twenty seconds ran one of the best swordsmen in Europe through the throat. He bears his triumph with modesty, for his confidential advisers know the secret of his sudden burst of valor. When the duel began the horrible thought flashed across his mind that the undershirt he had on had been worn a week and was in need of repair, and that he would cut a disgraceful figure if he were wounded and stripped.

LANGDON PARK
PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any large sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative we could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England.
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below the water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and hereafter on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after a time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, but shall suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city, or into any place of filth be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river below water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that a person within his family is sick with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, yard or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time to be limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier shall neglect to comply with the notice within the time so limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier,

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 26.

The Council of the "Ladies' Mt. Vernon Association" assembled at the historic mansion last Tuesday, and is still in session. Mrs. Sweat, Hudson, Harper, Halsted, Townsend, Leighton, Ball, Ware and Comyges, representing the following States as Vice Regents in the order named: Maine, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kansas and Delaware,—California, South Carolina and the District of Columbia being represented by proxies, and Mrs. Leighton ably presiding over the deliberations. All of Tuesday and Wednesday were consumed in considering the propositions of the six competitors who bid for the exclusive privilege of the transportation by boat of pilgrims to the Mt. Vernon shrine, from and to Washington,—the eight year contract of popular Captain Hollingshead expiring next April. As heretofore conducted the business has been a close monopoly, no other boat save Hollingshead's being permitted to land passengers at the wharf of the Mt. Vernon estate. The contract stipulated that his boat was to make a daily trip (Sundays excepted) when navigation was possible, paying twenty-five per cent. of all fares collected to the Association, the round trip being fixed at one dollar per head for adults. Some idea of the profits accruing from this source of revenue to the Association may be had by the statement that excursion parties, ranging from fifty up to eight hundred are frequent during Spring, Summer and Autumn, and the grounds are never without some visitors, even during the Winter, when the ice permits navigation. To the fortunate boat owner the monopoly was a rich bonanza, particularly during the season of 1876 in carrying Centennials. A knowledge of these facts has brought a large number of competitors to the front, some of the present bidders offering a royalty of fifty per cent. on every dollar collected, for the exclusive right to the passenger traffic.

Mrs. Briggs' revelations, a few years ago, convinced the public that a "ring" was administering the affairs of Mt. Vernon, trading upon the nation's veneration for the illustrious dead buried there, and brought about the incontinent retirement of the resident regent, who, with her little circle of subordinates, neither toiled or spun, but just lived in clover on the banks of the placid Potomac, undisturbed by the struggles for bread of their less fortunate fellows of the outside world! Possibly a suspicion that the benefits of this reciprocal arrangement between the steamboat man and the successor of Mrs. C—, are to be applied as during her administration, accounts for the clamor of those familiar with the facts for the abatement of the monopoly, and the dissatisfaction arising from the arbitrary restrictions imposed upon all visitors in the matter of transportation; whatever its cause, there is a general desire to see a more liberal method inaugurated.

The Nation's Government representation at the Paris Exposition has been before the Cabinet, Mr. Evarts proposing the appointment of a provisional commission to make preliminary arrangements, and to make it permanent in case Congress makes the needed appropriation to a creditable display—about $300,000 being thought necessary—otherwise to drop the matter. No decision was reached.

The matter of issuing a proclamation of neutrality has also been discussed in Cabinet session, but it appeared the sense of those present to defer action for the time being, the matter to be decided by future events in Europe.

The indifference of Governor Stone and minor officials of Mississippi over the cowardly Chisholm family murder, and their determination to take no steps to secure the punishment of the murderers, has aroused a good deal of indignation here; and it has been rendered more intense and outspoken by the unprovoked assassination of Laws, the colored member of the Louisiana Legislature; and the President's reported purpose to notify Stone that he is expected to promptly move in the matter, is a leading subject of conversation among officials, about the hotels and on the streets.

French affairs still occupy a good degree of the time devoted to our trans-Atlantic brethen. Mr. Evarts is reported to regard the recent ultramontane coup d' etat as very materially complicating the situation of affairs there. McMahon is roundly abused by everybody for his share in what now looks very much like a conspiracy, except by the hopelessly Bourbon publicists and the blindly devoted adherents of the Roman Church.

The assaults of the Richmond politicians have at last been effectual in the decapitation of Miss Van Lew as postmaster or postmistress, and the substitution of a Col. Forbes. It is asserted that the hand of Mosby, who is assigned the same influential position with the present Administration as with the last, is plainly perceptible in this Richmond business, and the removal is being mercilessly criticized in many quarters.

The President and heads of Departments have never been more sorely beset by the legions of office seekers than since their return from their New York visit, the White House and grounds being crowded from early morning till the appearance of the stars at night. Baltimore politicians who have heretofore been accorded the custody of the champion belt for cheek, have lost it during the struggle of the past few days, and it will be carried in triumph somewhere "down in Dixie." The Terrible "Alarm."

The Army and Navy Journal—the best authority on such matters among the press of the United States—thinks but little of the English "fish torpedo," and much less of Admiral Porter's famous torpedo boat, the "Alarm," though it belives the Ericsson torpedo has immense possibilities. Here is what it says of Admiral Porter's "terrible" pet:

It will be well to bear in mind that while England has its Beresford to explain and extol the fish torpedo, America has certain journals of high repute which furnish sensational pictorial representations and extol "Admiral Porter's system of torpedo warfare," particularly the Alarm, with its terrible beak. This sea-monster, it is stated, has the power of sending iron-clads of all classes to the bottom; hence the admirers of Admiral Porter's system lament that our Russian friends have not an Alarm in the Black Sea, as it would enable them, it is believed, to destroy the Turkish iron-clad fleet and thereby facilitate the transportation of war material for the Russian army in Armenia, besides other important advantages resulting from the command of that sea. We would fain abstain from expressing an adverse opinion of the Alarm, which, so far, has only served to entertain curious spectators, particularly the naval attaches of the several foreign legations at Washington. The subject being too grave, in a national point of view, to be passed in silence, we deem it important to expose the true nature of the U. S. torpedo ram built in accordance with "Admiral Porter's system of torpedo warfare." In the first place, then, the speed of the Alarm is inferior to that of the iron-clad ships in the English navy. Secondly, her sides are so weak that a single well-directed broadside, however inferior in point of calibre, would sink or render her utterly unserviceable. We call special attention to the important point that the Alarm cannot harm unless coming in actual contact with the object intended to be struck. Now, such a contact becomes impossible unless (1) the speed of the torpedo ram be greater than that of the opponent, and (2) unless its hull be capable of resisting shot. Neither of these conditions being fulfilled in Admiral Porter's torpedo ram, it must be considered practically worse than useless. Agreeably to the published statements before referred to, now before us, the Alarm has very low freeboard—a great advantage, we are informed, as presenting a small target to the enemy's fire. But this circumstance shows that the vessel, notwithstanding her inferior speed, presents minimum immersed section, and that she is incapable of carrying the necessary thickness of armor and the weight of the powerful machinery indispensable to attain a speed equal to that of the European iron-clad ships. In the face of these facts the American public is informed that "Admiral Porter's torpedo vessel Alarm is probably the most formidable craft afloat, not excepting the Italian iron-clads with their 100-ton guns, and in time of war will form a model for a fleet of like steamers." This statement scarcely demands refutation; but let us imagine the puny torpedo ram essaying an attack on the impregnable Dandolo, and that instead of running away, the Italian directs his fire toward his assailant. It needs no demonstration to show that the 2,000 pound projectile from the 100-ton gun of the floating iron castle would rake and sink the frail torpedo at the first fire. Referring to the 15-inch smooth bore gun mounted at the bow of the Alarm, visitors have repeatedly put the question: What is the object of this gun, which, being wholly unprotected by armor, will be dismounted, and the gunners serving it killed by a single well-directed shell? Again, if protected by armor of adequate strength, of what avail is this gun against the armor of modern iron-clad ships? We deem it needless to criticise the complex electric apparatus and other curious mechanical devices by which this useless torpedo vessel is intended to be manœuvred. The foregoing particulars will convince the friends of the Czar that there is no occasion to lament the absence of the Alarm on the Black Sea. The truth is, that the Sultan has not a single seagoing iron-clad ship which could not outrun and easily destroy Admiral Porter's torpedo ram.

The War.

The following details are given of the destruction on the Danube of the Turkish monitor by torpedoes: Two young Russian engineer officers attempted to reach the monitor early in the evening with torpedoes, but were discovered and driven back by a heavy fire. At three o'clock in the morning they returned in two skiffs, carrying a chain of small torpedoes filled with dynamite. No lookout being kept about the monitor they securely lodged the chain across her bows. On their return they discharged the whole series of torpedoes by means of an electric battery. The vessel immediately disappeared.

The trouble in Constantinople between the Softas and the Porte has been settled by the arrest and punishment of the leaders.

News and Notes.

It is announced that the great twelve-inch rifled guns, the first made for the Government of the United States, will be cast at the South Boston foundry on Wednesday.

The Russian newspapers are growling at England, since Lord Derby's letter, and the St. Petersburg News, semi-official, says that a war between England and Russia is only a question of time, since the actual seat of the Moslem power in Europe is not at Constantinople but in London. A grim jest.

The German ironclad fleet has been ordered to the Mediterranean.

Thomas Nesbitt, a hitherto highly respected citizen of Newark, N. J., has been arrested on a charge of being one of a gang of conductors, brakemen, ferrymen, etc., who have robbed the Newark Branch Railroad to the tune of $100 a day for the past four years.

M. T. Hatch, editor of the Newport, Vt., Palladium, in his last issue published an article derogatory to one Miss Hadlock. Friday afternoon, as Hatch was passing a store in North Troy, Miss Hadlock emerged therefrom, threw a handful of red pepper in his eyes, completely blinding him, then drew a large horse-whip and gave him a severe thrashing in the face and upon his head, and finally rotten-egged him. Both are respectably connected. Hatch was a captain in the army during the late rebellion.

Gen. Grant and party arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, Sunday evening.

A bloodstone ring cut with a family crest, and worn by an officer in the Custer massacre, has just reached Washington. The mother of the officer to whom it belonged began a search for it on the news of his death, and a short time ago it was recovered from a member of Crazy Horse's band.

The four Biddeford, Me., boys, who started in pursuit of such adventures as the dime novels describe, met with no adventures, but encountered practical difficulties about foot and lodging, and went ingloriously home.

J. E. Wolfe, of Newburyport, has issued the second number of his Word of Truth, containing (like the first number) a list of all the individuals and firms in that city paying a special tax for the sale of spirituous and malt liquors, followed by texts of Scripture. He asks the following conundrum: "We wonder if the grocery-firms selling strong drink would have been so fearfully outraged if we had come out with a free advertisement stating that the choicest flour, halibut and bacon were kept constantly on hand?"

The men who escaped from the bark Ella Vose at the time of the collision with the bark Popono, on the Newfoundland banks, arrived at Halifax, N. S., on Saturday. They state that Capt. Doody and nine men remained on the Vose when they left. The Popono struck the Vose amidships, crushing through the covering boards and smashing the largest boat. As the vessels separated Capt. Doody was heard to call out, "Stand by us, we are sinking." The Popono cruised around several hours, but found no trace of the other vessel.

Mme. Titiens, the prima donna, is dangerously ill in London. She underwent an operation for dropsy recently, and on Thursday and Friday the worst fears were entertained, but Saturday there were some encouraging indications.

A crowd of drunken roughs went from Syracuse, N.Y., to a hotel just outside the edge of the city, Sunday morning, and announced their intention to clean out the place. They commenced on the barkeeper, who did some good shooting, killing one and badly wounding two others of the ruffians, with three shots. The rest of the gang were arrested.

The Attorney-General of Mississippi confirms the report that Gov. Stone is resolved not to "stir up" the horrible murder case in Kemper County, for he publishes a letter saying the Governor has not consulted him about the matter in any way. He adds an opinion of his own which will meet the concurrence of the public: "If the press of the State persist in their attempts to palliate, excuse, or justify such violence, murder, and brutal assassination, it will only serve to invite a repetition of such disgraceful savagery and admonish all good citizens of the State to flee to Mexico or Santo Domingo for a better enforcement of the law and for a higher grade of civilization."

New Hampshire Items.

Hiram Beckman, living next to the South Seabrook church, some time since built an ornamental slat fence in front of his house and grounds. Being made of pine it has on several occasions been badly defaced by cutting with a knife, pickets have been pulled off, and a short time since (in the night) the small gate was taken off and was found in the woods with the slats broken, evidently done with rocks. Mr. Beckman has the wreck of the gate swinging in place in front of his house, evidently hoping the sight of it will satisfy the destructiveness of his tormentors and elicit the sympathy of good citizens.—Exeter News-Letter.

Several French citizens who left Nashua a few weeks ago for Manitoba have returned, and many others would be glad to if they had any way of doing so; but as many of them who went had only money enough to carry them there, they are unable to return to their homes. The railroads carried them from Nashua to Manitoba for $18 each, but will not bring them back short of $200. Therefore they are obliged to remain there and live the best they can. Some of the party that have returned say that they walked about 200 miles, and, by paying $50 after that succeeded in reaching Nashua.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaints, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I inclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but as I gain daily in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 16, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving my praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines, but with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been travelling and visiting medical springs and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that would only change my case, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who ask me about them. Please send me three more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, May 28th.

Charles S. Walker, who with his wife has for some time past kept an establishment on some one of the streets near the river side, was up for an assault on his wife. He promised to leave town in a hurry and go back to Maine, where he came from, if the Court would allow him,—the Court was only too happy to have Charles emigrate, and Monday afternoon he shook the dust from his feet and went over the river. If the stories told by the police are true, his wife and the "establishment" might both follow him without inflicting irreparable damage on the city.

Bridget Scott was to the fore to answer to a charge of stealing five dollars from somebody, but the complainant did not appear, and as there seemed really no ground for the charge the case was dismissed.

The civil business of this Court is rapidly increasing, the legislature at its last session having passed an act allowing suits in which the amount in dispute does not exceed $100 to be brought in police court, s though suits for sums exceeding $13.33 may still be brought in the Supreme Court. After the amendment making it obligatory to bring all such petty suits before a police magistrate has been incorporated in the constitution and declared in force, a further increase in business must take place. Judge Batchelder has drawn up a set of rules for governing and expediting the civil business of the court, which will be to the mutual advantage of the magistrate and the lawyers, as well as the litigants.

"BLAST THE ROCKS."

Messrs. Editors: Being a believer in "keeping the ball in motion" when it is once started in the right direction, I wish to add a word to your article under the above heading, published some weeks ago. I was (and know that many others were) greatly pleased with that article, not only for what it contained, but because it showed that at least one of the local papers has an intelligent interest in the necessary improvement of our harbor. Certainly all the places you mentioned are dangerous, and it is equally certain that nearly every one of the obstructions specified could be removed at small cost, and with trifling labor compared to what has been expended on improvements of far less importance in other ports and rivers. But you failed to mention one hidden danger—the flat ledge at the entrance to the dock, about midway between Commercial and Pier wharves, which is a source of serious annoyance to the winter fishermen drawing eight feet or more of water, for with a sudden dying away of the wind when a vessel is trying to make a berth in that dock on a strong ebb tide she can hardly escape striking that rock, and many vessels have done so. The very thing which gives our harbor its exceptional value as a winter port,—the swift and varying currents which prevent the formation of ice in masses sufficient to obstruct navigation,—makes these rocks far more perilous to vessels than they would be in harbors having more placid waters, and greatly increases the necessity for their removal. If the Board of Trade would take the matter in hand, the Board of Pilot Commissioners would undoubtedly give them all the data necessary to enable them to make such a representation of the case to Congress, through the medium of our Representatives there, as would cause an investigation by the National engineers,—and that investigation once secured there is no fear but a prompt improvement of the harbor would be ordered, for a survey would show the great need of the work being done and how easy it would be to do it. Hoping the Board of Trade (which seems to me the proper agency to work it up) will act on the suggestions given, I remain

Yours truly, HAND LEAD.

JOTTINGS.

The Portsmouth Philharmonic Society will hold their last rehearsal before adjourning for the Summer, at Mercantile and Grange Hall, this (Tuesday) evening. Mr. Pearson is one of the best conductors the Society has ever had, and Miss Hanscom as pianist has given good satisfaction.

Yacht "Phantom," built by Mr. William Dixon at Kittery Foreside for Mr. Stephen Decatur of Kittery Point, was launched on Friday, May 18th. Her dimensions are as follows: length of keel, 27 feet; length over all, 31 feet; breadth of beam, 12 feet five inches; depth of hold, five feet; she draws about three feet of water aft and eighteen inches forward, and measures about eleven tons. She is to be sloop rigged; her bowsprit is 14 feet over the stern, mainmast 35 feet long, topmast 14 feet, mainboom 33 feet, gaff 18 feet. She will carry 100 yards of canvas in her mainsail, 50 yards in the jib, 40 yards in the gaff-topsail, 30 yards in the jib-topsail and 100 yards in the balloon jib. Her cabin, which is thirteen feet long, is finished in pine with black walnut trimmings, and upholstered with striped terry,—stateroom in forward part of cabin; altogether she has sleeping accommodations for eight persons. The cockroom is forward. Her centre-board is ten feet long and five feet wide; she is fitted with Lawley & Son's steering gear, and has a binnacle which cost $200. She is painted white, and is expected to do some fast sailing when she gets settled down to business.

Messrs. C. E. & J. E. Dixon, No. 7 Congress street, have the exclusive agency for Portsmouth and vicinity for Morton's bismuth pens. These pens are non-corrosive in any kind of ink, and will not change the tints of red, carmine or violet inks; they write well—that is, if the writer knows how to write well with any kind of a pen—and are far more lasting than steel pens. Call and get a dozen, for fifty cents.

A two horse team belonging to a Mr. Thompson, of York, took fright while standing in front of Call's lumber yard, Monday afternoon, and ran away over Noble's Island bridge; but the wagon struck the gate at the toll-bridge, the shock breaking the pole and tumbling one of the horses on his back, and there the runaway stopped.

Engine Companies Nos. Three and Four on Monday evening voted to attend the funeral of the late A. K. P. Deering, in uniform.

MEMORIAL DAY.

ORDER OF EXERCISES.

The procession will form on Market Square, right resting on Market street, at 1:30 o'clock P. M., sharp, and move promptly at two o'clock in the following order:

City Marshal,
Platoon of Police,
American Band, Rochester,
Chief Marshal and Aids,
U. S. Marines,
Portsmouth Heavy Artillery,
Portsmouth Light Artillery,
Portsmouth Cornet Band,
Portsmouth City Guards,
Portsmouth Cavalry Company,
War Veterans,
Officers of the U. S. Navy,
Invited Guests.

Route of procession: Through Market, Deer, Vaughan, Congress, Islington, Cabot, Middle, Cass, countermarch, Middle, State, Pleasant and South streets, to the South cemetery.

EXERCISES AT THE CEMETERY.

Selection by Band,
Prayer—by Chaplain Grant,
Reading of General Order by Comrade John H. Locke,
Address—Rev. James W. Hubbell,
Decoration of Graves,
Recall of Procession,
Volley by Marine Corps,
Hymn "America," by the audience, with bands,
Benediction—Chaplain Grant.

The procession will return through Richards Avenue, Middle and Congress streets to Market Square, where it will be dismissed.

TO THE LADIES--SPECIAL NOTICE.

The committee on Memorial Day observances earnestly request the aid of the ladies to-day, in arranging evergreen for decorating the graves of the Nation's dead to-morrow; a large quantity of material has been procured, but without generous assistance from the ladies it cannot be utilized. All who can give even an hour or two to this work are invited to call at Franklin upper hall (entrance on Fleet street) as early as convenient, for much remains to be done,—the material is there, but much more help is needed. The hall will be open all day and evening.

RYE LETTER.

RYE, May 26th.

The rate of taxation the present year is $1.35 on $100; $6000 is to be raised, and $1200 of this is appropriated for schools and $2000 for highways. The total valuation of everything in town which is taxable was $696,975 in 1876, which amount is probably somewhat increased by the annexation of Gosport, as well as by some new houses built since then. The following statistics may be of interest:

Deposits in savings banks,		$242,662
Value of lands,		345,150

A fair sized audience seemed well satisfied with the Floral Entertainment given by Miss Bailey and her pupils on Thursday evening; the singing by the Misses Ham of Portsmouth was of course excellent; Miss Stella Delaney was very pleasing in the rendering of the "Popping corn" song, and was vigorously applauded. The Rye Cornet Band was on hand, and played several selections.

The band serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Alfred V. Seavey on Wednesday evening, and were entertained by the happy couple.

Canker worms have commenced business, and farmers hereabout anticipate plenty of work in fighting these pests, which in connection with the potato bugs, will keep them busy for some time to come. Gardner Bunker, however, will only be able to use one band in exterminating these enemies of the farmers, for some time to come; the circular saw which they use at the new steam mill at Greenland depot to cut slabs, happened to come in the way of two of his fingers and nearly cut them off,—this occurred Saturday.

The road mania has broken out afresh, and in a virulent form. There are, it is reported, petitions in circulation for four new highways, and two for widening portions of those already open; also there is talk of two more at least,—and it has been mentioned that a railroad from Greenland depot on the Concord Road, intersecting the Eastern near the Ocean road, and thence running to the Beach, would be a good thing. NAT.

—The late President Finney's prayer on the Franco-German war is now appropriate. He lifted up his voice and said: "O Lord, how long? how long? Bring this war to a speedy close. O Lord, they go on killing women and children and burning villages, and they call this civil warfare. O Lord, did you ever hear of anything so ridiculous?"

—A Chinaman went into a store kept by a Jew in San Francisco recently, and began to ask the prices of the goods. After he had ejaculated "Too muchee" several times, the proprietor lost his patience, and, hustling him about, cried: "Get out of here, you heathen!" The Chinaman withdrew to a safe distance and said: "Whaller maller you? Hi, me sabe you. You kill Mellican's joss!"

Nerves That Quiver,

Heads that ache, stomachs that inflict dyspeptic torments, muscles and joints racked with the rheumatism, are infallibly restored to health by the celebrated elixir, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine prescribed by physicians, possessing infinite purity, and which no one takes in vain who is afflicted with any of the numerous complaints to which it is adapted. It frequently happens that so-called remedies fail to produce a permanent effect. This is because they are merely palliatives, and therefore do not remove the cause of the maladies, whose symptoms they after after a time cease to ameliorate. This is notably the case with opiates and sedative drugs. It is not so, however, with Hostetter's Bitters, which are a searching specific that conquers the disease as well as banishes its indicia.

The Teeth of Dyspeptics.

Acidity of the stomach will destroy the strongest teeth, unless its effects be counteracted with Sozodont. This pure vegetable antacid and disinfectant protects the dental surfaces by removing every impurity that adheres to them, and preventing the formation of tartar.

A wretched mistake! Not to buy Spalding's Glue.

It is very safe to say that the most fastidious guest never leaves the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., dissatisfied with his visit to that famous hostelry.

FOR BREAKFAST many persons find coffee positively injurious. Walter Baker & Co. prepare a "Breakfast Cocoa," which preserves the nutritive portion of Cocoa, yet leaves no sensation of heaviness after its use. Highly recommended by physicians, and sold by all grocers everywhere.

"Hurrah for the next who dies," exclaims the irreverent host. Better hurrah for the man who lives by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam. It cures coughs, colds and lung difficulties. Price 35 cents.

The Grand Central Hotel, New York, will sustain its well-merited popularity, and earn greater, by the sensible reduction of its rates from $4.00 to $2.50 and $3.00 per day.

A "Lo" Marriage in High Life.

Peter Sack, a step-son of Captain John Nolan, Chief of the Mic Mac Indians in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, was married this morning at St. Mary's Cathedral by Rev. Canon Power, to Miss Annie Cope, a half-breed belonging at Sheet Harbor. A considerable number of the tribe were present in their holiday clothes to witness the ceremony. After the pair were united they went down to Dartmouth ferry wharf intending to cross. While waiting for the boat, a very dark squaw came up leading a three-year-old child which she declared belonged to the bridegroom, and demanded that he take charge of it. Sack "denied the soft impeachment" and "would have none of it." His bride, who is only seventeen and nearly white, stood by horrified, and a large crowd gathered. On the arrival of the boat the happy couple slipped on board and the crowd prevented the irate squaw from following them.—Halifax (N. S.) Recorder.

—The Emperor of Brazil visited the Salpetriere Hospital in Paris, recently, to witness experiments of Dr. Burg's system of restoring sensibility to paralyzed limbs by the application of metals. For nearly two hours he watched with attention in the hospital wards the Professor running bodkins through the flesh of arms and legs in which there was no feeling, and saw, a few minutes after the application of copper or gold, according to the idiosyncrasy of the patient, the slightest prick draw blood and produce screams. He was particularly struck by the case of a girl, certified to have had her arm useless some days previous, who was now able to lift heavy weights.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

FRANK W. MILLER, Chairman.
HENRY M. CLARK, Treasurer.
T. SALTER TREDICK, Secretary.
ALFRED M. HOYT.
JOS. HILLER FOSTER.
MOSES H. GOODRICH.
JOHN H. BROUGHTON, Mayor, Ex. Of.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them—may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians and the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before it was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Bachman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind upon their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier shall omit to notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause such nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Man's and Woman's Way of Saying Things.

Look at the ridiculous way in which a man takes for granted that a woman will be interested in his sayings and doings. If his wife has a long story to tell him she is filled with misgivings lest it may tire him, she leaves out many little picturesque touches that she may not take up his time, and, even on hand-gallop, she has not arrived within call of her conclusion when he asks with confusing directness, "Well, how did it turn out?" But the man has never a misgiving that he will be hurried or that life has anything better to offer than listening to him. He begins at its earliest morning stages and lopes leisurely to its close, or if it is rapid he gives it rapid transit, but he never omits anything on his wife's account. He tells what he said and what the other man said, and what the other man might have said, and what he would have said had the other man said what he might said. And the worst of it is—the fatal point is—that his confidence is justified. The woman is interested. The man's talk takes her out of her own into a larger life, and she not only tolerates but enjoys it; and what are you going to do about it?—Gail Hamilton.

—The owner of a gambling house at Monaco has sent a check for $60,000 towards building the unfinished tower of the church of Notre Dame in Paris.

—Representative Asbill has introduced a bill in the South Carolina Legislature to prevent the intermarriage of races, and to make it punishable by fine and imprisonment at hard labor.

—The New York correspondent of the Springfield Republican says: "Just now there is a very pretty little quarrel between the editor of the Tribune and the Messrs. Appleton, of which there are two or three versions. The one most generally credited is that the Messrs. Appleton sent a set of their cyclopædia to Mr. Whitelaw Reid, and that therefor he returned his check for the value of the work. The check was promptly and politely returned, with the explanation that the publishers did not want the money, but hoped that Mr. Reid would give the cyclopædia such a notice as it deserved in the Tribune. It is said that Mr. Reid informed them that his self-respect would not allow him to notice a work one of the editors of which had abused him repeatedly and malignantly, referring, of course, to the editor of the Sun, Mr. Charles A. Dana."

—The owners of the "Great Eastern" are, it is said, considering the propriety of converting that magnificent vessel into a huge refrigerating chamber for the conveyance of American meat. A recent examination has disclosed the fact that, like the "Great Britain"—another of Brunel's ships—the hull is practically in as good condition as when first built, and the directors consider it would be wise to raise sufficient money to put new and improved engines and boilers into the vessel. They have been empowered to prepare a rough estimate of the cost of the new machinery; and in view of the fact that the vessel can even now steam as fast as any of the Atlantic liners, the trade in meat which is being developed, not only with the United States, but also with Brazil, promises to open a wide field of usefulness—a trade in which the great vessel need never carry only half a load.—Scientific American.

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS every Manufacturer, Merchant, Mechanic, Inventor and Professional Man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American

which has been published weekly for the last thirty-one years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication in the world. It is the cheapest paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Every number is profusely illustrated and its contents comprise the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical, and Scientific Progress of the world; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts, forming a complete repository of Mechanical and Scientific Discoveries; containing a weekly record, not only of the progress of the Industrial Arts in our own country, but also of all New Discoveries and Inventions in every branch of Engineering, Mechanics and Science abroad.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN has been the foremost of all industrial publications for the past thirty-one years. It is the oldest, largest, cheapest, and the best weekly illustrated paper devoted to Engineering, Mechanics, Chemistry, New Inventions, Science and Industrial Progress, published in the world.

The practical Recipes are well worth ten times the subscription price, and for the shop and house will save many times the cost of subscription.

Merchants, Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, and People of all Professions, will find the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room: in every Reading Room, College and School. A new volume commences January 1st, 1877.

A year's numbers contain 832 pages and SEVERAL HUNDRED ENGRAVINGS. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail, including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars, giving Club rates sent free. Single copies mailed on receipt of 10 cents. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS; In connection with the Scientific American, Messrs. MUNN & CO., are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty-thousand applications have been made for patents through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined, and advice free. A special notice is made in the Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or in whole, to persons interested in the Invention by such notice. A Pamphlet, containing full directions for obtaining Patents sent free. The Scientific American Reference Book, a volume bound in cloth, 300 pp., containing the Patent Laws, Census of the U. S., and 142 Engravings of mechanical movements. Price 25 Cents.

Address for the Paper, or concerning Patents,

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1877.

Lynch Law.

Friday morning, before daybreak, Mrs. C. C. Chambliss of Stewart county, Georgia, was murdered by three negroes. They fired fences and drew her husband away from the house. The negroes then proceeded to the house to rob it and were met by Mrs. Chambliss, a beautiful woman, aged eighteen years, armed with a gun. One of the negroes, Jerry Snead, took the gun from her and lodged its contents in her head, causing death instantly. The negroes burned a corn-crib and fled, but were pursued and captured. Jerry admitted the deed and implicated his companions, Stephen Abrams and William Booth. They were brought to Chambliss' home that afternoon, when it was unanimously decided by about three hundred whites and blacks present that they should be hanged. The gallows was erected and the murderers were hanged with trace chains. The colored participants in the lynching threw the lifeless bodies into an old field to rot, and with great difficulty the whites persuaded them to permit their burial. The culprits met their fate jeeringly, glorying in the deed and taunting their executioners. A cotton rope was first used on Stephen Abrams, but it broke, and he asked the crowd to get a stronger one. No other rope could be found and trace chains were used.

Went to Sea in a Bowl.

Three thousand people assembled on the wharves of New Bedford Monday noon, to witness the departure of Captain and Mrs. Crapo, the bold (and foolish) mariners who propose to cross the ocean in a schooner of small dimensions. The schooner's measurements are as follows: Length, 19.55 feet; breadth, 6.4 feet; depth, 3.16 feet; tonnage, 1.62 tons. The length of keel is 17 feet; centre-board, 3 1-2 feet, and 1 1-2 feet wide. She is built somewhat after the whaleboat model, but shorter, broader, deeper and with more sheer, and her draught of water will be about 13 inches, with centre-board up. Most of her provisions are canned goods, and she is provided with a little petroleum stove. Most of the weight on board consists of her store of fresh water, about 130 gallons in six kegs, which is stowed fore and aft, three on each side. Her provisions and water weigh about 1500 pounds. The craft is a shorter boat than has ever crossed the Atlantic, but Capt. Crapo thinks she is superior as a sea boat to the little craft that made the voyage last year. The steersman will sit in the after hatchway, and is provided with a canvass boot to fasten round the body in rough weather. Any time when the sea is too high for convenient running the boat will lie to with a drag. The boat carries charts, a compass and quadrant. Capt. Crapo will keep his longitude by dead reckoning, verylifying it by any vessel passing, and most of the way will be directly in the track of the ocean steamers. He will call first at Falmouth, in Cornwall, and expects to arrive in forty days. Thence he will proceed to London and afterward Havre. The boat had been lying some hours at Rotch's wharf with Capt. Crapo on board, and Mrs. Crapo arrived just before noon with her pockets full of lemons. Mrs. Crapo is an agreeable lady of twenty-three, a daughter of Frederick Stiff of London, manufacturer of music-boxes; she is a healthy-looking woman, slightly above average proportions, and is as enthusiastic as her husband in relation to the voyage. She has sailed two years and a half with him, and says she will probably be seasick about one or two days. Capt. Crapo and his wife shook hands all round, the encircling boats scattered to make room, the boom which had been triced up alongside the mainmast was lowered, and away she went for Europe and a market.

The War.

A correspondent of the New York Times, writing from Trebizond, says that, in the midst of general uncertainty there, three things are certain: Moukhtar Pasha is a wholly incompetent general, in whom the soldiers have no confidence; the Russians are within the Turkish frontier in great force; and, while the Russians are well supplied with trained cavalry, the Turks have scarcely any horsemen with which to cope with them. From this state of things he infers that the Russians will ultimately carry all before them in Asia Minor. Having secured the territory which it has so long coveted on the south of the Black Sea, Russia will be able to treat with Turkey on her own terms. All this is based on the presumption of no interference from England.

St. Petersburg despatches say the real facts of the blowing up of the Turkish monitor in the Danube are as follows: The Russian officers conducted the torpedoes to the monitor in open daylight and under fire. One of the Russian boats was almost submerged by the explosion of the torpedoes and another was struck by a shot. The two lieutenants who commanded have been decorated with the Cross of St. George.

The Turks claim to have recaptured Ardahan.

News and Notes.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's officials have received advices from Mexico, stating that the steamer City of San Francisco struck a sunken rock May 16, and is a total loss. Passengers and crew saved.

The Chicago base ball club, travelling with the champion flag, was on Monday taken in by a country nine in the wilds of Ohio and beaten by three to nothing. The winners were the City club of Springfield, a nine which consists of a pitcher and eight unknowns. The pitcher's name is Mitchel, and he is by odds the best man the champions have met this year. They made one bit off him on a fall game, while the other chaps got nine off Bradley, the Chicago's pitcher.

Fifty-two vessels, of 28,000 tons aggregate measurement, have been posted at Lloyd's as missing in the first four months of the present year, compared with twenty vessels in the corresponding period of 1876. It is believed that about 650 persons have perished with these vessels, which are valued at over half a million sterling. Eleven vessels, having on board 84 men, were posted as missing in April.

Lucy Ann Mank, alias Mink, alias Lulu A. Martin, the woman who murdered her paramour in Maine, for which crime she was tried and acquitted, and who later murdered another paramour, Charles Ricker, in Lowell, Mass., is now on trial for the last murder.

The Secretary of the National Rifle Association has received a telegram from Capt. Mildmay, Secretary of the British Rifle Association, that "the National Rifle Association will send the United Kingdom team to Creedmoor this year." This will result in probably the greatest rifle match yet fought. The British team will include the pick of Scotch, Irish and English small bore shots, while the American team will comprise the cream of the American rifle ranges.

Frank Blake, in Newburyport jail awaiting trial for horse stealing, attempted suicide by hanging Monday morning, but was discovered by Officer Sargent in time to prevent the accomplishment of his purpose. He was placed in solitary confinement, but bruising his head severely against the wall of the cell it was found necessary to confine him with another prisoner who is able to take care of him. Blake is a desperate character, and there are charges against him for horse stealing in New Hampshire.

Great lawlessness prevails in South Carolina. The Charleston Mercury says that in Darlington and Chesterfield counties, "the sheriffs' offices are crowded with warrants of arrest, but they are not executed and the ordinary processes of law afford no protection to the people." On the same authority it is stated that three notorious criminals were stalking about Society Hill in broad daylight, two of whom were escaped convicts; and no officer went near them.

The steamship City of Brussels arrived at Liverpool on Tuesday.

Fletcher Harper, senior member of the firm of Harper & Brothers, died on Tuesday, aged 72 years.

Gen. Miles had a fight with Indians on the Rosebud river, May 7th, in which four soldiers and fourteen Indians were killed. Lame Deer and Iron Star, two noted chiefs, were among the slain.

A little daughter of Daniel W. Patrick of East Colebrook was attacked and seriously injured by a ram last week; one arm was broken, and a severe contusion was made over her right eye. The child's mother rescued her with difficulty with a hammer, and so badly injured the animal that it had to be killed.

George Lewis of the Industrial Home is missing from Dover, with a horse and carriage, since last Thursday. He is five feet eight inches high, with dark hair and light moustache.

The Board of Assessors in Nashua made an awkward mistake of $1,000,000 in figuring up the total valuation of property, being a less amount than it should have been. After about $400,000 of taxes had been made up the attention of an old and experienced Assessor was called to it, and upon examining the books the mistake was found. This correction will make a great difference with some of the heavy tax-payers of Nashua, reducing the tax per cent. from $1.70 to $1.50 on $100.

—The demand for passports at the State department indicates that foreign travel this season will be largely in excess of previous years. Compared with last year, the number issued to date shows an excess of four thousand.

—Many years ago a lady in a town near Concord purchased of a local trader a cheap dress pattern, and finding, some days after, that she needed more to complete the garment, went four miles to procure it. The day was the last secular one in the week, and the sun nearly at the horizon. Making known to the man in charge—who was half drunk—the purpose of her visit, he, being averse to rising from his chair, lest his unfortunate condition be disclosed, looked seriously upon his customer, and said, in a benign manner, "Madam, it is not the practice in this store to transact business so near holy time as five o'clock Saturday afternoon."

—The son of Mr. Rae, a wealthy gentleman of Whitestone, L. I., got entangled in a love-scrape with a young Irish girl. He promised marriage, and a child was born. The young man still meant to make his promise good, but an angry father contrived to send him off. Then the abandoned girl resorted to strategy to secure his return, and had her death advertised in the papers. This had the desired effect; the old folks killed the fatted calf, and the prodigal returned, only to be nabbed by the officers for abandonment of his Irish sweetheart. In the interval the girl has used her blandishments so effectually as to reclaim her fickle lover, and again there is dismay and anger in the respectable family circle, and the girl bids fair to yet wear the wedding ring.

—Cool but not always collected—An ice bill.

—The Alliance says that the Baptist translation of the Bible into Japanese astonished the Japs with: "In those days came John the Soaker, preaching the soaking of repentence. Repent and be soaked, every one of you."

—What perplexes a philosophical man is to discover how, when he is shaking carpet with a little woman on the other end, she can so exasperatingly hold on, and shake, and shake, and jerk his end out of his hands, and call him a butter-fingers.

—Consolation is always soothing to the bereaved. Here is what a Western journalist offers to his readers: "Owing to the death of our chief editor there will be no editorial article on Tuesday, but look out for a regular ripper on Wednesday!"

—Three convicts arrived at the Ohio penitentiary last Saturday night from Wyandot county in that State, under sentence for burglary. The offense was committed Friday night, the men were arrested Saturday morning, examined before a justice, bound over to court, indicted by a special grand jury, tried, sentenced, and inside the penitentiary by seven o'clock the same evening.

—They were acting charades at a Boston party one evening last week, and got along finely until trouble occurred on the word Beautiful. A lovely young lady had represented "Beauty" with charming effect, but when they endeavored to get a young man who parted his hair in the middle and wore a tall collar to play the part of "Fool" for the second act, he refused with such vigor that it cast a gloom over the entire company.

—At the Paris School of Arts and Trades experiments were lately made with a paper alleged to be incombustible. Sheets of it were exposed singly to the fierce flames of a spirit lamp without other effect than to slightly wither it. When the paper was exposed in bulk no effect was apparent. It was thought very desirable for the manufacture of bank notes. The secret of the manufacture rests with the experimenter.

—A gentleman, rather given to conviviality, desirous that the effects of a slight over indulgence should not be noticed by the groom who was holding his pony's head for him to mount, sprang so lightly into the saddle as to land on the turf on the other side. John, advancing to meet him where he lay, exclaimed, "Ech, Sir, I hope you're not hurt?" "No, John," was the reply, "but I never knew the beast to do that before!"

—The Keene Sentinel reports that a professional man in that city, noted for his brusque manner, accosted one of his daughters on the street a day or two ago, and received a somewhat caustic reply, accompanied with a hurried movement toward home and a saucy toss of the head. He looked perplexed for a moment and then exclaimed in a deprecating tone: "Well, go along—you are too much like your father for me to have anything to say to you!"

—The New London Telegram says: "A man with less brains than recklessness jumped from the New Haven train while it was passing Lawrence's wharf this morning and barely escaped severe injuries. He landed on his head, and for a second or two covered an extensive area of ground. His valise accompanied him in his aerial flight, and whizzed around through space in a manner suggestive of chain lightning. Jumping from a moving train is a game that few win at."

—When Mr. Boker, the United States Minister to Russia, was Minister to Turkey, General Ignatieff called upon him and said that he had honored him and the United States with the first official visit, although a little while before Mr. Boker had seen the General enter the British Embassy. Mr. Boker knew the Russian's peculiarity well, and soon afterwards, having heard that the latter had so bad a cold that he had lost his voice completely, remarked, "if that is so the recording angel will enjoy a respite."

NUMBER ONE.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping-Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever acquired so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine, One Package of Dr. Quain's Conditior Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 8th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

[WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Indrised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story, I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I have tried, and have known many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. Your book confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The great impression among my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I would never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DECORATION DAY.

The following is the official order for the observance of Memorial Day:

ORGANIZATION OF PROCESSION.

The procession will form on Market Square, right resting on Market street, at 1:30 o'clock P. M., sharp, and move promptly at two o'clock in the following order:

City Marshal.
Platoon of Police.
American Band, Rochester.
Chief Marshal Frank W. Hilton, Aids, J. Horace Kent, Capt. Frank Williams.
U. S. Marines.
Portsmouth Heavy Artillery.
Portsmouth Cornet Band.
Portsmouth Light Artillery.
War Veterans on foot.
Portsmouth Cavalry Company.
War Veterans in carriages.
Officers of the U. S. Navy.
Orator and Chaplain.
Mayor and other City Officials.
Invited Guests.

The various local organizations comprising the procession will be promptly in the places assigned them at half-past one o'clock, so that there shall be no delay in taking up the line of march at two o'clock.

The ex-soldiers and ex-sailors are requested to meet at upper Franklin Hall (entrance on Fleet street) at 12:30 o'clock, wearing dark clothes and hat and white gloves. The disabled soldiers and sailors and all others who are to ride assemble at the City Rooms at 1:30 o'clock, where carriages will be provided.

The Marines will be met at the navy yard landing at 1:30 o'clock by the Portsmouth Heavy Artillery led by the Rochester Band. The officers of the Navy will also be met at the landing by prominent residents and taken under escort to landaus in waiting.

The following will be the ROUTE OF PROCESSION.

Through Market street to Deer, through Deer, Vaughan, Congress, Islington, Cabot, Middle, Cass, countermarch, Middle, State, Pleasant, South street, and Sagamore Road to the further entrance to the cemetery, proceeding through the same to the lawn near the soldiers' monument, where will take place the following exercises:

Selection by Band,
Prayer—by Chaplain Grant,
Reading of General Order by Comrade John H. Locke,
Address—Rev. James W. Hubbell,
Decoration of Graves,
Recall of Procession,
Volley by Marine Corps,
Hymn "America," (1st and 2d verses) by the audience, with bands.
Benediction—Chaplain Grant.

The procession will then return through Richards Avenue, Middle and Congress streets to Market Square, where it will be dismissed.

A cordial invitation is extended to all war veterans, societies and organizations, civil and military, to take part in the exercises of the day, and the citizens are called upon to lend their influence and assistance to the success of the undertaking.

Ice water will be supplied at the cemetery to members of the procession. Citizens are invited to provide water along the route.

FRANK W. HILTON,
Chief Marshal.

It is desirable that the contributions of decorative emblems be left at upper Franklin Hall (entrance on Fleet street) as early this forenoon as convenient. A committee will be present to receive and carefully look after the same. Any special offering will be placed wherever the contributor desires, if the name of the comrade and the cemetery in which he is buried is designated and attached thereto.

The committee on flowers desire us to say that if any persons have any flowers to spare, and will send them in to Franklin upper hall as early as convenient this forenoon, they will be very thankfully received and applied to the general decoration of soldiers' graves this afternoon. There are many graves on which to place floral tributes, and more flowers are most earnestly solicited.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

For Rockingham County assembled in the Middle street Baptist church on Tuesday forenoon; Rev. Mr. Robie, of Greenland, President of the County Society, occupied the chair, and B. R. Jewell, of South Hampton, was secretary. The exercises opened with a half-hour-long Praise Meeting, after which the secretary read the report of the last meeting (at Newmarket last year,) which was followed by short reports from the various Sabbath Schools. A committee appointed at the last meeting to draft a constitution, reported the same; and the report was accepted, and the constitution (after some discussion) adopted. The Convention then adjourned to the North Parish chapel on Middle street, where an abundant collation was spread, the tables being tastefully decorated with flowers, and the young ladies of the society gracefully waiting on the delegates, who proved the correctness of the old saying, "Them pious eats awful!"

The Convention re-assembled at half-past one o'clock P. M., and after a short Praise Meeting an able and interesting essay on Sabbath School work was read by Rev. George E. Street of Exeter. A discussion of the topic embraced in the essay followed, in which Rev. Messrs. Alden and Hubbell of this city and Peabody of Stratham, and Dr. Goodall of this city, took part. Blackboard lessons were then taken up, and illustrated by Mr. B. R. Jewell,—followed by discussion. A business meeting closed the session, which was attended by some two hundred delegates from all parts of the county.

THE NEXT REUNION.

FRANKLIN, MASS., May 28.

Eds. Chronicle:—It seems hardly possible that almost a year has slipped by since the High School Reunion of last summer. The months have been carrying us forward with their swift feet, and here we are in the neighborhood of another reunion. We can say now our "Third Reunion." How we are growing! What a weight of blossoms we find already on this young tree of our affections! It will do us all good to stop in this busy, hurrying life, and remember that we were all young once. The revival of old associations will fling a little of the dew of youth back to our dusty branches and refresh us all, and we dare say will make the fruit taste better that is growing there. The life that keeps young and sympathizes with the young, is always better flavored. So let us all endeavor to be at the next "Reunion."

It helps too the "curly heads" and "golden locks" at the High School, about to appear as Alumni and Alumnæ among the older graduates, if their graduation day is followed by some conspicuous gathering in the evening.

It pushes into still greater prominence the fact of graduation, and gives a start in life all the greater eclat. By all means, let us old folks be present, if we can hobble there, and let us heartily welcome to active life the young folks.

May we make one suggestion? There is sufficient time to arrange an excellent bill of fare for a literary feast, when we remember how much talent shows its ripened fruit on "Old Strawberry Bank," and the securing of this will give a very just prominence to our exercises among the High School gatherings of the land. E. A. R.

[The above letter is from one of the officers of the High School Association, who, though residing in another State, has been an active, working officer at former reunions. We learn from Mr. Hazlett, of the Board of Directors, that the Alumni are already making arrangements for the Third Reunion, which it is their intention to make even more pleasurable and instructive than was the one which afforded so much satisfaction last July. More attention will be given to the Literary Exercises at the Hall in the evening preceding the social meeting. The funds for the payment of the expenses of former reunions have been cheerfully contributed by the past members of the school and the same plan which secured the necessary sum last year will be adopted this year. The reception by the graduating class and the reunion of the alumni will be held, as usual, in the evening of the day of the annual exhibition, about the 12th of July.—Eds.]

Miss Sara Jewitt's benefit as Juliet, in Romeo and Juliet, will take place Thursday afternoon at the Boston Theatre.

The festive potato-bug has found out a new article of food for himself, on which it is expected he will thrive in a manner hitherto unknown,—the sea-weed on the beaches. At Hampton beach, we are informed, the sea-weed is fairly alive with these bugs.

The funeral of the late Mr. A. K. P. Deering took place Tuesday afternoon, under direction of the Knights Templar and Odd Fellows. The Fire Department, of which Mr. Deering was for many years an active member in his younger days, was represented by Engine Co's Three and Four, in uniform.

Commodore Guest, Commandant of the Navy Yard, issued an order that there would be no work on the Yard on Memorial Day; but we are informed that on Tuesday orders arrived at the Yard direct from the Department at Washington, not to shut down on that day, but to allow any workmen who wished to absent themselves (without compensation) to do so—a privilege we imagine navy yard workmen, as well as most others, have always enjoyed. Is this extra care of the Navy Department not to give even an indirect official sanction to the exercises of Memorial Day a part of the "conciliatory" policy?

Sheriff Kent has appointed J. Newell Brown of Seabrook deputy sheriff.

The Mechanics' Fire Society are to have their quarterly supper at the Kearsarge House next Friday evening, the host being brother John Stokell.

It was good music the Portsmouth Cornet Band made on Tuesday afternoon.

The annual report of the Concord Railroad Corporation for the year ending March 31, 1877, shows that the gross receipts as compared with last year have fallen off ten per cent. in the passenger and seven per. cent. in the freight department, equal to about $79,000 in all. To offset this the expenses have been cut down or reduced about fourteen per cent. or $98,000. The gross earnings of the road the present year are $871,528.08, the expenditures $576,766.-75, leaving a balance of $294,761.33. From this sum there has been paid in taxes and dividends $294,107.42, leaving a balance to the contingent fund $653.91. During the year the value of the stock for the use of the road has decreased $8399.62. The report shows the road-bed to be in good condition and in many respects better than last year. During the year there have been three accidents by which four persons have lost their lives; 529,835 passengers have passed over the road and 612,756 tons of freight have been transported.

Some surprise has been expressed that the fire companies were not assigned positions in the line of the Memorial Day procession, and it has been stated that the firemen did not wish to parade, having no uniforms. This is a mistake, as the companies all have uniforms, and very neat and handsome ones; but so large a proportion of the members belong to the various military organizations, with which they intended to appear, that but a mere skeleton display could be made by the different fire companies unless the uniforms were filled with substitutes, which was not considered advisable under the circumstances.

Steam tug Clara Batemen, Capt. Rand, will leave this afternoon for Gloucester, Mass., to tow over a steam dredge, scows, etc., to be employed in the improvements of the Cocheco river channel.

A Kittery correspondent of the Biddeford Journal writes that paper: "In the case of George E. Bartlett of Eliot vs. the Inhabitants of Kittery, which was tried recently at Alfred in the S. J. Court, the verdict was in favor of the town—a result not usually anticipated in such cases. Corporations usually suffer to some extent, perhaps for the reason that they are said to have no souls. The damages claimed in this case was $10,000. The plaintiff had many sympathizers, some in the defendant town, but through the firmness of M. A. Safford, who was town agent, no attempt was made to compromise the matter, as he was of the opinion from the first, although the case was novel in some respects, that the town had a good defense; and the very thorough manner in which he prepared and presented it to the jury, should render the town under lasting obligations to its officer, while it reflects upon him credit as an advocate and lawyer to which he has never made claim. The case was brought by a Boston lawyer, who had associated with him one of the ablest counsel in this State. No lack of means existed on the plaintiff's side and the case was thoroughly tried out."

"Dr. Ox's Experience" and "A Winter Amid the Ice." We have just received the new issue of Jules Verne's ever popular stories, in the favorite "Lakeside Library" editions. Illustrated with 29 characteristic engravings. It is sold by all newsdealers at ten cents; or sent postpaid for twelve cents, by the publishers, Donnelley, Loyd & Co., Chicago, Ill.

—Modern marriages, says a contemporary, begin with a court and end with a court.

Cheerfulness the Offspring of Health.

That equable state of the mind which is unruffled by trifling incidents, and looks on the sunny side of things in general, is the result of a healthful state of the brain and stomach. The dyspeptic and nervous invalid may, although this is rare indeed—feign cheerfulness, and may bear the harassing symptoms which persecute him with an assumption of heroic indifference, but in reality he is the victim of despondency. To experience genuine cheerfulness of mind, the stomach must recover its lost tone, the thinking organ its normal quietude. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are the best remedy for mental depression, since they overcome the nervous debility and indigestion which originate and foster it. Persons suffering from infirmities peculiarly incident to the decline of life, ladies in delicate health, and convalescents, derive solace and vigor from its use. Drive away the blues and revive the drooping energies with this grand stimulative tonic.

It Would be Ridiculous

for those who use Sozodont to decry it, for the moment they opened their mouths the state of their teeth would contradict the slander of their tongues. It removes discolorations, imparts a glittering whiteness to the enamel, and renders the decomposition of the teeth impossible.

An article of prime necessity—Spalding's Glue.

CONSUMPTION AND CLIMATE.—The census of 1870 shows the average mortality from consumption throughout the Union to be, in a rough way, proportional to the average temperature of the given State. Deaths from this cause are ten times as frequent in Massachusetts, and—as Mr. Bill has rather candidly neglected to inform us, says an exchange—twice as frequent in Minnesota as they are in Georgia. Minnesota is indeed a colder State than Massachusetts, but its greater cold is offset, in part, by the greater dryness of its soil. A damp soil is one of the most prolific causes of consumption. Minnesota occupies an elevated portion of the continent; it is an undulating country, and its natural watersheds insure its thorough drainage. This circumstance undoubtedly conduces to the healthiness of the climate. But we have found, from personal observation, that where persons are liable to consumption, it is far better to take some prescribed remedy, such as Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup, which is sure to cure if taken in time, and will relieve the worst cases.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

Cure that cough! How? With Adamson's Botanic Balsam. It is warranted to cure coughs, colds, asthma and all lung difficulties. Sample free. Large bottles 35 cents.

FOR A TIRED MAN nothing can be really more refreshing than a cup of good Cocoa. If you purchase that bearing the stamp of Walter Baker & Co., you will be sure of a pure article.

The Grand Central Hotel, New York, will sustain its well-merited popularity, and earn greater, by the sensible reduction of its rates from $4.00 to $2.50 and $3.00 per day.

It is very safe to say that the most fastidious guest never leaves the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., dissatisfied with his visit to that famous hostelry.

Daily Chronicle.

—A New York firm has wasted $100,000 in experiments to find out how to dye plush for silk hats. The best that are produced in America turn brown under a hot iron, hence the high price of silk hats.

—The Ranlet Car Company at Laconia have contracted to build the rolling stock for the new 24-inch, narrow gauge railroad between Billerica and Bedford in Massachusetts. The shops are now running in full blast, furnishing employment for 150 workmen.

—Here is a bitter satire upon the constancy of man, which is entirely veritable, having been developed in the regular course of business. The superintendent of one of the principal railways radiating from Chicago, speaking recently of the losses sustained from articles of freight left on their hands, said that they suffered more from gravestones than anything else. "How can you suffer from gravestones?" was the inquiry. "Very easily. A man, you see, buries his wife, and orders a stone for her grave from some distant point. Before it is finished and delivered he will have another wife, and in that event it is ten to one that he will decline to take the stone, unless the freight has been prepaid. We insist now on prepayment for that kind of property, for we have accumulated gravestones enough to start a big cemetery, and on that sort of thing it is pretty hard to realize." An instance like this put into a story would be called cynicism, or at least an illustrated fancy. But railway corporations are neither cynical nor fanciful. They simply feel that they can't afford to be made responsible for a man's change of affection until they experience a change of purse.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements on the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. Sold by booksellers, or prepaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative so could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before c was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. Its offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vendor of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, privy-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the mucus. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, CURES COUGHS, CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvelous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG—My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

"DIAMONDS."

"Oh, you ought to see the new gentleman!" exclaimed Nellie Ford, as she rushed into the boarding-house parlor, where three eligible ladies of the house were lounging. "Such magnificent diamonds! Just think, he wears a pin as large as a frying-pan, and a ring to match; and he's a Californian, and isn't married, and he must be as rich as Cœsus, for he's taken the rosewood rooms all to himself. He is looking for a wife, too—I heard him tell Mrs. Crumpet so, myself. Isn't it splendid?"

And Nellie clapped her hands and waltzed around the room.

A rich bachelor looking for a wife! The ladies, as if electrified, started from their apathy, and eagerly besieged Nell, who had been favored with a look at him, with all sorts of questions concerning him.

"What is he like?" asked Miss Bell, who doated on tall men. "Is he tall or short?"

"Well," said Nell, hesitatingly, "he isn't very tall; in fact, he is rather short, and pretty stout, too!"

"Oh!" exclaimed Miss Bell, in impatience and disgust; "but he must have lots of money, though," she added, "so one can overlook defects. Is he handsome in the face, Nell?"

"Not very," said Nell again. "You see, his face is pretty red, and his hair, too."

"Ah! weather-beaten from exposure at the mines," said Mrs. Lee, an interesting widow, on a sharp lookout for number two. "Such a delightful, adventurous life! And then these Californians are so chivalrous, and such worshippers of our sex; and so liberal, too—their gifts are often princely."

Here Mrs. Lee glanced complacently at her pretty fingers, as if in her mind's eye she saw the new gentleman's big ring flashing there.

That evening brought our new guest, whom (not knowing his proper name) we had christened "Diamonds"—a name that stuck to him to the end of the chapter.

After dinner he held a kind of court in the parlor, at which all the lady-boarders of Mrs. Crumpet's establishment (a fashionable one in New York) were presented. And never, on any one occasion, had they so vied with each other in splendor of costume.

"Just think," said candid, but worldly-minded Nell, "If it wasn't for the man's diamonds, it is quite likely we never should speak to him, for goodness knows there's nothing in his looks to recommend him."

The others, less candid, would not agree with her. His diamonds and elaborate dress rather enhanced than hid a ruffianly look he had, which they all called his charming piratical air; and he was sweetly and playfully compared to Captain Kidd, Byron's Corsair, and scores of other darling of romance.

He at once became the lion of the house—yes, indeed, in more ways than one; for like the roaring lion, he went about seeking whom he might devour, but was sensible not to roar so as to scare away his prey. He was consulted on all matters of business by the gentlemen, who would sit absorbed listeners to his accounts of mining and the description of the countries he had travelled through. But no one seemed to notice the fact that he never knew anything about the many persons whose names were mentioned to him, although the life he described as having led must have brought him in close contact with many of them.

It was impossible for an outsider to tell which was Diamond's favorite among the ladies. After breakfast he would lounge, morning paper in hand, into the parlor, where the widow and Miss Bell were sure to repair.

Both ladies bore this partnership with good nature, as each one managed plenty of undisturbed interviews with him. Diamond improved these interviews so well that he soon became the affianced lover of the widow, and the ardent and favored suitor of Miss Bell.

So, each lady, being under the blissful delusion that she was the sole object of his choice, could, in her sweet security, allow him to be gallant to her friend; it was so gentlemanly.

"We will keep our engagement a sweet secret, darling," he said to the widow, "until my birthday, just three weeks hence. It seems a long time to wait, dear one," he added, caressing her, "but it would give me such pleasure to make it known on that day! How astonished they will all be, won't they, pet? Now, just set your little head to thinking what pretty things you would like me to get for you. Do not be afraid to tell me what you fancy, for whatever money can purchase, my wife shall have."

There was no need to make any such request of Mrs. Lee, for she had been busy thinking of what she intended to have ever since she met Diamonds. First came his diamond ring and pin—each, as Nellie said, as large as a frying pan—which Mrs. Lee already looked upon as her own property.

"It is in bad taste for a gentleman to make such a display," she said to herself. "I can easily talk him into giving them to me. Won't they all be jealous. There is that absurd Miss Bell, and that contemptible little school-girl Nell, both tagging after him all the time. I believe they actually imagines he cares for them."

That evening Diamonds being left alone in the parlor with Miss Bell, drew close to her, and, bending over her, said tenderly, and almost sadly, "If you had not said something I heard you say once, I would have the boldness to ask a great favor of you."

"Why, what did I say?" asked she, coquetishly.

"You said you would never live out of New York."

"Well, what of that?"

"Why, my home is in San Francisco," he said significantly.

Just then, to Miss Bell's great vexation, some one entered and interrupted him; but the next day she did a great deal of shopping, and began making her trousseau immediately.

The afternoons of Diamonds were devoted to business visits down town, so he said, and as he liked a walk for a constitutional, he generally managed to pass Nell's school just as it was being dismissed, and had the pleasure of escorting her home. During these walks he so ingratiated himself in her favor, and dazzled her by descriptions of his wealth and his home in California, and of the magnificence he intended to lavish on his wife, that she finally consented to elope with him, partly because it was romantic.

"Dear mamma will be sure to forgive me," she thought.

And she pictured herself coming with her husband, in her own elegant carriage, to ask her mother's forgiveness and receive her blessing, and of then carrying her off with her to her home in California, which her lover had so glowingly described.

The evening assigned for the elopement arrived. The day following was to be the much-talked-of birthday of Diamonds, on which he was to make known to the household his betrothal to Mrs. Lee, and on which also he had, in a tender, significant tone, requested Miss Bell to grant him a private interview.

The household were all assembled in the parlor as usual, engaged in merry chat. Diamonds, Miss Bell, Nell and Mrs. Lee formed the liveliest group, and the hearts of the ladies were beating high with their varied emotions. Little the three imagined what was passing in each other's mind.

Poor little Nellie trembled like a frightened bird at the dreadful thing she was about to do, and began to repent her rashness.

"In another hour," she thought, growing dizzy as she looked at the clock, "we must start."

She dared not look at her lover; she half thought she hated him, and fervently wished she had some girl friend who could go with her in her flight. She was growing more and more nervous, and had just thought, "Oh, how I wish something would happen to prevent it!" when there was a sound of strange voices in the hall, and after a slight commotion a man walked coolly into the parlor, with the exclamation, "Ah! here he is."

And walking up to Diamonds, he slapped him familiarly on the back with one hand and then jingled a pair of handcuffs rather ostentatiously in the other.

Diamonds turned pale, but made no attempt to escape.

"Was going to bolt to-night, wasn't you?" said the officer, for such he was. "I've been up to the room, and saw all your things packed up in readiness."

The excitement was dreadful.

"What is the matter? What does it all mean?" cried every one in a breath.

"It means this," said the detective. "After a long chase, I have arrested him for shooting a man in Colorado and absconding with his money, besides leaving a wife and two pretty children into the bargain."

"The awful wretch!" exclaimed Mrs. Lee and Miss Bell simultaneously, clasping their hands in horror.

"Oh!" cried Nellie, faintly, dropping into a seat.

Diamonds turned on them with a fiendish grin. Kissing his hand and bowing to them in turn, he delivered himself as follows:—

"My sweet Nellie, our elopement will have to be postponed for a while—sorry to disappoint you. In half an hour we would have been off.—Dear Clara, we will have that little talk some other time.—My own Helen, good-bye," bowing very low to the widow. "I am sorry our marriage cannot take place quite as soon as we intended."

"The man must be crazy!" cried the lady. "What on earth does he mean?"

Nellie buried her face in her mother's lap and sobbed hysterically, that was finally comforted by Fred Hall, a young gentleman who had long been attached to her, but as he had no diamonds, it is supposed that he had been slow to find favor in her eyes.

The door closed on Diamonds for the last time, and he left three wiser, if not better women behind him.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1877.

Boston Letter.

BOSTON, May 30.

That commerce naturally tends to concentrate in a few central locations is no new theory, but if it was the good citizens of the ports between Boston and Portland could be easily convinced of its correctness. Portsmouth tradition lovingly lingers over the memory of the extensive West India and Mediterranean trade once enjoyed by that port, not to mention the happy days when the bold mariner put a half-dozen iron six-pounders aboard his fast-sailing schooner, called himself a privateering patriot, and sailed away to steal a hapless merchant ship and cargo from his country's enemies; Salem suffers the torments of the very bad indeed when she remembers how the East Indiamen used to swarm at her now empty wharves; and Newburyport, which once had an extensive foreign commerce, has now none at all, and but for a moderate amount of ship-building which is carried on would be "deader" even than Portsmouth. Portland and Boston, easier to reach and with better distributing facilities than the places named, gradually absorbed the foreign trade of them all; then Boston took a large share of Portland's trade away, and for a year or two past the indications have been that New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia would take Boston's trade away and reduce her to something little better than a coal and fishing port, like Portsmouth. But this year our shipping trade is looking up; a local paper recently published a list of one hundred and twenty-eight vessels (many of them ships and barques) bound from foreign ports to Boston, a larger number than we have known for years. Whether the Hoosac tunnel and increased railroad and grain-handling facilities will enable Boston to hold her own against the natural centralizing tendency of commerce, remains to be seen.

Another striking illustration of this tendency of trade to go to the big centres is found in the rapid increase of Boston's retail trade with the surrounding country, particularly in the dry goods line, and to a less extent in furniture. In groceries there is little done in this direction, for when a man wants a pound of sugar or butter he cannot stop to send to Boston for it, and the cost of transportation would more than swallow up the saving in price on such quantities of groceries as are usually laid in at one time; but some of our extensive dealers in furniture rarely have a day pass in which they do not sell a heavy bill of goods to furnish some house fifty miles or more away, and the retail trade in dry goods—particularly dry goods for ladies' use—is immense and daily increasing. The heavy firms, importing the most of the goods they sell, have but one profit to make, and so sharp is the competition between them that even that profit is put at the lowest living figure; so that a lady who wishes to purchase a costly dress, if she lives within two or three score miles of Boston, can actually save money by coming here to purchase it, —a fact which the amount of such patronage received shows is well understood. Then some of the leading houses, as Houghton & Dutton, and Jordan, Marsh & Co., sell an immense amount of goods by sample, through the mail; a lady sends for samples, which she receives, with the price of each sample; and all she has to do is to return the sample she approves, with her order and the accompanying money, to be sure of receiving the exact article ordered, and the exact amount. The increase in this branch of the dry goods business here in the past year is almost incredible, and it is daily growing.

The small boy is to have no Fourth of July this year, in this city; at least, the city will not send off any fireworks to please him, and a strong effort is being made, by insurance companies and real estate owners, to extinguish the fire-cracker altogether. Is the Boston small boy a peer or a vassal?

Moody and Sankey have been here, and gone; immense audiences were interested, Unitarianism and the Young People's Church Union (which is engineered by the Unitarians), and other evil influences, were hit right and left—but Boston has not yet become so moral that the horse-car companies think it advisable to take away the bell-punches from the conductors. PA.

The Late Earthquake in Peru.

The Panama Star and Herald of May 21 says that Callao was visited the morning of the 10th by a species of tidal wave, or rather a gradual upheaval of the sea, which caused serious damage. The docks and piers of the Nurelle d'Arsena were the principal sufferers, together with some stores along the shore line, which were completely carried away. Vessels made fast and laying alongside the outer walls of the dock were lifted fully eight feet, but strange to say not damaged. Most of the steamers at anchor in the bay slipped their cables, fearing further danger, and some larger vessels stood out towards the offing. The United States storeship Onward left her anchorage, the officer in command evidently remembering the fate of her predecessor, the Fredonia, in the great tidal wave at Arica in 1868. The tidal wave is known to have extended as far south as the northern boundary of Chili, (but how much further is not known, as communication by cable is interrupted,) and resulted in almost completely destroying Antofagasta, Iquique, Arica, Tambo de Moro, Pabellon de Pico and Ilo. Although severe shocks of earthquake were felt they did little damage. The destruction of life and property was owing to the frightful upheaval and ingress of the sea.

A passenger by the steamer Trujillo says that the flourishing town of Iquique, the principal port for nitrate shipments, is left as complete a ruin now as it was after the frightful earthquake and inundation of 1868. At Arica the sea washed over the town to the hill back of the church and destroyed much very valuable property. The wreck of the United States steamer Wateree, which was carried inland a couple of miles by the tidal wave of 1868, was again floated and carried a mile or two further up the coast. The lower part of Antofagasta, which is the port celebrated for the coracoles mining district in Bolivia, is reported as completely destroyed. The smelting and other works, near the shore, were all swept away. The shipping at Pabellon de Pico and the guano de posits suffered severely, and some half-dozen fine vessels are reported ashore and complete wrecks. The sea in some places is stated to have risen over sixty feet. Making all due allowance for exaggerated statements, the destruction of life and property has been enormous. Between 600 and 800 lives are said to have been lost. At Mollendo, 300 feet of railway, which runs along the shore, was destroyed. At Ilo, the town and railway were seriously damaged, although no loss of life is reported. Anxiety prevails as to the fate of Arica. The steamer Santa Rosa left Arica on the 9th, and reports that while under way experienced the shock of an earthquake and saw a tidal wave. At Arequipa a strong shock was felt, but no damage was inflicted on the city.

The Last Steamship Wreck.

The following particulars are given of the loss of the steamship City of San Francisco:

The steamship left Panama May 11, at 4:40 A. M., with 137 passengers. On Wednesday morning, May 19, day bright, atmosphere clear, at 9:13 o'clock, a peculiar indescribable tremor was felt, the ship having struck upon an unknown reef, probably, cutting into her hull a hole fully sixty feet in length, into which the water rushed with fearful velocity. The ship was then six miles southwest from Sartus shoals and thirty miles from shore, the captain having known by observation her position at eight o'clock. The captain and officers were cool, calm and clear-headed, and as soon as the ship struck orders were given to get the boats ready and put the life-preservers on, as the danger of sinking was most imminent. Soundings between the reef and sand banks showed five and one-half, seven and a half, and twenty-two fathoms of water, and no bottom. There was but little confusion, and the boats soon started for the shore, thirty miles away, upon reaching which each boat was overturned and the passengers thrown in the surf. Captain Waddell says the steam pumps, capable of throwing 130 barrels of water each minute, were absolutely useless, as the whole bottom of the ship's stern had dropped out. Captain Waddell has steamed over the spot repeatedly, and his only conjecture is that the late earthquake has upheaved the submarine rocks. One hour and two minutes after striking, the ship was under the waves and grounded in thirty feet of water on a sandy bottom. The next morning a part of her stern was seen out of the water. The reef upon which she struck is not down on any chart, but a document sworn to before the United States Consul at Acapulco by one Perer, and witnessed by William Lund of the gunboat Mexico, deposes that the said Perer was perfectly conversant with the rocks extending from Point Maldonadocit in a southwest direction, and that these are sharp pointed and covered with four or five fathoms of water, extending in nearly a straight line to the southeast to a distance of from twelve to fourteen miles from land, and that he has fished for turtles frequently there.

News and Notes.

Mrs. Lydia Sherman, of Derby, Conn., who confessed to poisoning two husbands and six children after she had been sentenced to State Prison for life, escaped from the prison at Weathersfield Wednesday night.

Ex-President and Mrs. Grant are receiving the most marked attentions from the people and officials of England.

Peru has another revolution. One of the rebel chiefs stole the ironclad Huascar, the finest vessel in the Peruvian navy. The government has proclaimed the Huascar a pirate.

Ex-Gov. Warmoth of Louisiana was married on Wednesday at Newark, N. J., to Miss Sallie Durand, daughter of James W. Durand, a prominent jewelry manufacturer. After a short tour in this country Warmoth and his wife go to Europe for several months, and afterwards their residence will be in New Orleans.

The British barque Ella Vose, from Baltimore, arrived at Queenstown on the 27th ult, with her starboard side damaged. It will be remembered that she was run into by the barque Pohono in a fog, and that five of her crew scrambled on board of the Pohono, when the vessels separated and were seen no more from each other, consequently fears were entertained for their safety. Now both have arrived without loss of life.

Capt. Waddell, who was in command of the steamship City of San Francisco at the time she was lost, is the fellow who commanded the British pirate ship Shenandoah, alias Sea King, which destroyed so many whaleships in the Arctic Ocean after the war was over.

Thirty houses, a large saw-mill, a factory and lumber yard, were burned in Montreal on Wednesday. Loss $750,000. Seventy-five families were rendered houseless.

The wife and daughter of John Ballinger, of Bound Brook, N. J., were brutally outraged on the night of May 20th, by seven armed roughs from Newark. Two of the ruffians are in jail, and the police are hunting down the others.

A New York State gardener has been able to keep his garden clear of potato-bugs by toad power this season, and perhaps that talent is the precious jewel which this little animal—"ugly and venomous"—possesses. If so, it would be a good idea to take up the cultivation of toads as a parallel industry to the cultivation of potatoes.

The first twelve-inch rifle ever made in this country was successfully cast at the South Boston Iron Foundry on Wednesday.

Captain Howgate of the Signal Service proposes to push his Polar expedition enterprise at once. He has determined to send out a vessel under the charge of Captain George E. Tyson to make preliminary arrangements, and collect Esquimaux dogs, clothing and sledges at a point to be designated on the coast of Greenland. Captain Tyson, in a recent note to Captain Howgate, suggests that the schooner Eva be chartered, and that she be prepared to prosecute whale fishing, thereby covering the cost of the venture and possibly making something more. He estimates the cost of fitting her out at between eight and ten thousand dollars. Fifteen men only, he says, would be necessary, and they should be shipped "on a lay, catch nothing get nothing." The captain seeks contributions either in money or supplies from those interested in Polar exploration. Any inquiries regarding the matter will be cheerfully answered by O. Parker, Signal Office, Equitable Building, Boston.

The general opinion at Bow is, that Flanders killed his step-father in cold blood, and not while defending his mother, as he pretends.

The Massachusetts papers have been discussing the question, "May cousins marry?" and Rev. O. M. Cousens, of North Conway, takes occasion to say that that has been the opinion in his family.

Farmers who do not take the papers stand a good chance now to be humbugged by itinerant venders of specifics warranted as a dead shot for the potato bug. Intelligent farmers who do take the papers are in little danger of such frauds. A Raymond farmer is the first victim. He bought a package of "dead shot" for the beetle, for which he paid two travelling venders $1.25, and on trial found it utterly worthless. The beetles fairly stood on their hind legs and gyrated their tentacles at him for his pains.

The War.

The supreme command of the Turkish armies in Asia Minor has been vested in Djeni Pasha, Mukhtar's performances not coming up to Turkish expectations. The Turks claim to have defeated a Russian column moving on Erzeroum, and to have gained a great victory at Batoum in a battle which lasted ten hours. The reported recapture of Ardahan by the Turks is not confirmed, and is not believed.

NUMBER ONE.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one of them has over secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Conditior Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 2 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all that they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May, John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I came to take my first dose, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them, direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package. JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done, I take pleasure in informing them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be bought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been an free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. FEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head, and I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been travelling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anything. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MTHOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

E. G. PIERCE, JR., P. M.

DECORATION DAY.

Memorial Day opened with a cloudless sky and scarcely a breath of wind; and a gentle breeze from the southward, later in the day, did not prevent it being oppressively warm. More people than usual were on the streets during the forenoon, and more than the average amount of patronage was enjoyed by the various stores, which were all kept open until about two o'clock, when many of them were closed, and kept closed until after the observances of the day were over.

At a quarter past one o'clock, P. M., the Portsmouth Heavy Artillery, Maj. D. J. Vaughan commanding, with the Rochester Cornet Band, proceeded to the Navy Yard landing to receive the United States Marines, of which there were two companies, commanded by Capt. Highby and Lieuts. Whipple and Sherman. The officers of the Navy were also met at the landing by prominent citizens, and escorted to the landaus in waiting close at hand, Commodore Guest, Commandant of the Navy Yard, Commander Erben, Lieut. Commanders Lambertson and Shepard, Surgeon Cleborne Paymaster Guild, Chief Engineers Macomb and Williamson and Constructor Wilson taking part in the exercises of the day.

The procession formed promptly, in the order specified in the previously published programme, with the addition of the City Guards, Capt. Hickey, which appeared in line with nearly full ranks. Among the prominent citizens we noticed in one carriage Ex-Gov. Goodwin, Hon. Frank Jones and Mayor Broughton. Prompt on the stroke of two o'clock Chief Marshal Hilton gave the word of command, and the procession started on its march over the advertised route, which though not unreasonably long was somewhat wearisome, owing to the heat. The observances at the cemetery were carried out according to previous arrangement, and the procession returned to Market square and dismissed at about half-past five o'clock. The route of the procession was changed, so far as to lead through Court and Pleasant streets to Market square, from Middle street, on the return march, on account of a lady being sick in a house on Congress street.

The progress of the procession through the streets was rendered much less tedious than it otherwise would have been, by the generous courtesy of Messrs. Brown and Barri, who gratuitously ran their street sprinklers over the entire route, thereby earning the gratitude of every person who made the march, and the citizens generally.

JOTTINGS.

We do not remember a holiday—or semi-holiday—when the streets were so free from drunkenness as on Wednesday. There may have been, and probably were, more or less drunken people about the city somewhere, but they kept themselves pretty well out of sight, for we did not see one. Considering the number of people on the streets, the number of saloons and the heat of the day, we should not have been surprised at seeing two dozen on Market square alone.

Calvin Page, Esq., has been appointed assignee of Spalding & Parrott of this city, and Howe Call, Esq., assignee of Lewis L. DeRochemont of Newington.

That the citizens' committee on Memorial Day observances made a most judicious selection in choosing a Chief Marshal is acknowledged on all hands. It is generally considered necessary to have a Chief Marshal who makes a fine appearance on horseback, and the gallant and portly Colonel entirely filled the bill in this respect; in addition to which he moved the procession exactly on time,—a rare thing to do with so long a line, as everyone knows who ever waited a weary half hour or more after taking position before getting the word to march,—and himself gave the necessary orders for getting the procession under way, and did it in good style, too. The committee, and everybody else who felt interested in having things go off smoothly on that day, owe him thanks for accepting the position he so creditably filled. Col. Hilton had two most efficient aids in Col. J. Horace Kent and Capt. Frank Williams.

It is reported that Hon. Willard P. Phillips, one of the trustees of the Eastern Railroad under the legislative act, will refuse to sign the contract made between the Eastern and Boston & Maine companies, and that this will invalidate it.

The Rochester Cornet Band was deservedly commended some two or three years ago for the quality of music furnished on Memorial Day, our citizens (and they were then inclined to be rather critical, having been long accustomed to the excellent music of the Marine Band) being agreeably surprised that a country band should perform so creditably. This good opinion of the band was heightened last Wednesday, when a liberal quantity of most excellent marching music was given, and a selection from "Moses in Egypt" was played at the cemetery with a precision and expression which could hardly have been hoped for. If the band serves out anything near as good music at home as it has on the two visits to this city, the citizens of Rochester should encourage the organization with liberal patronage.

A friend thinks we must have made some mistake in a recently published item, in the CHRONICLE, concerning the yacht "Phantom," built at Kittery by Mr. William Dixon, in saying "her bowsprit is fourteen feet over the stern." We want our friend to understand that we wrote that item, and when we "write up" a new vessel we propose to rig her to suit our own fancy, and if we choose to ship her bowsprit over the stern it's nobody's business; and we'll hang her rudder to the cutwater, too, if we take a notion, and put her shoe in the foretop and her knightheads on the taffrail.

No other city in the State, of the size of Portsmouth, can make anything near so creditable a military display as was made here Memorial Day. There was a company of heavy artillery, one of light artillery, one of infantry and one of cavalry. The cavalry turned out with forty-three sabres, and attracted a great deal of deserved attention and commendation. The City Guards' uniform of blue, though far less showy than the uniforms of the two artillery companies, is quite as well fancied by old campaigners, if we may judge from remarks we have heard from some of them; it is evidently a uniform for use, and would require no change if the company were mustered into the United States service.

We are informed that a freight train over the Portland, Saco, & Portsmouth Railroad, due in this city at ten o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, May 20th, ran over a horse when just this side of Kennebunk. As the train passed, the poor animal was seen hobbling off, evidently in great agony, and the train was stopped and backed to the spot where the accident happened, where the lower portions of both the poor brute's hind legs were found lying beside the track. The train men at once set out to hunt up the wounded horse, and he was found almost half a mile away, and at once mercifully put out of his misery. The train arrived here nearly two hours behind time,—but the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals evidently has no mission to fulfill so far as the railroaders on that train are concered.

The temperance meeting at Mechanics' Hall on Thursday evening was unusually interesting, Mr. John F. Coles, the eloquent champion of temperance reform, addressing the audience. The lecture on Sunday evening next will be by Mr. Charles W. Gardner; subject, "Retrospective and Prospective." A collection will be taken to defray Hall expenses.

On Wednesday evening two marines left the barracks at this Navy Yard, stole a boat, came over to town and got drunk; and on returning, a little past midnight, through their drunken management upset their craft just off the north side of the Yard, and would have been drowned but for the help of Mr. Richard Davidson and another watchman on duty at the Yard, who, after much labor, succeeded in rescuing them from their perilous situation. Besides getting a fright, and a ducking, the unlucky marines got caught in unauthorized absence from quarters, and will not be likely to get another chance to get drunk on the sly for some time to come.

A REMINISCENCE.

Portsmouth, as a friend in town writes us, although unaware of the honor at the time, might once have boasted of a genuine highwayman, who could order a traveller to stand and deliver his watch and purse with as much grace as did ever Dick Turpin, or any other "gentleman of the road" upon the London highway. Mike Martin was his name, and "the green isle" his birthplace. After figuring upon the road on both sides of the Atlantic, he came to our city, and hiring a brew-house that stood not far from where the Kearsarge Mills are now located, went into the manufacture of beer. He was a gentlemanly-looking fellow in his then fashionable "long-tailed blue" with gilt buttons, short pants, bell-crowned hat, and high-heeled boots, and could be seen on a summer evening taking an ice-cream at Peduzzi's confectionery. After being here for a while, he hired a horse and chaise at Hall's stable on Pleasant street for a day's jaunt, which by some strange forgetfulness probably, he somewhere sold as if they were his own. The next heard of him was that he had robbed one Major Bray upon the Salem turnpike, for which indiscretion he was hanged at Lechmore Point, near Boston, though asserting that the pistol he placed at the major's head was empty, the charge having been fired at a cat upon the road.

The Blue and the Grey.

First Lieut. Frank D. Webster, U. S. Marine Corps, of this city, had command of the Marine Battalion, at Norfolk, Va., on the 25th., which took part in the Memorial ceremonies of respect to the confederate dead. The Norfolk Virginian says:

"This is the first time since the war that the soldiers who fought on opposite sides in that unhappy struggle have united in the observance of Confederate Memorial Day, and we wish that the whole country could have looked on and witnessed the occurrencies which took place in our two communities on yesterday. We think it would have given great comfort to the patriots who desire the obliteration of sectional animosities and the return of peace and good will between the sections, and it would have satisfied the demagogues who seek to foment discord and strife that their occupation is gone, and that the true men of the North and of the South have determined to bury forever the bitterness of the past and to make common heritage of its glory. The action of the Federal officers and their troops in volunteering to partake in the Memorial ceremonies (in honor of the Confederate dead, was as just to their own generous impulses as it was gratifying to our people. It was the tribute of brave men living to brave men dead; it was the outward manifestation of that respect and admiration which the chivalric soldier always feel for a worthy foe, and more than ever in the hour of victory. It was more; it was the recognition by American soldiers whose hands had raised the stars and stripes to victory, of the valor and the honesty of purpose of their countrymen who had faithfully followed another flag to defeat, and who had sealed with their own blood their devotion to a lost cause. It was gracefully and nobly done, and in behalf of our two communities and of the State of Virginia, and of the whole South, we thank every officer and man who participated in the tribute to the Confederate dead. And we tell them that in their noble, soldier-like way, they have done more to erase all bitterness of feeling, and to fix the returning affections of our people on the flag under which they march so worthily, than Presidents or statesmen have it in their power to do. In thus honoring the men who died for us, and whose memories are still so dear to us, they have touched the tenderest spot of our nature, they have knocked at the inner door of our hearts, and our affections rush out to meet them."

Cheerfulness the Offspring of Health.

That equable state of the mind which is unruffled by trifling incidents, and looks on the sunny side of things in general, is the result of a healthful state of the brain and stomach. The dyspeptic and nervous invalid may, although this is rare indeed—feign cheerfulness, and may bear the harassing symptoms which persecute him with an assumption of heroic indifference, but in reality he is the victim of despondency. To experience genuine cheerfulness of mind, the stomach must recover its lost tone, the thinking organ its normal quietude. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are the best remedy for mental depression, since they overcome the nervous debility and indigestion which originate and foster it. Persons suffering from infirmities peculiarly incident to the decline of life, ladies in delicate health, and convalescents, derive solace and vigor from its use. Drive away the blues and revive the drooping energies with this grand stimulative tonic.

It Would be Ridiculous

for those who use Sozodont to decry it, for the moment they opened their mouths the state of their teeth would contradict the slander of their tongues. It removes discolorations, imparts a glittering whiteness to the enamel, and renders the decomposition of the teeth impossible.

An article of prime necessity—Spalding's Glue.

CONSUMPTION AND CLIMATE.—The census of 1870 shows the average mortality from consumption throughout the Union to be, in a rough way, proportional to the average temperature of the given State. Deaths from this cause are ten times as frequent in Massachusetts, and—as Mr. Bill has rather candidly neglected to inform us, says an exchange—twice as frequent in Minnesota as they are in Georgia. Minnesota is indeed a colder State than Massachusetts but its greater cold is offset, in part, by the greater dryness of its soil. A damp soil is one of the most prolific causes of consumption. Minnesota occupies an elevated portion of the continent; it is an undulating country, and its natural watersheds insure its thorough drainage. This circumstance undoubtedly conduces to the healthiness of the climate. But we have found, from personal observation, that where persons are liable to consumption, it is far better to take some prescribed remedy, such as Dr. A. J. Figg's Cough and Lung Syrup, which is sure to cure if taken in time, and will relieve the worst cases.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world. — *Pueblo Col. Cure that cough! How? With Adamson's Botanic Balsam. It is warranted to cure coughs, colds, asthma and all lung difficulties. Sample free. Large bottles 35 cents.

It is very safe to say that the most fastidious guest never leaves the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., dissatisfied with his visit to that famous hostelry.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SEAVEY, Keeper, at No. 3 Mt. Vernon St. Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They therefore would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set out them—may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

Extinct New England Industries.

Half a century ago bellows making was a thriving trade. Every house had its pair of bellows, and in every well-furnished mansion there hung a pair by the side of every fire-place. Ipswich, in Massachusetts, acquired a notoriety all over New England for elegant and substantial articles produced. But as stoves and grates took the place of open fire places, and as coal was substituted for wood, the demand for bellows diminished until the business as a separate trade quite died out. The same is true of flint cutting. Flints were once necessary, not only for fire arms but for tinder boxes, and a tinder box was as necessary to every house as a kettle, a gridiron or a skillet. Every one who looks back to a childhood of forty odd years ago must remember the cold winter mornings, when the persistent crack of the flint against the hard steel sent up from the kitchen an odor of igniting tinder and sulphur, which pervaded the house. I have no more idea what became of the producers than an old man of sorrowful memories, who two or three times a week called at our door with brimstone matches, for one cent the half-dozen bunches. Both have been as completely banished from England and New England as have the red Indians and the Druids.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 12mo., 216 pp., $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative we could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before it was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 16, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the ground. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about the premises of the Legislature or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 71. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, poultry, over flows of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any slaughter house, privy vault or receptacle of any swine, slaughter house, privy vault, or other nuisance, some or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

DANIEL W. JONES, M. D.,
ROBERT SHILLABER,
DANIEL DANIELSON,

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

INFANTS, INVALIDS, NURSING MOTHERS,
GROWING CHILDREN AND AGED PERSONS
Will find Life, Vigor and Health by using PEPSINATED NUTRIMENT,
With the VEGETABLE PHOSPHATES, which is superior to all other foods, for it consists of PURE NUTRIMENT: Containing only the pure nutritive portion of various grains, extracted by a chemical process (all inert principles being carefully rejected) combined with the Vegetable Phosphates obtained from the germinal portion of grain, so as to form a most perfect brain, bone, and muscle producing food, combined with Pepsin, forming a complete remedy for the worst cases of Cholera Infantum, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and all affections arising from a disordered stomach.

For Infants, Invalids, Growing Children and Nursing Mothers. Nursing Mothers should take it as a regular diet, in order to furnish nutriment and vitalizing material to the growing infant.

The only Infants' Food prepared on strictly scientific principles. To be used in Cholera Infantum Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and all Intestinal troubles. For Infants, Invalids, Aged Persons, Nursing Mothers and Weakly Children.

This preparation is endorsed by the Medical Faculty, it having been in constant use by them for a number of years with the best of success, it being the only food acting with certainty in those cases that require Pepsin and the Phosphates for complete success.

DYSPEPSIA, HEARTBURN, ACID STOMACH, HEADACHE, BILIOUS STOMACH, DIARRHŒA, and any derangement of the Organs of Digestion are immediately relieved and speedily cured by

PEPSINATED CHARCOAL.

It is particularly adapted to Chronic Cases, and is prescribed and endorsed by our first physicians as the only preparation ever presented for the troubles for which it is recommended.

The Perils of the Base.

The only son of a widowed mother in the vicinity of Douglas Park, is member of a B. B. C. On Saturday he had his hair cut and oiled, and accoutred himself for the fray, and his fond mother tied one of her best lace trimmed handkerchiefs round his throat, and put a clean handkerchief, with some cologne on it, in his belt, and kissed him, and he went like a sheep to the slaughter. About a quarter past seven he returned—that is, the most of him—and the following conversation ensued:

"My son, where is the lace handkerchief you had round your neck?"

"Here, ma, tied round his finger. I took up a daisy-cutter. I think the finger is only out of joint, not broken."

"My son, why do you not speak plainer? Surely, surely you have not been drinking?"

"No, ma; but in the latter half of the seventh inning our catcher's hands gave out and I went behind, and I stopped a foul tip with my teeth; that is all."

"My son, your nice new uniform is all blooded in front. What ever can you have been doing?"

"Nothing, ma, only I was trying to just scoop in a high one at third, and the sun got in my eyes, and I muffed it, and the ball came on my nose, but I put it over to first and got him out."

"My son, your white flannel pants are all green behind,"

"That, ma, was in the third inning when I tried to steal to second, and had to throw myself down and slide in. I got the base anyhow, and came in on a two-baser to left field."

"Alas, my son, I fear that you have had an unpleasant day. Let me send for a surgeon and a dentist, and get some arnica, ice-water, lint, raw beefsteak, splints, sticking-plaster, vinegar and brown paper, Radway's Ready Relief, Perry Davis' Pain-Killer, compresses, slings, leeches, clean clothes, opodeldoc, horse liniment, and in a few days you will not know yourself."

"O, ma, it was the bulliest game I ever was in—ten innings, and the score seven to six. If I die I give my bat to Billy Humpreys and my spiked shoes to Charley Cross." (Exit, led out by his ma. Curtain falls.)

A Word for the Dogs.

Mr. George T. Angell, president of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty, comes to the defence of dogs, against which there is especially severe legislation in Boston. He says:

"If we had only two deaths of hydrophobia in Boston in twenty-four years, if not one person out of twenty or thirty bitten, is infected, and out of more than four hundred cases treated by a skilful surgeon not one died, surely the danger is not so great as to require the instant slaughter of every dog that slips out the front door without his muzzle, or has it stolen, or rubs it off. Two persons have lost their lives during the past twenty-four years, because dogs were made mad. How many human lives have been saved by dogs that were not mad? How many homes have been made safe from fire and burglars? How many children, and fathers, and mothers, have they made happy? In Constantinople, where some eighty thousand dogs roam the streets, hydrophobia is unknown. In Egypt, Syria, southern Africa, South Sea Islands, Lisbon, Madeira, and many other places where there is no restriction and no tax, it is unheard of. Undoubtedly we are justified in protecting human life by all reasonable means. Undoubtedly we ought not to subject the humblest creature to unnecessary suffering. If public safety requires that they be killed, let it be done privately and mercifully, after three days' detention, and let not the disagreeable duty be imposed on our police, of shooting or poisoning them in our public streets."

A Friend of the Profession.

A man, on coming down town the other morning, discovered that his boots needed polishing, and called a boot-black, to whom, the operation being concluded, he tendered the customary fee. "Keep your nickels, mister," urbanely replied the artist, drawing the cuff of his jacket across his nose; "we don't charge nothing to friends of the profession."

"Friends of the profession? How? What? Don't understand you," said the West Sider.

"Well, I'll explain," said the boy. "May be you don't live on West Van Buren, up near Ashland avenue, beyond where the boys used to play base-ball and near them big houses with marble boddices in the gardens, and maybe you haven't a garden plot and a hose?"

The man said his informant's information, whatever its source, was indubitably correct.

"Well, mister," continued the boy, "I see you the other evening slinging water out of that hose all over creation, like as if you was Noah and the Twelfth Ward was Sodom and Gomorrah, and I see you sprinkle the boots of $2 dollars worth of young swells as was going down to get their girls and go to the theatre, and of course they had to have them shined up again. You was making business for us, and we allow you the regular commission. Your hat's chalked—your boots I mean—at every box in town. You can't drop a cent, not if your feet was twice as big as they are. And, mister, if our society ever strikes it rich, they're going to have a statue of you, life size, in plaster, with a hose in your hand squirting round like Cassbianca, or Ben Bullwinkle, or any of them pillars of fire, and we'll put it up in Union Park, bet you we do," and the enthusiastic boy, bowing humbly to his benefactor, departed.—Chicago Tribune.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.

General Ord's arrival here has had the effect to bring Mexican matters to the surface again, they, and also the Mormon business, having run their self-limited course as sensations and subsided several days ago. With Secretary McCrary the General held a long consultation with Mr. Evarts yesterday, relative to the line of policy to be adopted in the treatment of the Mexican cattle-raiders, he giving it as his opinion, derived from long experience as commanding officer on the Rio Grande, that the practice can only be effectually suppressed by the pursuit of the offenders until overtaken and punished. It has been for months tacitly understood that he was permitted to cross into Mexico to recapture the stolen property but not inflict other punishment than that incidentally resulting from his efforts to repossess such property. The point yesterday talked over was as to the advisability of so enlarging the scope of his authority as to inflict proper chastisement. No conclusion was reached and the matter goes to the Cabinet to-day for decision.

Those who hoped to learn something of the intentions of the Government towards Lerdo and his fellow fillibusters in case of an attempt to cross into Mexico by way of the Rio Grande, were disappointed, as it is not known that any allusion was made to the matter.

The movements of McMahon, under direction of the ultramontane prompters, are watched from this point with a good deal of interest; and every new telegram from Versailles is regarded with an intensity of feeling showing the deep concern of the public men, and politicians gathered at Washington, in the republican experiment in France; and the whole European situation now attracts almost as much attention as political and other matters at home.

Following the explosion of the sensational story sent away from this city last Friday night relative to the formation of a new party with Blaine at its head, there was published in a yesterday morning's paper, with every evidence of approval, an incredible yarn of another "new party" movement, having for its purpose a message of concern composed of leaders from both of the existing parties who could be drawn into support of the Administration, "with such ghastly recruits from the grave of the whig party as could be induced to come out on a social invitation. It was stated that the White House had been almost continuously invaded during the past six weeks by the most prominent citizens and political managers in the country, consulting with President Hayes and his Cabinet advisers with the purpose of getting the hybrid on its legs as soon as possible and then to insure it a good send off. Finally it intimates the scheme is so far advanced that the obligations of secrecy are no longer binding; and it announces that a meeting in New York has been determined upon when the birth of the Administration party will be formally proclaimed and celebrated, and the President's friends called to rally to his support. The Star of last evening devoted a paragraph or two to its consideration, speaking rather incredulously, but warning all interested that new parties are largely spontaneous productions, and cannot be called into being to gratify the ambition or resentments of anybody.

It is said the refusal of one of the District Commissioners to paying an excessive charge for advertising to the Republican explains the warfare now being waged on the Commissioners by that sheet, in connection with the recent awards for paving and repairing our streets. The report has it that the price charged was just twice that paid the Star, a much more widely circulated paper. ENOX.

The War.

Along the Danube things are generally quiet, the swollen state of the river preventing active operations. The proposed Turkish attack on Montenegro has been again postponed. The London Times' special from Belgrade says the Turkish irregulars have attacked an island in the Drina on Servian territory, where the inhabitants were peaceably working in the fields, and killed several. They carried off some people and cattle. The Government has sent a commission to investigate the matter. Another band crossed the Danube between Kalarack and Jalomitza. They captured fourteen Roumanian militia men and cut off the calves of their legs.

The Vienna Tagblatt says that Moukhtar Pasha, recently the Turkish commander-in-chief in Asia Minor, has been dismissed and will be court-martialled for representing that he had equipped an army of 68,000 men, whereas he had only 30,000 at his disposal. Malversation on an enormous scale is said to have been discovered. The Russians acknowledge that the Turks have retaken Ardahan, after the Russians had reduced the place to ruins. The Russian official despatches give the following account of the fighting around Batoum, previously reported by the Turks as desperate and bloody battles: "General Oklobskio, commanding the operations against Batoum, ordered his advance guard to the left bank of the river Klutrisch to carry the Sameba heights on the left of the Turkish line. The enterprise was accomplished. Meantime the detachment ascended the Klutrisch, and after great difficulty established a position about four miles from Klaizubani, thus cutting communication between Batoum and the population of the Kabeleti District. The Russian loss in both enterprises was four killed and thirty wounded."

The Chisolm Massacre.

A Mississippian, in Washington, who has served with Gov. Stone in the Legislature, declares that the latter does not dare take active measures to punish the Kemper county murderers from fear that it would lose him his election next November. Nine-tenths of his party sympathize with the murderers, and not one of the fifty-nine democratic papers in the State has yet condemned the massacre.

Gov. Stone says that no jury in Kemper county would convict the murderers of the Chisolm family; and this is given as an excuse for the slight attempts to bring them to justice. Public opinion sustains the crime and shields the perpetrators. The apologists of this barbarism point to outrageous crimes in New England, as an offset to the Kemper county horror. Crimes are committed everywhere. No condition of society is exempt from them. But in a civilized society, as in New England, public opinion is against the offenders; and public justice seeks, not in vain, to bring them to punishment. In Mississippi and in others of the reconstructed States, the offences are committed by the class of men who in the North punish them. No jury can be found to convict a man who has murdered a republican, black or white.

The Baltimore Sun, a paper which even the veriest Bourbon must acknowledge is soundly democratic, says of the Chisolm massacre: "Whether, however, the work of the mob had any political significance or not, it was alike brutal, savage, and murderous. The authorities of that State owe it to justice, humanity, and the safety of their own people to inflict righteous retribution upon the perpetrators of that abominable crime. We have seldom heard of a massacre as wicked, cowardly, and cruel. It had not about it one redeeming element. If they had given Mr. Chisolm fair play, if they had permitted the presence of his little son and daughter to stay their hands for the time even, there might have been more pretense of 'chivalry' than there can be now. * * * It is about time that this state of things should come to an end, even in the most remote districts, and no part of the country is more interested in such a result than that which is most exposed to the evil machinations of those who wish to make the South 'a permanent issue in our politics.'"

News and Notes.

A Havana letter says that the insurgents captured the small town of Santa Rosalia, opposite Guisa, on the 22d ult., killed and captured the garrison, sacked the houses and set fire to them. They carried off considerable booty, including one hundred stand of arms, thirty thousand rounds of fixed ammunition and a large quantity of stores. Several boats and launches, with Spaniards from Gibara, were repulsed with a heavy loss as they attempted to rescue the town. Sickness increases in the Spanish army.

The match for the billiard championship of America, the Delaney gold medal, value $600, and a stake of $1000, between Joseph Dion, champion, and William Sexton, both of New York city, was played Thursday evening at Tammany Hall. There was a large attendance. It was the three-ball carom game, 600 points. The following is the score: Dion, 442; Sexton, 600; number of innings, 49; time of game, 2 hours 45 minutes. Sexton's highest run, 247. Dion's highest run, 84. Saxton's average, 12.49; Dion's average, 9.1. On the 49th inning Sexton made his run of 247, running the game out amidst the greatest excitement.

J. Lothrop Motley, the American historian, died Tuesday, May 29, of paralysis, at the Kingston-Russell House, Dorsetshire, England, the residence of his son-in-law, Algernon Sheridan. Mr. Motley was a native of Dorchester, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard. He entered the diplomatic service in 1841, when he was appointed Secretary of the U. S. Legation at St. Petersburg. In 1861, he was appointed Minister to Austria, a position which he held for six years. Subsequently, for a few months, he was our Minister at the Court of St. James. Mr. Motley's great fame rests upon his "Rise of the Dutch Republic," and "History of the United Netherlands." He was 63 years of age.

When the steamer Costa Rica arrived at Mazatlan with the wrecked crew and passengers of the City of San Francisco, Admiral Murray of the frigate Pensacola called Capt. Waddell to his private room and urged upon him a large sum of money, saying: "Pay it when you can, and if never all right." The captain declined the offer although reduced to almost penury. Subsequently the officers of the flagship Pensacola sent Capt. Waddell $488.50, the amount of a subscription for the women and children of the wrecked steamer.

The Alleghany base ball club, of Pittsburg, Pa., and the Indianapolis club, played a game of fourteen innings on Thursday, resulting in a draw, each side having scored two runs.

The jury in the case of Lucy Ann Mink, at Lowell, on Thursday brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter again-t her for killing Charles Ricker, her paramour, for deserting her for another woman as degraded as herself. She was once before tried for a similar crime, the killing of Dr. Baker, in Maine, but escaped conviction. Her counsel took exceptions to the judge's rulings, and sentence was deferred.

Hughes and Mullins, who were apprehended in an attempt to break open the tomb of President Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., were on Thursday convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for one year in the State Prison. Considering the nature of the offence the penalty is looked upon as a light one. At the time of their arrest an effort was made to have the perpetrators of the crime bailed out on straw bail, but it was unsuccessful, and some persons who offered themselves as such bail and were qualified are now to be tried for perjury. The testimony developed a most extensive conspiracy. The idea was to obtain Mr. Lincoln's remains and demand as their ransom the sum of $200,000. Some of the leading counterfeiters and crooked men of the West appear to have been involved in the matter, and indictments have been found against many of them; and the seven who committed the perjury, in falsely qualifying as bail, will be brought to trial at once.

A mutiny occurred on board brig C. C. Sweney, of Harrington, Me., on the 16th of May, a few hours after the vessel sailed from Havre. Four of the six men composing the crew refused to work, and killed the mate, Henry Harris, with shots from revolvers. They then attempted the assassination of Captain Cole, the master, and the second mate, who escaped by barricading themselves in the captain's cabin. Through the energy and courage of the cook, the steward and two of the men who were loyal to their officers, the vessel was got back to Havre. Upon visiting the vessel with the Chief of Police the United States Consul found the body of the mate riddled with pistol bullets. The mutineers were placed in irons and at once sent to prison, the witnesses remaining on board under police guard awaiting the action of the French authorities, who claim jurisdiction over the case, as it is charged by the French pilot who was on board at the time of the mutiny that the mutineers fired upon him.

Rice vs. Coolidge, a case of scandal in "high life," is on trial in Boston and attracting much attention. The evidence offered in the case is very "rich"—a synonym for very filthy.

There is a report, which it is hoped will prove true, that McLelland, the brave Scotch victim of the Kemper county tragedy, was a British subject, and that a demand has already been made on Secretary Evarts that his murderers should be punished. In this way it would become the duty of the National Government to interfere, and the neglect of the State to arrest and try the murderers would be remedied by federal action, which no doubt would be prompt and rigorous.

New Hampshire Items.

Work has begun on the new Ashuelot railroad depot at Keene.

The debt of Rockingham county has increased the past year some $10,000, and now amounts to about $120,000.

The valuation of the city of Dover for the present year is $7,256,025 80; ratable polls, 2840; whole valuation, $7,540,000; whole assessment, $113,500; rate of tax, $1.50 on $100, an increase of 10 cents on last year's rate.

The Keene Sentinel says that the extended list of candidates for the Speakership of the House has been reduced to two or three the past week, and that the selection seems likely to fall to Augustus H. Woolson of Lisbon.

It is stated that 70,000 persons have signed the pledge in New Hampshire during the reform movement, of whom 13,000 were confirmed drunkards.

The Tecumseh and Manchester base ball clubs played a game at Manchester on Thursday, the former club winning, 5 to 0.

The young man, Cyrus W. Peavey, who abducted Miss Jones of West Epping a short time ago, is at Alton. No efforts will be made to arrest him.

NUMBER ONE.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever earned so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

It has been known to the public almost forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has been such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Conditior Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all that are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May, John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package. JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 15, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head, or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed anything of them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, NOV. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MESSRS. W. LANE—Sirs:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

CITY AFFAIRS.

At the meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a petition of M. B. Vennard and others for the grading of Vaughan street with crushed stone, was referred to the committee on streets.

Petition of Charles Walker for relay of sidewalk in front of his residence on Richards avenue, was referred to the committee on streets with power.

Leave was granted to C. H. Mendum to encumber Congress street, and to John H. Flagg to encumber Union street, and to Main & Winchester to repair drain.

Petition of Mrs. Salter for cross-walk on State street was referred to committee on streets.

Complaint against the lamplighter in District No. 3 was referred to committee on gas-lights.

Protest of A. J. Penhallow against the public meeting asked for by Rev. John A. Goss and others was accepted.

The committee on widening streets, etc., to whom was referred the petition of F. K. Brown and others for a highway from North street to the foot of Jackson Hill street, reported. The matter was referred back to the same committee for further investigation.

Line of Lafayette Road near new house of Mr. Willey, was referred to the committee on streets with power.

The committee on streets, to whom was referred A. T. Walker's complaint against the street sprinkling apparatus in Brewster street, reported that in their opinion there is no nuisance, and recommended that the apparatus be allowed to remain. The report was adopted.

The Board voted that the petition of James R. Connell and others, for an alteration in the highway at and near the junction of Myrtle and Dennett streets, be granted, provided it can be done at a cost not exceeding $15, and that the subject be referred to the committee on laying out and widening streets, with power.

The committee on bills on second reading, to whom was referred the Appropriation bill for 1877, reported the same with amendments: Reducing the amount to be raised by taxation to $126,000 [The balance of amount necessary to pay appropriations, it is estimated, will come from railroad and savings banks taxes, from the State treasury]; increasing appropriation for streets from $7,000 to $9,000; reducing appropriation for schools from $23,000 to $21,500; and reducing appropriation for sprinkling streets from $500 to $300. The bill was then read a second time and passed as amended.

The committee on city land and buildings, to whom was referred to application of B. F. Webster for the purchase of a part of the city farm, reported, recommending that the land be sold to Mr. Webster for $225 per acre. The report was accepted.

The subject of vacations for members of the police force was referred to the mayor with power.

The application of the chief engineer for screen doors to the hose tower was referred to the committee on fire department with power.

POLICE COURT.

Thursday, May 31st.

Mary A. Macdonald was brought up on complaint of Mrs. Margaret Stratt, who said Mary was drunk and assaulted and battered her. Mrs. Macdonald said it was Mrs. Stratt who was drunk, and that the bruises on her face were caused by her falling down a flight of steps and against a picket fence. The police officer who was called to arrest the Macdonald woman, just after the alleged row, found Mrs. Stratt so drunk that he took her to the station instead of the other. The case was dismissed.

Friday, June 1st.

James Dermody, charged with vagrancy, was sent to Brentwood for four months, costs $6.90.

LET THE BIRDS LIVE.

Messrs. Editors: Looking out of my chamber window a day or two ago, my attention was attracted by a golden robin—a female—busily engaged in pecking among the top-most limbs of a pear tree, where the canker worms have been at work. Whether she was eating the canker worms or not I cannot say, but there was nothing else there for her to eat, and for some ten or fifteen minutes she was very busy, hopping from twig to twig, pecking into the crotches of the limbs and peering beneath their under sides in a most comical manner. She was shortly joined by her brilliantly attired mate, who alighted on a twig near her and sidled up with a most insinuating twitter, but the soberly dressed little lady gave her lord a dab with her beak, probably by way of notice that she was engaged in serious business and had no time to spare for love-making; at least he seemed to take it that way, for he immediately gave up his twittering and went to pecking among the branches,—which convinced me that he won't be boss in that family. I was so much entertained by the movements of the beautiful little creatures that my cigar went out, and my pen, full of ink, laid itself down on the letter I was writing, but suddenly the birds and I were startled by the report of a gun; a few leaves dropped from the top of the pear tree, and my feathered friends flew away. Sticking my head out of the window I saw a boy, perhaps a dozen years old, holding a gun in one hand and his jaw in the other, and crying. Unaccustomed though I am to public speaking, yet I did orate to that boy, extempore. What I said I do not exactly remember, but possibly my remarks may have aroused that boy's suspicions that I am not a member in good and regular standing in any evangelical church; but I don't care what such a boy as that thinks of me, anyway. When my exhausted breath occasioned a pause, the boy (by way of apology for his attempted crime) blubbered out that his gun had kicked up and hit him in the jaw, and was comforted with the assurance that I was sorry it hadn't kicked him hard enough to stretch his neck out three feet long; however, I did relent sufficiently to take him into the house and bathe his swollen face, (I fear his jaw was not broken,) for which he had to pay by listening to my stern rebuking until my wife put me out of the room and took charge of things herself—just like the golden robin. There may not be any point to this story; come to look over it, I don't think there is; but I wish to add that if boys (and men, too) would but study the habits of the birds instead of pitilessly and aimlessly slaughtering them, they would find out that there is more genuine entertainment in one living bird than in a dozen shattered and blood-stained ones. Also, I wish to notify all boys that whoever kills one of these little birds near my house will have my lasting hatred—that's just the word—and I shall rejoice when I hear his gun has burst and blown his head off. BIRD FANCIER.

JOTTINGS.

Ninety-two in the shade, Friday.

Steamer Clara Bateman arrived in the lower harbor from Gloucester, Mass., with a steam dredge for use on the Cocheco river improvements, Thursday evening, and on Friday took the big, clumsy-looking craft up the river to her destination.

A son of Mr. Harry Gray, aged about eight years, was knocked down and stepped on by a horse one afternoon this week, just after leaving school, and was considerably injured, one of the horse's corks being driven into his forehead. The driver of the team we are informed was not to blame for the accident, as the boy heedlessly ran in front of the team just in time to be struck.

Mr. Andrew J. Locke has taken the contract for laying the foundation for the new opera hall, an assurance that the work will be done in the best possible manner, for Mr. Locke is a thoroughly competent mechanic.

No. 1 Steam Launch, at the Navy Yard, while moored at the store-house wharf Thursday night, caught under the iron strap around the wharf fender, filled as the tide rose, and sank in fifteen feet of water (at low tide). The stern line parted, but the bow line held; hawsers were slipped under her, and the officers and crew of the U. S. S. Enterprise raised her on Friday.

MR. PENHALLOW'S PROTEST.

At the meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen Thursday evening, Mr. A. J. Penhallow's protest against the granting of the petition of the Reform Club asking that a public meeting be called to discuss the liquor question, was read, as follows:

The undersigned respectfully represents that his name stands on the "list" of an organization known as the Reform Club of this city. As I have reason to believe this "Club" has presented a petition requesting that the city will authorize a meeting for discussion, etc., therefore I take the liberty to say that I object to such use of my name.

1. Because the ordinary course of municipal legislation is fully enough onerous, and should not therefore have any additions that can be very well disposed of by citizens generally.

2. Because they of the Club have in themselves all reasonable liberty of discussion which will surely accomplish its object unless all ideas that are not "one-sided" and narrow are excluded. To aid in such exclusiveness would not be right on the part of the city.

3. We have had disagreeable experience enough that such meetings are the cause of wrangling, divisions and alienations, and perhaps not in one case out of ten would they result in anything of permanent advantage to the sacred cause sought to be promoted thereby.

4. Because to my mind the true course of friends of temperance is to make a careful analysis of the means by which the good already wrought out has been attained. Be thankful for these results, and take courage therefrom, and make full determination to fight it through "on the same line."

No person more than myself can deplore the degradation and corruption that is manifested in the extensive use of evil drinks, and the "short-sightedness" in the perversion of our pure water, the befouling of our air, and the defacement of our moral beauty by the manufactories.

And no one can wait more patiently with eyes toward the Lord, that he will avenge the "poor and the needy," and "purge the flow" of whatever evils baffle human wisdom and power. The Almighty does not always long delay an answer to those "who cry night and day unto Him," but some form of answer may be said to come immediately. The answer in this case seems to be, "Keep on praying, old people, middle aged, youth and children; and all maintain a consistent example."

Then let the manufacturers take what unmanufactured stock they have and the materials of their buildings, and distribute to those who need food and dwellings,—thus would they get a glory such as is promised by the Gospel.

In the light of these communications, the best welfare of our city and the cause of temperance require that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw.

As in duty bound, &c.,

A. J. PENHALLOW.

At a special meeting, Wednesday evening, of the tax-payers of school district number five in Seabrook, which comprises nearly all of what is known as South Seabrook, it was voted to reconsider the vote of a previous meeting "to repair and refit the schoolhouse," and it was further voted to build a new schoolhouse, two stories high, and to raise $1900 for the purpose. Messrs. Charles Dow, Simeon L. Eaton and Reuben Eaton, Jr., the committee previously chosen to enlarge and repair the old schoolhouse, were chosen a committee to build the new one. There are one hundred and twenty-five children in the district between the ages of five years and fifteen.

The earthquake waves which did such damage on the coast of Peru and astonished the government observers in California, destroyed much property and many lives at the Sandwich Islands. The water rose from fifteen to thirty-six feet on a level.

—The warm weather brings relief. The manufacturers of cough medicines have withdrawn their advertisements, and the reader of the newspaper no more sees staring him in the face the startling lines, "Consumptive, Beware! A little cold will lead to death!" and so on. The cough medicine is now put up in other bottles and is sold as a first-class hair-dye.

Cheerfulness the Offspring of Health.

That equable state of the mind which is unruffled by trifling incidents, and looks on the sunny side of things in general, is the result of a healthful state of the brain and stomach. The dyspeptic and nervous invalid may, although this is rare indeed—feign cheerfulness, and may bear the harassing symptoms which persecute him with an assumption of heroic indifference, but in reality he is the victim of despondency. To experience genuine cheerfulness of mind, the stomach must recover its lost tone, the thinking organ its normal quietude. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are the best remedy for mental depression, since they overcome the nervous debility and indigestion which originate and foster it. Persons suffering from infirmities peculiarly incident to the decline of life, ladies in delicate health, and convalescents, derive solace and vigor from its use. Drive away the blues and revive the drooping energies with this grand stimulative tonic.

It Would be Ridiculous

for those who use Sozodont to decry it, for the moment they opened their mouths the state of their teeth would contradict the slander of their tongues. It removes discolorations, imparts a glittering whiteness to the enamel, and renders the decomposition of the teeth impossible.

An article of prime necessity—Spalding's Glue.

The popular verdict of the travelling public is that the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, cannot be excelled by any other house in the Quaker City.

THE OVERWORKED BRAIN needs especial care in the choice of stimulants. Business men and invalids gain added vigor by the use of Chocolate or Cocoa in place of tea or coffee. The preparations of Walter Baker & Co. retain the highest rank in the market. All grocers sell them.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St. Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others, have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Charming Pets.

There is a pet rattlesnake in Boston. He was brought from Florida, is about five feet in length, and has a body the size of a man's arm, the white, yellow and brown cuticle blending rather beautifully in patches of various forms. The heavy triangular head, characteristic of venomous reptiles, has a sinister expression, and in moments of excitement the five rattles on his tail keep up an unpleasantly suggestive whirring, while a forked tongue of inky blackness and surprising length darts from his turtle-like mouth. He is no sleepy, half-starved fellow, as may readily be imagined, but wide awake, and ready for an encounter of any kind. It was into the cage occupied by this snake that some days since a rather small-sized, wharf rat was introduced, in the expectation that the rodent would form a meal for the stranger. The snake darted on the unwilling visitor and caught him by the neck. The rat, who had hitherto been running around the cage trying to get out gave a sharp squeal as he felt the serpent's fangs, and twisting himself about, buried his teeth in the scaly jaw of the aggressor. The snake writhed and twisted and rattled sharp notes of alarm as the rat kept his sharp incisors at work, and before the spectators could fairly comprehend what had happened, the little quadruped had shaken himself loose and was hopping in affright at the further end of the cage for a means of exit. To the surprise of all, he showed no effects of poison, and when the snake again made a grab at him, he met his creeping foe half way, and snipped off a piece of his long forked tongue. This seemed to be rather more than the Floridian had bargained for, and he dragged himself into a corner, cast down and defeated. Since that time the rat has flourished in his strange quarters. He capers over the body of his whilom enemy, and avoids the punch of a stick by creeping under the head of the snake.

—Whatever else may be said against the Chinese, no one can truthfully say that he ever saw one who patted his hair in the middle.

—A Philadelphia divine is reported to have closed a very impressive discouse by warning his hearers against bartering away their immortal life for a "pot of message."

—When only twenty years old, Abdul, now commander-in-chief of the Turkish army, eloped with a pretty Moldavian Jewess, the vivandiere of his regiment, and the lovers withdrew into a remote village, where they were discovered a year after. He was degraded and reduced to the ranks.

"Canker in the Bud."

You watch its development with expectant solicitude—the choice, exquisitely-moulded bud which promises to unfold with the perfect flower. You perhaps think how it will adorn the drawing-room vase, and anticipate the pleasure of showing it to your flower-loving friends. But some morning you find its head drooping, its fragrance fled, and an ugly purple spot on one of the delicately-tinted petals. It is the poet's "canker in the bud." How often the loathsome canker blights the cherished "infant blossoms" in our household gardens—those human buds give earnest of a brilliant future. The noisome canker, so long concealed—scrofula—at length reveals its dreadful presence and to our bright hopes succeeds the most agonizing fear, for we know the fatal sequel! It portends—pulmonary consumption. It is estimated by eminent medical authorities that at least one-fifth of mankind are afflicted with this insidious malady. But its ravages are so secret, that even its victims are unaware of its presence until it suddenly discloses itself in some of its myriad and oftimes fatal forms. A slight cutaneous eruption is often the only indicator of its presence. The only means of exterminating this disease from the system is by a thorough course of constitutional treatment. This treatment must fulfill three indications, namely, promote nutrition, alter or purify the blood, and arrest disorganization of the tissues and the formation of tubercles. No more efficient alterative can be employed for these purposes than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. While imparting strength and tone to the digestive organs it cleanses the blood and heals the diseased tissues. Test its virtues ere the deadly canker has blighted the life you prize.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, Jr., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative as could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung irving climate of New England.
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. Its offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause the same to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No person may at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer the same to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the City, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that the offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any building leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectual by than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

The Three Southern Heroes.

John Esten Cook furnishes the following for the columns of the Philadelphia Times:

"The death of the famous cavalry man produced a deep and painful sensation, in some degree akin to that produced by the death of Jackson. The Southern people had indeed become accustomed to couple together the three great names, Lee, Jackson and Stuart, valuing each for his peculiar qualities. No comparison is intended to be made between these three distinguished soldiers, but it is interesting to notice how sharply they were contrasted in character, and how peculiarly each was fitted for the sphere in which he moved and his special functions. Lee, the head and front of the struggle, was the born commander-in-chief, fitted for the conception of great campaigns, ever wide awake, a man of august dignity by nature, calm, suave, grave, taking good and evil fortune with the same imposing serenity; in person, one of the most noble and graceful men of his epoch, and the finest rider in the Southern army; in character, simple, pure, patient, binding to himself both the love and respect of men. Jackson was the infantry leader, the 'right arm' to execute what Lee conceived; in person not graceful, in manner silent, reserved, and often abrupt; cautious to counsel but rapid and terrible in execution, going to the battle with muttering prayers on his lips, leaving all to Providence, but striking with all the power of his arm to do his part, and in many ways resembling the Ironsides of Cromwell. Stuart, on the contrary, was the cavalier, essentially belonging to the class of men who followed the fortunes of Charles I., ardent, impetuous, brimming over with the wine of life and youth, with the headlong courage of a high-spirited boy, fond of bright colors, of rippling flags, of martial music and the clash of sabres—in all the warp and woof his character an embodiment of the best traits of the English cavaliers—not of their bad traits. Although his utter carelessness as to the impression he produced subjected him to many calumnies, it is here placed on record, by one who knew his private life thoroughly and was with him day and night for years, that he was in morals among the purest of men—a faithful husband, absolutely without vices of any description, and if not demonstrative in his religious views, an earnest and exemplary Christian. His love for his wife was deep and devoted, and on the death of his little daughter, Flora, he said to me with tears in his eyes, 'I shall never get over it.'"

Bird's Nests.

The best way to find nests is to watch a bird while building; in that way, moreover, you are sure to see them in their best condition, and to know when the eggs are fresh. It requires patience; but you see the workers return again and again to the same spot, and a little closer inspection usually completes your knowledge, though you may sometimes be deceived or nonplussed by the caution and cunning of the architects. You will facilitate your work by scattering cotton-wool, horse-hairs, straws, string, worsted, and cloth where they will attract the attention of the birds about you. Put them on your lawn or on the piazza vines, and watch them. A robin comes to carry off the string, and having used up what you have provided, and liking the material, attacks a long piece wound round a stake, and supporting a gladiolus. By persistent effort he frees a part of it, but the harder that he pulls at the rest, the tighter he ties the knot around the stake, and the string is becoming entangled with his legs; he fights twenty minutes, and then gives it up. Sparrows pick up hairs and straws from the lawn, and warblers come to the vines for cotton-wool, passing fearlessly within three feet of your chair; then they come back to break off little twigs and to peel off shreds of dry bark from the honeysuckle. A pair of golden robins—the male with black and orange, the female with yellow and duller black—come for string, worsted, and thread; but beware of them, for they are thieves. Leave your knitting under the tree there for five minutes, and it is gone; you will find it a week later, a part irrevocably woven into the hanging nest, and a part dangling with the needle in it. The weaving is so cleverly done that you wonder whether the orioles haven't used your needles. Not at all, madam; I defy you to produce with your implements such a piece of work as these birds have produced with their bills. Successful experiments have been made by supplying the orioles, in the tree where they are occupied, with bright silks and worsteds, which they employ altogether, if liberally provided, so that a very gay and parti-colored nest may swing in your orchard where you can see it from the house. Wilson says that an old lady, to whom he showed an oriole's nest in which a piece of dry grass, thirteen inches long, was passed through thirty-four times, asked him, half in earnest, if the birds couldn't be taught to darn stockings. —Harper's for June.

Just the Difference.

A woman will take the smallest drawer in a bureau for her own private use, and will pack away in it bright bits of boxes, of all shades and sizes, dainty fragments of ribbon, and scraps of lace, foamy ruffles, velvet things for the neck, bundles of old love letters, pieces of jewelry, handkerchiefs, fans, things that no man knows of, all sorts of fresh looking, bright little traps that you couldn't catalogue in a column, and any hour of the day or night she can go to that drawer and pick up any article she wants without disturbing anything else. Whereas a man, having the biggest, deepest and widest drawer assigned to him, will chuck into it three socks, a collar box, an old necktie, two handkerchiefs, a pipe and a pair of suspenders, and to save his soul he can't shut that drawer without leaving more ends of things sticking out than there are things in it, and it always looks as though it had been packed by a hydraulic press.

The War.

A St. Petersburg special confirms the report of an engagement outside of Kars between the Russian besieging force and the Turkish garrison. The action was very sharp, resulting in a decisive advantage for the Russians. The Turks lost outlying guns and a large quantity of ammunition. The Russian loss was 36 men killed and the Turks lost 100.

It is stated that a number of Bosnian refugees in Servia, confiding in the Turkish promise of amnesty, crowded the frontier in the hope of returning home and were immediately seized by the Turks and driven to Derbenda, thrown into a dungeon and murdered in cold blood. The massacre has spread terror throughout Bosnia. Fears of a general massacre are entertained. The population are arming and looking to Russia for help.

Reports from Greece announce that the new ministry, after a protracted debate, have decided that Greece shall take part in the war.

Tiflis, in Asia Minor, is reported as having been burned by the Russians.

The Boston Collectorship.

It was known soon after the inauguration of Hayes that Collector Simmons of Boston had cast an anchor to windward by quietly securing the signatures of a great many prominent merchants to a petition to have him retained in office. The extent and weight of this document had not, we believe, been made public, until Friday, when the Boston Post made use of one of the printed copies provided particularly for the President and the Treasury Department. It appears that Mr. Simmons secured a letter from Governor Rice, who sets forth that although he at first opposed actively the appointment of Simmons to the Collectorship, he is now convinced from the way the duties of the office have been performed that the opposition was not well founded; and this letter is endorsed by the Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, and all the Executive Council. Other laudatory letters are from ex-Governor Gaston, the Governor and Governor-elect of New Hampshire and the Governor of Maine; the Mayor of Boston, ten Aldermen, and the President of the Common Council; President Cogswell of the State Senate and Speaker Long of the House; and several Methodist brethren, including Mr. Simmons' pastor and Sunday School teacher. Finally comes a petition asking that Mr. Simmons be retained, signed by 815 houses, mostly doing a heavy business. Collector Simmons claims a reduction of $138,821, in salaries, comparing 1876 with 1873, the last year of Collector Russell, besides an estimated saving of $12,000 in rentals; the salaries, however, still reach half a million dollars. Altogether, Mr. Simmons has accumulated a formidable array of documents, and it is evident that President Hayes would not remove Collector Simmons, after all these gentlemen were committed in his favor. The affairs of the Boston Custom House will, however, be submitted to an examination similar to that which has taken place in New York. If the Collector can show a clear bill of health, he will be retained; if otherwise, otherwise.

Political.

Senator Morgan (democrat) of Alabama has written a letter to Attorney General Devens of very decided character, urging the dismissal of indictments against those who by ballot stuffing defeated Jeremiah Haralson (colored republican) for Congress. Haralson's district was republican, and gave him a large majority. Shelley, his opponent, and some fifteen others, were discovered in the most shameful frauds upon the ballot boxes, and indicted. Haralson has been notified that he will be killed if he returns to the district to prosecute his contest for his seat; that his life will only be safe after he abandons the contest. Senator Morgan now writes that if the policy of conciliation means anything it must embrace pardon for all political offences, and that if the President expects any support from democrats in Alabama he must not countenance further prosecution of this matter in the United States Courts. Senator Morgan of Alabama, in writing such a letter, not only perpetrated a piece of coarse and vulgar impertinence, but showed himself a conceited ass,—and the democracy won't thank him for any such braying, for they do not want democratic ideas too openly expressed just yet.

The Richmond Dispatch has a correspondent in North Carolina who is terribly excited over the anticipated (by some people) "split" in the democratic party. He writes: "Note the visit of Key to North Carolina 'on postal business,' he says. I hate a liar, but a southern liar is beyond hate. He couldn't have chosen a better field. Then there is the Hill party in Georgia, the Houston faction in Alabama, and anything you call for in Tennessee. How about Virginia! H'm! Talk with a few Old Line Whigs, and ask yourself how many papers there are in the South whose necessities are such that a little cash in hand and a promise of something better will carry them just wherever Evarts wants them to go. Solid South! 'Tis a thing of the past. Key in North Carolina is the entering-wedge, and the split is virtually accomplished."

Says the Kennebec Journal: While Senator Blaine is quietly in his garden, trimming his apple trees and cutting his asparagus, some political idiots at Washington are using his name in connection with a new party. The impression in Maine is that Mr. Blaine belongs to the republican party, that he does not proprose to leave it and that he will stand to the end for its time-honored principles, no matter who may desert or grow faint. He knows nothing whatever of the absurd movement that is rumored in Washington.

A newspaper is about to be published in Boston by a colored Bostonian, called "The New Departure and Colored Progressive Democrat." It will uphold the democratic principles, and hold that the liberties and future welfare of the colored race will be more secure in democratic hands than in those of the republican party as now constituted. It will advocate union and peace between the races in the South; an intelligent ballot, the education of the freedmen, etc.

New Hampshire Items.

At the meeting of the Manchester School Board, Friday evening, it was voted that forty weeks constitute a school year, and that the schools close July 6th. The salaries paid the teachers last year aggregated $38,950, and a reduction of about five per cent. was voted; female teachers receiving $450 and upwards were reduced $25 each; the Principal of the High School was reduced from $2000 to $1800; the first assistant from $1000 to $950; the Principal of the Training School from $600 to $550; the Principals of Grammar Schools from $1500 to $1350; the music teacher receives $1200. The total reduction is $1800.

An Impromptu Duel.

A fight of the bloodiest and most sensational character occurred in broad daylight in a crowded street of Houston, Texas, last week. The principals in the affair were City Marshal Erichson and a gambler named Woodlief. Woodlief was mad at the marshal for causing his arrest the day before, and was just out on bail, when, meeting the object of his ire on Main street coming toward him, the gambler drew his five-shooter and fired, but missed. Erichson, perceiving his danger, made a pass for his pistol, which he grabbed, but the weapon hung in his clothing. In the mean time Woodlief obtained his second shot, the ball striking Erichson in the right thigh and breaking the bone. He fell, but succeeded in drawing his pistol. The first time the weapon snapped. For the next few seconds one shot followed another. Erichson, although prostrate, fired four shots, three of which took effect in the person of his assailant, giving further evidence that he is a crack shot. One shot took effect in the right groin of Woodlief, another penetrated the right arm, and a third bullet struck in the right leg below the knee. It is impossible to see how the numerous people on the streets—some of them women and children—escaped being shot, the locality of the shooting being one of the most frequented in the whole city. Woodlief lay a considerable time in the dust and dirt of Main street, his hat off, and his blood flowing freely through his pant leg and mingling with the soil of the street, with a dense crowd surrounding him.—Texas paper.

How to Get Rich.

Nothing is more easy than to grow rich. It is only to trust nobody—to befriend none—to get everything and save all you get—to stint ourselves and everybody belonging to us—to be the friend of no man and have no man our friend—to heap interest upon interest, cent upon cent—to be mean, miserable and despised for some twenty or thirty years—and riches will come as sure as disease and disappointment. And when pretty nearly enough wealth is collected by a disregard of all the charities of the human heart, and at the expense of every enjoyment, save that of wallowing in filthy meanness—death comes to finish the work—the body is buried in a hole, the heirs dance over it, and the spirit goes—where?

Bucharest.

Bucharest has had its share of sorrows since its foundation. If the majority of the houses are not more than two stories high, it is because they are built with an eye to future earthquakes. In 1793, in 1802, and in 1817 violent shakings of the earth, attended by immense loss of life and property, taught the citizens that their foundations were insecure. It is said that the earthquake of 1793 destroyed nearly every ancient house in the town. War and pestilence have been the two greatest enemies of the peace of Bucharest. A plague decimated the town in 1710, in 1738, in 1793; and in 1813 this terrible scourge carried off seventy thousand persons within six weeks. Since that time the Bucharestians have learned something about drainage and other measures for the public health. But the great mass of the Wallachian peasantry still live in a condition bordering on swinishness. Indeed, some of the peasants laboring by the roadside look less happy and less clean than the pigs that trot away suspiciously whenever a vehicle or a train rushes across the fields. Bucharest has been occupied by foreign troops a good many times. The city was forcibly taken or used as a temporary garrison by both the Turks and the Russians in 1769, by the Austrians in 1789, by the Russians in 1807. In 1812 the Russians concluded at Bucharest the treaty of peace which by the consent of the Turks, gave to the Russian Empire all Moldavian Bessarabia.—Cor. Boston Journal.

—A singular fight took place in Newburyport recently between a rat, hen and rooster. A hen scratching near a water cask, in a door-yard, was suddenly interrupted by a huge rat, and neither would give way. Finally the hen made a pass with her beak, which the rat dodged, and then the rat made a spring for her neck, which was not a success. At this juncture, a cluck from the hen brought up the rooster, who came into the ring to take a hand himself. Then commenced a triangular scrimmage with teeth and beaks. The rat gathered for a spring on his antagonist, which was prevented by the cock lighting upon him and putting both spurs into his body, performing the solemn tragedy of harikari. Not satisfied with disembowelling their enemy, they picked out his eyes and left him.

Economy in Boots and Shoes.

Ladies often say they would like cheaper boots if they could get them to fit, but most cheap boots are so ill shapen that ladies accustomed to good-fitting boots decline to wear them. Messrs. T. E. Moseley & Co., 469 Washington Street, Boston, recognizing this want, have arranged to keep a large line of medium and low-priced goods made on the same lasts and cut by the same patterns as their highest-priced goods, thereby insuring a perfect fit. This is not confined exclusively to ladies' work, but will be carried out in goods for gentlemen's, boys', misses', and children's wear. This well-known firm continues to carry a large stock of goods, for which they have been so celebrated, both machine and hand-made. The latter, which they manufacture themselves to measure or ready made, have sold so rapidly the past season that during the recent alterations in their premises they have been obliged to largely increase their facilities for production, enabling them to manufacture these hand-made goods at prices little higher than the best machine goods. Every lady or gentlemen prefers hand-sewed boots if at a moderate price. In the ladies' department Messrs. Moseley & Co. offer French Kid Button Boots of superior style at $5, and many other styles equally low; and for gentlemen, a very stylish and durable sewed Calf Congress Boot, warranted in every particular, is sold for only $5, being finer goods than ever before offered in Boston for the money. For misses and children they have every variety, with a large assortment particularly adapted to school, sea-shore at unusually low prices. Serge and Lasting boots of good quality are the most economical foot gear that a lady can purchase. T. E. Moseley & Co. offer a line of these goods, both for house and street use, excellent in fit and most durable in wear, at low rates.

The Event of June 30th—The Second Grand Drawing of the Kentucky Cash Distribution Company, at Louisville—No Postponement.

$60,000, $25,000, $15,000, $10,000, $5,000 and a brilliant array of other prizes will be distributed by the above named Company, on June 30th. The Company has been entirely reorganized, and its management entrusted to capable and energetic business men, who by conducting its affairs honestly and on strict business principles, hope to make a respectable percentage and at the same time pay prize tickets fully and promptly. The latter object however, will be paramount. The Directors of the Company have declared that there shall be no postponement, and the management hereby reiterate that declaration. Tickets are only $10, which are sold in halves and quarters. Address all orders to Messrs. G. W. BARROW & CO., General Managers, Courier-Journal Building, Louisville, Ky., or THOS. H. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few consumptives, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and gives a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agents from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 23 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS three days ago, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

[WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I feel a pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I will say, feel most insanely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One said I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MTHOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

PRESENTATION OF AN ELEGANT DIAMOND PIN.

At the close of the temperance lecture on Sunday evening in Mechanics Hall, an elegant and costly diamond pin, (the gift of friends in Boston and elsewhere) was presented to Col. J. Horace Kent the occasion which prompted it being the fifth anniversary of Mr. Kent's life as a total abstinance man. Charles W. Gardner, Esq., made the presentation remarks, which were substantially as follows:

My Dear Friend and Brother: Yesterday I received from your esteemed friend, Mr. John F. Coles of Boston, the well known and gifted temperance lecturer, a package containing an article of great value, accompanied with the request that I should on Sunday evening, June 3, publicly present it to you; it being, as you of course are well aware, the fifth anniversary of your act of signing the total abstinence pledge. I very much regret that unavoidable circumstances hinder Mr. Coles from acting my part in this event, because the peculiar personal relations existing between him and yourself make it more fitting that you should receive the choice gift from his kindly hands, conveyed through the medium of his heartfelt and eloquent utterances. It will gratify you to learn that a few of your friends who made your acquaintance at the Washingtonian Home in the summer of 1872, as well as others elsewhere, prompted in part by their joy in the knowledge of your faithfulness to your pledge, as well as your fidelity to the work of saving others, have procured a beautiful diamond pin, and have delegated to me the privilege of conveying it to you thus publicly.

To some here present, it may not seem quite in accord with common usage or good taste to appropriate the closing hours of the Sabbath to these presentation ceremonies. And while I cannot but regard the hour as all the more fitting on account of the sacredness with which the day is commonly observed, it must be borne in mind that the anniversary which the gift is designed to commemorate, falls upon the Sabbath, and as a delay of the matter would cause it to be ill-timed, I have chosen this opportunity at the close of my evening's address, to formally present the testimonial to which I have alluded. And although, as I have intimated, the gift is one of rare value intrinsically, neither its worth nor its cost can be compared with the spirit which prompted the bestowal. And my dear brother, I should not be just to you nor to your generous friends did I withhold from you their accompanying words of eloquent regard for yourself and the glorious cause you have so faithfully espoused. They are these:

"A few of your personal friends who are cognizant of your past history, and especially that part of it included in the past five years, have fixed upon this occasion, it being your first anniversary as a total abstinence man, to present to you a slight memorial of their friendship and to thus express their appreciation of your manly and successful efforts to maintain your own integrity as a temperance man, and an acknowledgement of the efforts you have made, to persuade others from time to time, at home and abroad, to embrace the reformatory principles you have so faithfully incorporated with your own life and practice.

We have selected as a token of our regard, a diamond pin, because it is emblematical of the fair divinity of Temperance.

As water is the purest of all the elements, so is the diamond the purest of all gems. As the diamond shoots its brilliant rays of light and beauty in every direction, so does the sparkling fountain and the gushing spring with equal bounty, shower on either hand their pearly drops of matchless lustre.

The indestructibility of the diamond is indicative of the solidity and perpetuity of the vital principles upon which the cause of temperance is founded.

In presenting you with this testimonial, your friends wish also to extend their congratulations at your success in keeping the sacred pledge you took five years ago, and they pray that your future may be as free from stain or blot, as this jewel is from flaw or blemish."

No poor words of mine can add anything to these eloquent expressions of confidence. So I now have the honor as well as the pleasure, in behalf of these thoughtful friends, of placing in your hands the packet which contains the gift alluded to. Keep it, my brother, as a souvenir of your freedom from a worse bondage than that of the galley-slave. Keep it, as a remembrancer of your struggles and your triumphs over passion and appetite! Keep it as a reminder of the many ready hands that were and are ever outstretched to aid you! And above all, keep it as an incentive to nobler action, nobler efforts for the unfortunate around you; thereby making your future a succession of glorious deeds that shall be as so many polished stones in that spiritual temple, which, unlike that made with hands, is enduring and eternal.

Mr. Gardner then passed to Mr. Kent the morocco packet enclosing the diamond, at the same time handing him some papers containing the names of the donors, and other items of interest connected with the affair, on receiving which Mr. K. replied as follows:

Friend and Brother: I can truly say to you as the representative of the kind friends who have contributed to this beautiful present, that I receive it with feelings of delight and gratitude; and, as highly as I prize the gift itself, I value much more the friendly and generous emotions which prompted the hearts of the donors to make it under such flattering circumstances.

It is pleasent to know that one has good friends, and it is equally pleasant to know that his course in life meets with their approval. Brother—while I accept this testimonial with joy and thankfulness, I can hardly see how I have especially deserved it. Five years ago I found myself in a dangerous and critical condition. I was wedded to a habit which had not only brought care and suffering to myself but sorrow to my family and friends. In self defence I sought refuge in the temperance pledge; I bound myself in good faith; and I thank God and the encouragement of good friends for having had strength and will enough to keep that faith till this moment.

What I have done for others, has only been in part payment for what others have done for me; and I accept this token not as a premium for what I have done, but for what I should and ought to do. And brother, as I have no command of language sufficient to express my grateful thanks to the donors, I will endeavor to show to you and them, in the truthfulness and purity of my future life, how highly I prize their offering, which will ever be to me a reminder of their kindness to me, and of my obligations to them and to the cause of total abstinence at large.

With a heart overflowing with gratitude I again thank you and them.

SIR PETER WARREN,

Whose large portrait has lately been returned to the Athenæum from the Burroughs mansion, and that came originally from the Pepperrell House at Kittery Point, was a famous gentleman in his day, having commanded the forces on the water, as Sir William Pepperell did upon the land, at the capture of Louisburg. On returning to his home at New York, a public dinner was given him by the Mayor and Corporation of the city, that was attended by all the people of note among the inhabitants. Included in the compliments bestowed upon those who had taken part in that renowned expedition was the following, read at the table:

"When glorious Anne Britannia's sceptre swayed,
And Louis strove all Europe to invade,
Great Marlborough then, on Blenheim's hostile fields,
With Britain's sons o'erthrew the Gallic shields.
The Western world and Pepp'rell now may claim
An equal honor and as lasting fame;
And Warren's merit will in story last,
Till future ages have forgot the past."

His mansion and extensive grounds were as far up-town in New York as Aaron Burr's famed country seat in after days, known as "Richmond Hill." On his premises was an obelisk in commemoration of Wolfe, the hero of Quebec. Warren street, that runs from Broadway to the Hudson River, was named for him. He is often mentioned in the New York papers from 1744 to '49. One notice of him reads thus:

"The brave Commander Peter Warren arrived yesterday in his Majesty's ship Launceston, with a French ship as a prize, having on board 600 hogsheads of sugar, 52 lbs. of bar gold, indigo, and other valuable merchandise. This is the fifteenth French vessel taken by the distinguished commander during the war, and when he sails again, which will be very soon, we may well say:

The sails are spread; see the bold warrior goes
To sweep from ocean's face his country's foes."

POLICE COURT.

Saturday, June 2d.

Leonard C. Cook, of York, Me., was charged with trespass in having abducted a cow and halter from the premises of Mary P. Hodgdon, of this city. From the evidence offered it appears that one Moles, acting on behalf of plaintiff, went to York some time ago to trade a horse for a cow; Cook declined to trade in that way, but swapped horses,—as Moles says, even; but Cook says he was to receive $20 to boot. Moles then bought a cow for $20, paying all but $3, and the cow and the new horse were brought to this city. Some weeks after, Cook (who had never applied for payment of the balance of the $20) and his hired man, Kimball, came to this city, and without making any demand for the remainder of the purchase money or for the cow, cut the halter with which the cow was tied, and took her away; and this suit was brought to recover the value of the cow and halter. The defence was that the $20 (of which Cook acknowledged having received $16.75) was the "boot" on the horse trade, and that the cow had not been even partially paid for. The evidence of Cook and Kimball was flatly contradictory in many points, and the Judge rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, from which decision Cook appealed.

Arthur Blaisdell, a boy, was arraigned for an assault on another boy named Charles W. Ham. The assault it appeared was committed by a gang of street "gamins," but it did not appear that Blaisdell was the one most to blame, and he was let off.

BACK AGAIN.

Rev. Silas Ilsley, formerly pastor of the Middle street Baptist church, is in this city paying a visit to his old friends and parishioners. He is accompanied by his wife, who is a sister of Capt. Samuel Harding. It is nearly thirty years since Mr. and Mrs. Ilsley resided in this city; they have lived in several places since, but for quite a number of years past in Dover Plains, Duchess county, New York. The journey from that place to Portsmouth was made in a phaeton, by easy stages, occupying about two weeks. The journey is to be continued down into Maine, how far the travellers have not definitely decided; but before they return they will visit Limerick, where Mr. Ilsley was born and where his father some time since died at the advance age of ninety-seven years, to visit the old homestead and look after some property there. Of the three boys in their family when they left here, one (the youngest, who was born in this city) is since dead, at the age of twenty-eight; the second is temporarily at Dover Plains, and the oldest is in business at No. 173 Pearl street, New York city. The visitors find many changes in this city since they left it, but nothing to attract their attention so strangely as the great improvements made in the vicinity of Lincoln Hill.

RELIGIOUS.

Rev. John A. Goss of the Christain Church administered the rite of baptism by immersion, at Noble's Island, to a number of candidates on Sunday. A large congregation was present to witness the ceremony, most of whom gave respectful attention to the exercises.

Rev. Dr. Alden, at the close of the Sunday morning's service, gave the right hand of fellowship to several candidates for admission to the rites and privileges of the Baptist church.

JOTTINGS.

Sunday was the hottest of the season thus far.

Our citizens are promised a grand and imposing parade of the Antiques and Horribles, next Fourth of July, in default of something better and more sensible.

Schooner Hattie E. King, which recently discharged a cargo of coal at Concord Railroad wharf, and sailed on Saturday for Calais, Me., was forty days on the passage from Baltimore to this port.

The ship Midnight, now lying at the National Dock, East Boston, discharging, was built at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1854, and is consequently twenty-three years old. She registers 838 tons, rates A 1, and is in excellent order. Built of New Hampshire white oak, copper fastened, through tree-nailed and well ventilated, she is considered as good as any ship of the same class afloat. She is commanded by Capt. Marcy, and made her last passage from Manila, deeply laden, in 117 days. From the water's edge to the trucks she is in fine order, and reflects great credit on her captain, officers and crew. Messrs. Henry Hastings & Co. own her, and keep her liberally equipped and ably commanded, which accounts for her good luck and fine condition. —Boston Globe.

The closing spring rehearsal of the Portsmouth Philharmonic Society was postponed from last Tuesday evening on account of the preparations for Memorial Day, and will take place on Tuesday evening, June 5th.

The Portsmouth Light Artillery are to parade with the Newmarket Cornet Band at early evening on the 6th. The company have tendered escort to the Portsmouth Heavy Artillery and Portsmouth Cavalry for the morning of the 7th, all of which companies are to go to Concord on a special train at six o'clock to participate in the parade of the State Militia on the occasion of the Governor's inauguration.

Ensign William Winder, of this city, has been detached from the Dictator and placed on waiting orders. Passed Assistant Paymaster Stephen Rand, Jr., is detached from the Canonicus on the 30th of June, and ordered to settle accounts. Ensign John F. Parker's orders to duty at this navy yard go into effect June 20.

Capt. Richard H. Ela, who was mentioned in an item copied into the CHRONICLE a few days since, concerning a suit relative to his estate,—we are informed by Mr. F. W. Miller was one of the earliest carriers of this paper, at the start.

The labors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Gospel Workers of Maine, at Kittery, resulted in the conversion of about one hundred persons.

A few days ago Mr. Charles Cottle of Kittery had occasion to go to the navy yard on business, and driving there left the team standing unhitched. The horse got frightened soon after and started for home. The marine guard at the gate, seeing the animal coming at a furious rate, attempted to shut the gate, when the horse went through, leaving the wagon behind.

The doves which used to be so numerous in the vicinity of Market square have been greatly thinned out of late, very few now appearing on the square and the adjacent streets. We are informed that they have been shot in the early morning hours, before there is any stir about the streets, by parties who use some kind of a small gun which makes but very little noise—hardly more than a good-sized fire-cracker. Our informant is under the impression that some of the police force have assisted in this work.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Courting By Telegraph.

The Seattle (Oregon) Tribune speaks of a novel courtship conducted by telegraph, and in which Mr. Hill Harmon of Dakotah, figures conspicuously. Mr. Harmon shortly after the death of his first wife, informed his family and his friends of his determination to marry again, at the earliest possible moment. Knowing of a lady in Maine (whom however, he had never seen) who possessed all the qualities his heart desired, he at once opened a correspondence with her by telegraph, which after several messages resulted in their engagement, and the naming of a day for their marriage. Packing his valise, Mr. Harmon started, using the telegraph in the dispatch of amatory messages all the way. On the 7th of April they were married, and now they are at their Stellacom home—he after an absence of thirty-three days. In that time he has travelled 9,000 miles, met his present wife for the first time and married her, and been to New York, Buffalo, Montreal, Quebec, Toronto and San Francisco, at each of which places they made short stays. She is a fine-looking, sensible woman who will make him a good wife.

Curious Chinese Feasts.

The first day of the New Year's feasts is called by the Chinese Birds' Day (Kar-Yat), and is intended to bring to mind the utility of the feathered tribes as food. On this day the Chinese are expected to abstain from eating flesh, and it is frequently observed as a day of fasting. The second day is Dogs' Day (Ku-Yat). According to a Russian writer, the Chinese honor the dog so much that they have workmen whose especial business it is to make coffins for dead dogs. They believe that the life of one of their sages was saved by a dog killing and eating the man who attempted to murder him, and yet the Chinese eat the flesh of the dog which they consider a great delicacy. The third day, Hogs' Day (Chen-Yat), is celebrated in honor of a hog that drew a valuable manuscript out of a fire. The Chinese honor this animal by making its flesh their principal dish on this festive occasion. The fourth day, Sheep's Day (Yaong-Yat), is specially honored in memory of Pun-Koon-Venga, a shepherd who clothed himself with the bark of trees, and refused to make use of any part of the sheep either for food or clothing. The fifth day is Cow's Day (New-Yat). This day is consecrated to the cow that suckled an orphan, who afterward became Mandarin, and built a temple in honor of the cow. Ma-Yat or Horse Day, the sixth day, is set apart to call to mind the usefulness of this animal.

Mutinies in the British Navy.

There was recently a mutiny on board the British iron-plated ship Alexandra, it is stated, in consequence of the stringency of the discipline and the unusual severity of punishment. The whole of one watch refused to do duty, and threw the sights of the guns overboard. Three insubordinates were sentenced to forty-two days' imprisonment, and were sent home in the Monarch to undergo the punishment. A telegram from Athens, dated May 31, gives an account of another and apparently more serious mutiny while the Alexandra was lying at the Piraeus. The mutiny was quelled by the marines and men summoned from other vessels. The mutineers were arrested and a court marshal convened to try them. The cause of this second outbreak is stated to be dissatisfaction because of the refusal of shore leave, whereupon they rendered the Alexandra's guns unserviceable. It is deemed necessary to send the Alexandra to cruise in the Mediterranean until further orders.

—Lessing, the German author, was, in his old age, subject to extraordinary fits of abstraction. On his return home, one evening, after he had knocked at his door, the servant looked out of the window to see who was there. Not recognizing his master in the dark, and mistaking him for a stranger, he called out, "the professor is not at home." "Oh, very well," replied Lessing; "no matter—I'll call another time!"

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. Sold by booksellers, or prepaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative we could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England!
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Bachman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. His offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of the duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water or houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect, a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer the same to be cast into any street or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive matter or substance therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.
It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.
It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.
It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.
TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.
For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.
DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Drink, but Remember.

If you think it is your duty to drink intoxicating liquors, by all means do so. On no account violate your conscientious conviction, but while you raise the cup to your lips remember that this draught represents the bread of some starving brother; for the food of at least six million persons is grasped by the maltster and distiller, and its nourishment destroyed.

Remember that so long as you are in health these liquors are unnecessary; a great many medical men have asserted it, and hundreds of teetotalers prove it.

Remember that most persons who act as you do ruin their lives by so doing.

Remember that not drunkenness alone, but drinking, fills our jails and penitentiaries, our poor houses and our lunatic asylums; employs our coroners and our hangmen, and works mischief incalculable on all ranks and both sexes, of which no human institution takes cognizance.

Remember that drinking retards education, industry, and every branch of political and social improvement.

Remember that multitudes yearly die a drunkard's death, and go to meet a drunkard's doom.

Remember that every year multitudes from your "moderate" ranks recruit the wasted army of drunkards.

Remember that every drunkard once tried to follow the example you set, and on trial fell from his slippery ground into the whirlpool of intemperance.

Remember if you sanction the custom you are answerable for its fruits.

Remember that the weak and tempted ones look to you, and that under God it depends on you whether they may be drunkards or sober men.

Remember that "to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is a sin," and that there is "woe for that man through whom offenses come to the little ones."

Remember that you can not be neutral; and there will be a day when you will be unable to plead ignorance.

Remember that all this weight of responsibility rests with you, as you raise the cup, if you think it right, but we envy not your conscience.

Fighting for a Home.

A woodpecker's hole is such a very convenient place for a nest, that many other birds are glad to find one unoccupied. Sometimes a pair of wrens will watch the motions of the woodpeckers while they are at work, until an unfinished hole is left unguarded, when they will take possession of it. As soon as the lawful owners return the thieves are driven off, but they are so persistent and troublesome that, although a woodpecker is larger and stronger than twenty wrens, the owners sometimes abandon the place and make a new nest. Still, the wrens are not always allowed to keep the house they have stolen, for the blue-birds are equally covetous of it, and sometimes fight fiercely with the wrens in their attempts to gain possession of it. Occasionally both wrens and blue-birds are driven away by the martins, for these birds also prize woodpecker's holes very highly. The fierce battles between these various birds over an abandoned hole are very numbing, and often last several days; for they are all very obstinate birds, and as each one is determined not to give up, the matter is not very easily settled.—St. Nicholas for June.

—When a Russian army officer or other person of note is condemned to exile in Siberia, he is first made to kneel on a scaffold before the people, while the epaulets and decorations are torn off and his sword broken over his head. He is declared legally dead, and his wife, if he is married, can, if she chooses, consider herself a widow. His estates are confiscated to the Crown. If his wife and children follow him they can never return.

—Mr. Erastus Brooks, in retiring from the editorial management of the New York Evening Express, recalls some interesting facts. He has been connected with the paper as joint editor and proprietor for forty-one years, the first eighteen of which he acted as correspondent at Washington during the sessions of Congress. During this long period 112 daily papers have been born and have died in New York city, and there are now fewer newspapers there than twenty-five years ago.

—"Gimme that ere!" exclaimed old Mixon, as he jerked the lawn-mower from the hands of his son, and started off on the double-quick around the lawn with it. Suddenly he collided with a hidden obstruction, and the handles of the machine plunged half-way through his body, converting him into a very forlorn mower indeed, and he curled up with a sickly sort of smile and nearly died. His son finished the mowing.

—A Texas editor accepted a position on a Baltimore paper, and the first week he was arrested three times for libel, had striking arguments with four offended individuals who came in to horsewhip him, and was stabbed between the shoulder-blades one night as he was leaving the office. At the expiration of ten days he resigned his position. He said editing a newspaper in Baltimore was too tame work—not enough variety and excitement in it for him; and he had concluded to return to Texas, where an editor's duties were more varied and required a knowledge of pistol practice.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1.

"Old Probabilities," by the kindly manipulations that insured us Wednesday a sunny day, tempered to the point of comfort by cooling breezes from the Northwest corner of his province, relieved himself to some extent of the suspicions incurred by his manner in the past of his want of sympathy in the observances of the 30th of May. Excursions to Richmond, Harper's Ferry, Gettysburg, down the Potomac, and many smaller ones to the woods and groves surrounding Washington, served to lessen somewhat the crowds that annually go to Arlington, Soldiers' Home, Oak Hill, Congressional Cemetery, and other soldiers' burial places in the neighborhood, to strew the graves with the testimonials of our love and gratitude for their sacrifices in behalf of the living. But the immense numbers and enthusiasm of those attending Wednesday here and elsewhere, and who observed the day by an abstinence from usual business pursuits, show how deep a hold these men who laid down their lives that the nation might live, have upon the great national heart. The custom has grown to be almost universal and is more generally observed than the 4th of July.

Politicians here are just now somewhat exercised over a characteristic letter of mock condolence written by Gen. Butler to Marshal Pitkin, another victim, according to Butler's letter, to the conciliation policy, which is treated with quite effective sarcasm. But the chief interest of the letter arises from some reflections upon Wayne McVeigh, Butler broadly intimating that Wharton was made Pitkin's successor as the price offered him by McVeigh for disrupting the Packard Legislature in Nicholls' interest. Both McVeigh and Wharton have denied the truth of the insinuation, which raises an interesting question of veracity; but the General is not regarded as a man that will quietly submit to have his statements impeached, and it is thought likely the controversy may take a wide range and bring to light during its progress something of the "true inwardness" of the New Orleans Commission.

Ohio still continues to lay the nation under a still heavier burden by contributing others of her statesmen to the public service. A rumor is current that Hill, Supervising Architect of the Treasury, is to give place to an Ohioan, and that the duties of the office are to be split into an Eastern and Western division, the latter to be under the direction of a Cincinnati subordinate. It is said that the rule of only one in a family in public service is to be enforced in the Treasury Department, which will curtail the income of two at least of the six Auditors of that Department, to the extent of the salary of a second class clerk in the case of each. An interesting performance on the part of these two modest officials is talked of here, to the effect that in order to silence the strictures made relative to the son holding office under the father, an exchange or "swap" was made so as to partially allay the gossip that might in time prove fatal to the official life of one or the other by attracting too much attention to the abuse. If these are thought exceptional cases on the part of grasping officials who prate loudest of the sacrifices of dead soldiers whose widows or other dependent relatives have been discharged from the Departments and are actually suffering for food, I can assure the incredulous that there are scores of similar cases and of favorite families which have two or more representatives in the public offices in Washington. Let us have civil service reform according to promise.

To those remembering the haste of Gideon J. Pillow to turn over to Jeff. Davis' bogus government, early in 1861, that large portion of the United States army under his command, also millions of dollars worth of property, and further the cruelties observed towards Federal prisoners that fell into his hands during the war, it may be gratifying to learn that he has at last announced his willingness to forgive the coercive efforts adopted by the Government towards him and his fellow conspirators during that struggle, and that he has concluded to extend to it hereafter his invaluable advice and other services. In return for this gracious condescension he asks nothing above that conferred upon the most humble citizen, save the trifling favor of an appointment to the position made vacant by the death of Judge Emmons of the Western United States circuit, for which purpose he is now here modestly pushing his suit. In the exuberance of reconciliation he has written a letter, assuring the President of his approval and support, and suggesting how easily the Mexican problem may be solved by adopting his (Pillow's) plan of stealing or otherwise acquiring two Mexican States, thus pushing our frontier line further southward to a natural boundary which he minutely describes, at the same time capturing a great deal of the highly intellectual, peaceable and altogether desirable material produced in most Southern latitudes, out of which to make citizens.

The city is filled with men fiercely hungering and thirsting for Government pap. Many of them were participants in the secession war, which, with other democratic antecedents, has operated to bar them from all places of emolument or profit in the Government's administration during the past sixteen years, but they fancy they see their way back to the disproportionate number of offices their section monopolized prior to that time; and the White House and the Departments are besieged by the most formidable set of men seen here for years. By many the reported decision of the President to vacate all the higher grades of diplomatic office which have been filled by their present occupants four years, is regarded as a sign of yielding. KNOX.

New York Letter.

NEW YORK CITY, May 30th.

DECORATION DAY.

To-day has been a triumph of beauty, devotion and sentiment contrasted with the disgusting attempt a short time ago to celebrate and engraft upon this city the rule of "Beer and Rum," under the title of Carnival. New York never before presented a more beautiful and brilliant appearance than to-day. Madison and Union Squares were the centres of attraction in the upper portion of the city, and well-behaved masses of people invaded the sacred grass plots, and sat under the shade trees, while the children fairly reveled in their enjoyment of the privileges of romping and rolling on the green sward. The Mayor and other prominent persons, with their families, viewed the procession from a stand erected for the purpose at the junction of Broadway and Fifth avenue. The procession was very grand and imposing. The statues and monuments in the parks throughout the city were elaborately decorated with flowers and evergreens. Divisions of the general procession proceeded to the various cemeteries and decorated the graves of all soldiers or sailors, making no distinction. This beautiful custom of observing Decoration Day, has grown into a National holiday, and it is destined to become the most popular, and will exert the best influence upon the minds of the people of all the holidays.

"THE GLORIOUS FOURTH."

There is quite a strong opposition growing up here against the noise, smell of burnt powder, and danger, the usually accompany the celebration of that 4th of July. It is quite probable that the indiscriminate use of fire-crackers and other explosives will be prohibited by the city authorities this year.

SEEKING FRESH AIR.

Last Sunday all the excursion boats leaving the city for a trip up the Hudson, or a glimpse of the ocean, were crowded; and Central Park was swarming with people seeking the fresh spring air.

CUSTOM HOUSE.

The custom house investigation is proceeding cautiously and conservatively, and seems more like an experiment than a reform. Collector Arthur claims to be the slave of the old system of bestowing political patronage, and says that the New York Custom House is but a huge hospital for defeated and broken down politicians, and that these patients were brought to him by Senators and members of Congress, and that he dared not refuse to care for them.

THE BOSS.

Tweed's chances for breathing the free air again are not so promising now as they seemed about the time of the publication of the story of his flight from the city, his hair breadth escapes, etc., which appeared in print about a month ago. There has been bad management of his case, either on his own or his friends' part; and the chances of his prison doors swinging open when he opens his mouth are not so probable as they were.

AMUSEMENTS.

Most of the Theatres close this week for the season and the Summer Gardens are already open and liberally patronized.

E. E. B.

The War.

A telegram from Syra, in Asia Minor, to London, on the 3d, says "great discouragement exists in official circles in Constantinople because it is not known how a sufficient force can be collected to resist the Russian advance. The hopes that the capture of Sougkoum-Kaleh would lead to an insurrection in the Caucasus have now disappeared. The Circassians feared Russia and laid down their arms. Turkey is weak from material causes, which render it difficult to maintain a long resistance." It is officially announced from Constantinople that the reported capture of Ardahan is erroneous. A despatch from Tiflis says 4000 Circassian cavalry, who were bivouacking between Erzeroum and Kars, were surprized during the night by an overwhelming force of Russians. They refused to surrender, and no quarter being given, a frightful massacre ensued, and only 200 of them escaped. The Russian army is very near Erzeroum, and the position of Moukhtar Pasha's army is considered to be very critical.

The Montenegrins have destroyed the village of Stozer, killing 150 Turks and having 130 of their own men killed and wounded. The Montenegrins are preparing to attack Niesics.

An alliance of Austria and England, with France possibly added, is talked of as among the probabilities. Should this occur, Germany and Italy would be soon ranged on the side of Russia.

A Bully Well Disposed Of.

Policeman Thomas Train, of Manchester, was on Saturday night assaulted, knocked down and brutally beaten by a gang of roughs, while on his beat shortly before midnight. The officer succeeded in getting upon his feet, when one Michael O'Brien clinched him and a desperate struggle ensued, the other roughs assisting. Drawing his revolver, a thirty-two-calibre Wesson, he emptied it at the crowd, two shots taking effect on O'Brien. One entered the right breast, passing through a rib into the right lung. The officer signalled for assistance, which immediately came, and with much difficulty the disturbance was quelled. Brickbats were thrown and shots fired at the police, the former missiles taking effect in some instances. O'Brien was conveyed to the police station, and it is expected (and is to be hoped) he will die. He is only about twenty years old, but is known as a bully and thief, having served a number of jail sentences. No blame whatever is attached to Officer Train, as had he not drawn his revolver death would undoubtedly have claimed him as a victim, and it is considered a clear case of self-defence. The entire community back Train. The officers previously had some intimation in regard to this attack, but paid no attention to it, as quite frequently they have such threats. Others of the crowd of attacking roughs will be taught that the law is not to be violated with impunity, even by the most enterprising ruffians.

The popular verdict of the travelling public is that the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, cannot be excelled by any other house in the Quaker City.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cure for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and gives a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 2 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pains could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yet, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for nearly twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought this was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. R. M. Mobley, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura J. Shurtleff Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who come to see them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, June 4th.

John Reese, a boy, for an assault on Charles W. Ham, another boy, was fined $2, costs $6.96. A free lecture was thrown in by the Judge.

Leonard C Cook, of York, furnished bonds for the prosecution of his appeal in the case of trespass decided against him on Saturday.

Julia Mahoney complained of Minnie Welch, for insulting her on the street. The testimony showed that at the time of the alleged insult Miss Mahoney was at home and abed, and that if any charge could be sustained against Minnie Welch it was slander and not insult, so she was discharged. Another Minnie, surnamed Wilson, also charged with insulting Julia Mahoney on the street, had her case continued to Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock.

PORTLAND, SACO & PORTSMOUTH RAILROAD.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad was held at the company's hall in Kittery at eleven o'clock Monday forenoon. The meeting was called to order by the President, S. Lothrop Thorndike, who read the call for the meeting, and then presented the thirty-seventh annual report, which was quite favorable to the road, and was unanimously accepted. It was then moved to proceed to elect by ballot seven gentlemen to serve as directors for the ensuing year. Mr. Charles E. Barrett of Portland stated that he had been a director since the commencement of the road, and must decline further serving. On motion of Mr. Stevens, a vote of thanks of the corporation was extended to Mr. Barrett for his past valuable services. A ballot was then taken, which resulted in the election of Alfred P. Rockwell, S. Lothrop Thorndike, W. H. Y. Hackett, George P. King, George E. P. Jackson and John B. Brown. Each of these gentlemen received the full number of votes cast, 2829. The meeting then dissolved.

A PETITION.

We are requested to publish the following petition which was recently presented to the Board of Mayor and Aldermen by the temperance organizations in this city:

"To the Honorable Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Portsmouth:—The undersigned, delegates from the various temperance organizations, in convention assembled, after a full and free discussion of the evils of intemperance and the means for their suppression, resolved to asked the Board of Mayor and Aldermen to call a meeting of the citizens at some convenient hall for the purpose of taking such measures as may be considered prudent and wise for the suppression of the same. And to this end we respectfully ask your honorable body to call a meeting of the citizens without distinction of sex or party, to take into consideration the alarming evils of intemperance in all their varied aspects, to the end that a public sentiment may be created which shall tend to eradicate this vice from our city."

Here follow the signatures of twenty-five delegates from the five temperance organizations.

JOTTINGS.

It may not be generally known that Rev. J. A. Goss, a devoted friend of temperance, is holding gospel temperance meetings at his church on Court street, every Tuesday evening, and that one is to be held there this evening. Everybody is invited to attend. The meetings are free to any one to give the honest expression of his feelings, either in speech, prayer or song. It matters not what kind of "suasion" a person believes in, he is welcome.

On Monday the steamer Clara Batemen towed up to the city the three-masted schooners Clara E. Simpson and Jennie N. Huddell, both at once. Both were coal laden, and were berthed in good shape at the North End wharves by Capt. Rand, who not only has a good tug-boat but knows well how to handle her. We hope she will pay better this season than she has for a year or two past, for an efficient and well-handled tow-boat is an absolute necessity at this port.

Alexander H. Ladd, Esq., has recently made very considerable repairs and improvements in the surroundings of his beautiful residence on Market street.

On Saturday Chief Engineer Benjamin F. Garvin reported at the Navy Yard for duty, relieving Chief Engineer David B. Macomb.

Thursday of next week, June 14th, the joint celebration arranged by the Veteran Artillery Association and the Trustees of Langdon Park will take place. At sunrise a flag of thirteen stars will be hoisted on the staff at the Park by Col. T. E. O. Marvin, without any especial ceremony. At three o'clock, P. M., escorted by the Light Battery and accompanied dy the Park Trustees and the children of the public schools, the Veteran Artillery Association will march to the Park, where a salute of thirteen guns will be fired in honor of the "old flag" of one hundred years ago, to be followed by the ceremonies and amusements around the Maypole. In the evening the Veterans will sit down to a social supper,—and no further assurance that it will be a first-class one is needed than the announcement that it will be gotten up by mine host Hilton, at the Rockingham. The official programme will be published in due season.

The ancient mariner of the CHRONICLE wonders why the Government spends so much money at the up-country, Dover end of Piscataqua river, and never a dollar at this sea end? Why, bless your heart, man, they are trying to help show that the first settlers landed at Dover and then came down river to Odiorne's Point, as the Doverians claim, and so are clearing the way for the truth of history.—Portsmouth Weekly.

A farm windmill of the Halladay standard pattern was erected at Lincoln Hill Cottage last week, by Mr. Charles W. Jenness of Rye, the agent for this vicinity, to pump water for irrigation and domestic uses. It works to a charm—especially to the pumpers who are now relieved.

Rev. Dr. Storrs of New York, Rev. Dr. Warren of California and Rev. Mr. Cobb of Minnesota will give addresses at the North Church this evening upon the condition and prospects of the great West, with especial reference to the work of Home Missions. These gentlemen are making a tour through the principal cities and towns of New England. Everywhere their meetings are attended with great interest. The citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity, without distinction of denomination, are invited to attend; assured that they will be instructed and entertained by these eloquent speakers. Admission free, and no collection.

At the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the New Hampshire Homœopathic Medical Society, held at Concord last week, Dr. S. J. Donaldson of this city was admitted to membership. Remarks were made in favor of retaining the medical law, and Dr. Donaldson was chosen one of a committee to represent the Society before the Legislature relative to the same.

Mr. L. Blumauer makes in our advertising columns an announcement to the ladies, of special interest this hot weather. He claims to have on hand a stock of ladies' linen suits which "for style, quality and cheapness" surpass anything now in the city, or that ever has been in it,—and asks the ladies to put his assertions to the test of a critical examination. It must not be inferred that he proposes to sell only ladies' linen suits, as he has (as usual) a large and varied stock of all the articles to be found in a first-class dry-goods store.

On Monday the bowsprit for the new ship on the stocks at Kittery was taken from the sparyard of Mr. William R. Martin, where it was built, to be transported to Kittery. The bowsprit is of hard pine and weighs about nine tons, the truck on which it was mounted (one of the navy yard timber trucks) weighing about a ton; and on arriving near the draw the oxen were unhitched and the load left standing, the bridge owners refusing to take the responsibility of permitting it to cross, possibly fearing the wheels would cut through the planking, or that the heavy weight might carry one of the draws down altogether,—at any rate, they would not assume the risk of allowing the heavy laden truck to be drawn across. During the afternoon the railing of the bridge was cut away, and the heavy bowsprit tumbled overboard, making a prodigious splash as it struck, to the infinite delight of the usual crowd of overseeing small boys.

The canker worms are committing extensive ravages in this vicinity. Large trees which on Saturday seemed flourishing all the same as a bay tree, on Monday looked almost as though fire had swept through the branches. These pests have not done so much harm before for years.

The annual meeting of the Rockingham Congregational Conference will be held at North Hampton, beginning to-day.

Mr. Amos T. Leavitt, of Hampton, died very suddenly on Monday forenoon. He had attended to various minor duties about the place during the morning, and a female relative had but a moment before his death been talking with him, when he appeared as well as usual; he stepped into a bed room, and the lady, hearing sounds for which she could not account, looked in and found he had fallen or laid down upon the bed, where he died almost instantly. Mr. Leavitt has for many years—between thirty and forty, we believe—kept one of the most popular and liberally patronized boarding houses in Hampton, and is widely known and highly respected.

News and Notes.

A fifteen-year-old son of Samuel Ninny of Greenburgh, Pa., to get "even with the old man," whose discipline was strict, poisoned his father, his sister, Mrs. Patterson and her child, and a visitor, Mrs. Harris, with arsenic in coffee. The lives of all except Mrs. Harris are despaired of, The boy was arrested.

Ex-President Grant dined with the Duke of Wellington at Apsley House on Saturday night, a large number of the British nobility being present. The Prince of Wales received Gen. Grant at Marlborough House, privately, Saturday afternoon.

The Queen of Holland died on Sunday, aged 63 years.

A train on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad was thrown from the track in Missouri, Sunday night, and three men were killed. The rails had been torn up, evidently by train-wreckers.

New Hampshire Items.

For the past four or five months there has been a gang of pickpockets at work in Nashua, and ladies visiting the Post Office have lost their wallets and contents. Saturday evening the mystery was solved, and a gentleman caught a little girl not more than six years old with her hands in his wife's dress pocket, and also saw another taking from a lady a pocket-book. The gentleman caught one, and the officers who have been on the watch caught the other, and Saturday evening these little girls were at the police station with their confederates, not one of whom was over eleven years of age.

Bunyon Robinson, a deaf and dumb resident of the town of Hudson, was instantly killed while walking on the track of the Nashua and Rochester Railroad near Lawrence Corners in that town. His age was sixty-eight years. He was struck by a freight train.

Louis Fineburg, a Pole, was drowned at Great Falls on Sunday, while bathing in the river.

Peter Fountain was drowned in the river at Hanover on Sunday, and efforts to recover the body by dragging having failed, an old twelve-pounder cannon was brought out, placed on the bridge, loaded with six pounds of powder and a lot of wet grass, and fired. The cannon burst into a thousand fragments. One piece weighing sixty-three pounds was driven up over the bridge across the Connecticut into Norwich, Vt., where it passed down through the roof of a house owned by E. R. Jenne, through a feather bed in the chamber, through the chamber floor to the pantry, through the pantry floor to the cellar. The property was damaged heavily. The family were in the next room and escaped uninjured. Another fragment passed through the bridge, striking the face of Asa S. Brown of Hanover and wounding him severely. Pieces flew over the heads of students and citizens, two hundred being in the vicinity. Fortunately no lives were lost. The cannon was used in the Revolutionary war and killed one man twenty-five years ago in a Fourth of July celebration. It has not been fired for fifteen years and being stored in a damp cellar became rusty.

—An attempt to introduce hippophagy in the East has failed. The Arabs say they can't endure horse for dinner, though they don't mind a little camel for their desert.

—The First Lord of the English Admiralty, who is a man of weight, was buying a horse the other day. As soon as he mounted it fell down, but he kept his seat and the horse rose again under him. Upon which Mr. Hunt, much pleased, exclaimed, "I'll buy this horse!" "But he has just fallen with you, sir!" said the dealer. "True, but he is the only horse that ever got up again with me."

Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines have been before the public for many years, a period long enough to fully test their merits, and the best argument that can be advanced in their favor is the fact that their sale is steadily increasing.

Cheerfulness the Offspring of Health.

That equable state of the mind which is unruffled by trifling incidents, and looks on the sunny side of things in general, is the result of a healthful state of the brain and stomach. The dyspeptic and nervous invalid may, although this is rare indeed—feign cheerfulness, and may bear the harassing symptoms which persecute him with an assumption of heroic indifference, but in reality he is the victim of despondency. To experience genuine cheerfulness of mind, the stomach must recover its lost tone, the thinking organ its normal quietude. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are the best remedy for mental depression, since they overcome the nervous debility and indigestion which originate and foster it. Persons suffering from infirmities peculiarly incident to the decline of life, ladies in delicate health, and convalescents, derive solace and vigor from its use. Drive away the blues and revive the drooping energies with this grand stimulative tonic.

It Would be Ridiculous

for those who use SOZODONT to decry it, for the moment they opened their mouths the state of their teeth would contradict the slander of their tongues. It removes discolorations, imparts a glittering whiteness to the enamel, and renders the decomposition of the teeth impossible.

An article of prime necessity—Spalding's Glue.

THE OVERWORKED BRAIN needs especial care in the choice of stimulants. Business men and invalids gain added vigor by the use of Chocolate or Cocoa in place of tea or coffee. The preparations of Walter Baker & Co. retain the highest rank in the market. All grocers sell them.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

Cure that cough! How? With Adamson's Botanic Balsam. It is warranted to cure coughs, colds, asthma and all lung difficulties. Sample free. Large bottles 35 cents.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

JOHN H. BROUGHTON, Mayor, Ex. Of.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. G. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the 600 Trees rec, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them, may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

—What lovers swear—To be true until death. What husbands swear—Unfit for publication.

—The fashionable style for strawberry short-cakes this season is to have them cut bias and rather fuller in the crust than usual. Those in two shades of saleratus, trimmed with the material, are much in vogue.

—A company of antiquarians has been formed in Switzerland for the purpose of unearthing the village of Plurs, in Graubunden, which was covered by a fall of rocks in 1618, entailing a loss of nearly 1000 lives. A rich booty is anticipated from the shops, factories and churches.

—Count Moltke says, in his recently published letters, that in England all classes are outwardly alike in appearance, but that is not the case in Russia, which is a land of striking contrasts, where a brilliant capital stands in a waste, palaces are elbowed by huts, a railroad runs 400 miles without approaching a town, and coarseness co-exists with excess of refinement. He divides the Russians into half a million of cultured, and 60,000,000 totally uncultured.

—Lucky Baldwin, the Californian, speeds one of the plows on his farm with a $20,000 team, doing it to exercise the horses. A recent visitor to his immense ranch near Los Angeles, came across a ten-acre field of wild flowers, which, from their variety and brilliancy, astonished the stranger. "Yes," said his host, "that's my polishing crop," and when his guest turned to him with an inquiring gaze, he resumed: "You see I need a great deal of beeswax to polish the furniture, and that's the bees' pasture."

—Edmund Yates' London paper thus hits off the inconsistencies of English philanthropy: "This is a grateful country. A year ago nobody knew or cared who the Bulgarians were. Lady Strangford has since then distributed £28,000 of English money among that interesting, if drunken and cowardly race. Every English man or woman who can read has devoured Robinson Crusoe. Not quite £100 has been collected for the descendants of Daniel Defoe."

—A funny joke was perpetrated on a music-loving but anti-dancing Methodist minister of Alexandria, Minn., lately. He was at the village hotel displaying his skill on the festive violin to a number of amateur musicians, when a gay party of young folks in an adjoining parlor, thinking it too bad to have so much good music wasted, formed a cotillion and enjoyed themselves very much, while the good Methodist brother played away with all his might, never for a moment suspecting that he played while they danced.

—When the first branch bank was opened at Bloemfontein in the Orange Free State, South Africa, a Boer, who, after the manner of his kind, had hoarded up all his savings at home, with a view to buying land, presented himself to the manager and said: "I hear you take care of people's money. How much do you want for taking care of mice?" "We don't want anything," was the answer; "and moreover, if you leave it with us for a fixed time, we'll give you interest on it." "What!" said the Boer, "you offer to pay me for taking care of my money? You must be a great set of scoundrels!" And he walked off, buttoning up his breeches pocket.

—A most extraordinary scoundrel, eight years old, has been detected in Baltimore, Md. His crowning achievement was to poison two hogs belonging to a neighbor. But it appears that during a long and ill-spent life he has been killing cattle, burning buildings, and destroying property generally. Only last year this venerable wretch was convicted of girdling fruit trees, and escaped State Prison by forfeiting his bonds. He has cost the State of Vermont, his family, and the community generally, more than any other man in it; and the number of his offenses and trials during the last twenty years is large enough to be remarkable. However, he is eighty years old, and will soon suffer an arrest which will be final, and go through a trial from which there will be no appeal.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, Jr., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp., $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative as could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England!
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing adressed to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

DANIEL W. JONES, M. D.,
ROBERT SHILLABER,
DANIEL DANIELSON,

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION!

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

The Papacy.

Rev. F. E. Boyle, pastor of St. Peter's Church (Catholic) in Washington, D. C. lectured Saturday night upon "The Golden Jubilee." After reviewing the long life, as a ruler of the Catholic Church, of Pope Pius IX., and remarkable events of his episcopate, the lecturer proceeded to a defence of the syllabus of infallibility, against the assertion that the relations between the Catholic church and civil society are completely altered, and whatever it might have been in the past, with regard to citizenship and patriotism, is now entirely destroyed, and a new order of papalism reigns throughout the country. The lecturer closed with a fierce review of the book of Hon. R. W. Thompson, Secretary of the Navy, entitled "Papacy and the Civil Power," published recently. He charges that the author convicts himself of ignorance and dishonesty by misquoting the Pope, Innocent, XI., and then giving the original Latin text as a foe note, proving the misquotation. Referring to Mr. Thompson's query, "What Roman Catholic Archbishop or priest in the United States would repeat to-day Archbishop Kendrick's words that 'The Primacy is essentially a spiritual office which has not of divine right and temporal appendage and that the patrimony of St. Peter has no necessary connection with the Primacy.'" Fathey Boyle said: "Now right here in this presence, with the full understanding of my responsibility to my ecclesiastical superiors, and in sure confidence that my action will be sustained by every Archbishop, Bishop or priest not only in the United States, but throughout the world, I do repeat the words above quoted from the writings of the venerable and learned Archbishop Kendrick. I declare distinctly that while the sovereignty of the Pope, the patrimony of St. Peter, is useful and necessary for the free, full and proper discharge of the Pontifical office for the performance of his duties as the supreme visible head of the Catholic church, it is in no sense of divine right and has no divinely necessary connection with the Primacy.

Why He Don't "Stir This Thing Up."

"An intimate personal acquaintance of Governor Stone" of Mississippi, writing to the Washington Star, gives the following as Governor Stone's reasons for not wanting to "stir up" the Kemper County massacre of men and children by an armed mob:

"Few public men care to make martyrs of themselves, however good the cause. Governor Stone is not an exception. An election for Governor occurs next November. He is a candidate for nomination by his party. In this instance he became Governor by the forced resignation of Governor Ames, being President pro tem of the Senate at that time; now he wants to be elected by the people. He knows that a vigorous effort to prosecute the Kemper County murderers would insure his certain defeat; and why? Simply because nine-tenths of his party in the State sympathize with those men. The Meridian Mercury, the most popular paper in East Mississippi, in its issue of May 4th, says that ninety-nine of every one hundred of the respectable citizens of Kemper County indorse what was done, and assume their proportionate share of the responsibility for the brutal deed. The Mercury spoke the truth, and it might have said as much for all the State. The Jackson, Carion, the official organ of the party at the Capital, attempts to excuse the murder, and not one of the fifty democratic papers in the State has condemned it. Several cordially indorse it, as I have the proof to show. Then, what is to be done? The judges are democrats, the prosecuting attorneys are democrats and have to be reelected next fall.

The grand juries are democratic, and in Kemper County every democrat on the jury would either be of the 300 armed murderers who assaulted on that bloody Sabbath day, at DeKalb, or in full sympathy with them, and I would not give a penny for the life of the man or woman who dare to testify against them; no petit jury of democrats in Mississippi—and they have none other now—could be empaneled to convict if indictments were found. Nothing could be more absurd than to hope for justice in that direction. Governor Stone knows this and he does not propose to urge a farce of a trial and sacrifice his hope of nomination. The 'White Liners' made him, and they can unmake him as quickly. They run the State, its courts, Governors, and all, and now have the fear of nothing before them. They are reveling in the luxury of home rule. Governor Stone is not really to blame, because he can not help himself. He is as powerless as a child, in fact. Place the blame where it belongs; with the people who elect Governors and commit murders with the same bloody hands. Gov. Stone must know that as Governor he is but the product of crimes. The campaign of 1875 required over three hundred republican lives to insure success. A party that murders and assassinates itself into power will hold by the same means, and the man who expects its favor must, at least, consent to its crimes."

The War.

The massacre of 4000 Circassian irregulars by the Russians, reported by the Turks, was a trifling affair according to official Russian despatches. The Circassians were surprised at night, and fled after losing 83 men.

The State Department has received a cable dispatch stating that Roumania has made a treaty by which she places herself under the entire control of Russia.

News and Notes.

The Peruvian turret ship Huascar, which was recently stolen by revolutionists, got herself into trouble by interfering with British subjects. Two British men-of-war went after her and found her, battered her badly and made her run away, and she was soon after surrendered to the Peruvian squadron.

A tornado struck the city of Mount Carmel, Ill., on Monday, and blew down two churches, two schoolhouses, the Court House and several stores and residences; the ruins took fire, and a large part of the city was destroyed. Eight dead bodies were taken out in a short time, and many of the large number of people wounded will die. Forty or fifty persons are missing. Mattoon, Ill., was visited by a tornado the same afternoon, and many buildings were overthrown, but no lives are reported lost.

Charles Motley, a brother of the late John Lothrop Motley, resides in Berwick, Maine, at the age of 91 years.

Fred A. Plaisted, of New York, and Wallace Ross, of Portland, N. B., pulled a four-mile straightaway race on the Kennebecassis river, near St. John, N. B., on Tuesday, for a prize of $1000.

The Italians and the Norwegians, who are our only serious competitors in wooden shipbuilding now, and the great swarm of whose shipping in our ports is the phenomenon of the times, buy an American built ship, and then beat the American shipmasters with it in bidding for cargoes in any part of the world. It is a very striking fact. Italians and Norwegians also buy their pitch pine, masts, and a great deal of the other wood they use in the United States, freight it 3500 miles across the sea, and build a ship composed in large part of these materials. They then sail into New York harbor with the red flags of Italy or Norway at the masthead, and take the bread and butter right out of the mouths of American shipmasters here, and of British shipmasters too. Now why is that? Ask the Italian or Norwegian Consuls here, and you will learn, perhaps for the first time, how little cost of ships has to do with the present depression of the American carrying trade. The real cause is, the people of other nations can build a ship cheaper when they get it afloat. How is free trade in ships going to help that?—N. Y. Tribune.

The United States Government has established telegraphic communication between Monhegan Island light station and Brennan's Island, on the coast of Maine, at which point there is a fog-horn. The wire is run in two sections 700 and 500 feet respectively, upon three immense standards thoroughly braced and fastened upon the ledges. The standards are 135 feet high, one on Monhegan Island, a second on Smutty Nose Island, and a third on Brennan's Island, and at a height sufficient to admit any vessel passing under it safely.

The number of vessels belonging to, or bound to or from ports in the United States, reported totally lost and missing during the past month, is 46, of which 20 were wrecked, 4 abandoned, 2 sunk by collision, 5 foundered, and 15 missing. The list comprises 2 steamers, 4 ships, 12 barques, 7 brigs, and 21 schooners, and their total value, exclusive of cargoes, is estimated at $1,770,000.

They have discovered in Utica, N. Y., that it is not necessary to kill a horse which breaks its leg. A valuable mare, kicked by another horse, had its leg, which was broken between the fetlock and gambrel joints, mended in seven weeks. She was slung up and the leg was first set with splints and a leather boot, and afterwards a plaster of Paris bandage was used.

New Hampshire Items.

The Great and General Court of New Hampshire meets in Concord to-day.

There is unfortunately a possibility that O'Brien, the Manchester rough who was shot Saturday night, will recover, although he is in great agony from the wound in his breast. Officer Frain, the victim of the bullies' cowardly and brutal assault, is confined to his bed; his bruises are severe, and those about his face will probably badly disfigure him for life.

The contract to build the new mill structure of the Cocheco Manufacturing Company was given on Saturday last to Messrs. Cressey & Noyes of Lawrence, Mass. They are to do all the brick, stone and wood work after the grounds are fitted and made ready for commencing at the foundations. The wall trenches are to be sunk to the surface of the ledge which forms the substratum of the lot, by the Cocheco Company, and on that ledge bottom the contractors will commence their brick work. They are to furnish all material and have the building completed by next December, ready for the machinery. It will be an enormous building. We understand that the dimensions will be 76 by 400 feet and five stories high. A large gang of men are at work making the excavations, a large portions of which are in solid rock. Business will be lively here throughout the entire summer, and we don't see how any steadily and industriously inclined person can lack for employment. The price to be paid the contractors for the erection of the mill we have not been able to ascertain.—Dover Democrat, 4th.

Political.

The jury in the Ellenton (S. C.) conspiracy case, disagreed, the six white democrats all deciding for an acquittal, and the six colored republicans wishing to convict the accused. This case grew out of the brutal massacres of colored republicans in the Ellenton district by white democrats in the Hampton campaign; the evidence was conclusive of the guilt of the accused, but party feeling is stronger than regard for an oath, in the South Carolina democracy. Conciliation is necessary, and to punish a white democrat for the cowardly murder of a few unarmed negroes, "for the good of the party," would be another frightful example of federal tyranny over the oppressed South.

Information has reached Washington that one of the most prominent democratic journalists in Georgia has established a paper at Atlanta for the express purpose of supporting the Southern policy of President Hayes, and to oppose the overthrow of the present liberal constitution of Georgia.

The New York Post wonders if Wade Hampton will enforce the law upon the white murderers of colored men at Ellenton, S. C. It says: "The Ellenton jury seems to have been divided by the color line; and in the circumstances that is not surprising. There is one matter, however, in which it would be scandalous to draw the color line, and that is the pursuit and punishment of the murderers. Chief Justice Waite and the Federal courts have failed to execute the questionable enforcement law. Now let us see whether Governor Hampton and the State courts can execute the law against murder. There is no occasion of surprise at the failure of the enforcement law, and we are not sure that there is occasion of much regret. Certainly there will be very little if the local laws to secure even and exact justice are enforced. Will they be?" No, they won't be: Governor Stone of Mississippi has decided that "it won't do to stir this thing up" when republicans are butchered in that State, and Wade Hampton won't punish men who committed murder in his interest.

PORTLAND, SACO & PORTSMOUTH RAILROAD.

The following is the thirty-seventh annual report of the Directors of the Portsmouth, Saco & Portland Railroad, presented to the stockholders's annual meeting on Monday:

"The year commenced under circumstances of greater depression for the value of your road and of darker prospects for its future than it had before experienced, these circumstances arising from the misfortunes of the Eastern Railroad Company, to which your road is bound by permanent contract, as familiarly known. The notes of this corporation issued under the contract for the accommodation of the Eastern Railroad Company to the amount of $250,000, were due, or speedily becoming due, and the holders were pressed for payment. This payment the Eastern Railroad Company, the party primarily liable, could not provide for, and your corporation had no funds to meet the same.

The Boston & Maine Railroad had a claim against us under an old contract for half a million dollars, which it was vigorously urging. The entire year has been spent in the attempt to disentangle your corporation from these embarrassments, and your Directors feel that they have a right to congratulate you on the result which has been reached.

The first attempt made in accordance with your vote of last summer to provide for outstanding notes by the issue of mortgage bonds, was a failure. The subscription was offered to our stockholders at a time when new securities, especially railroad securities, were looked with suspicion. It was taken only to a very limited extent, and had to be abandoned. Various other projects were suggested by your Directors, and presented for consideration of your creditors and of the Eastern Railroad. Finally, the plan was devised which received your approval at your recent special meeting. This plan has been accepted by the Eastern Railroad Company, and by our creditors, and has already been so far carried out that its success seems assured. It consists, in brief, of the issue by the Eastern Railroad Company and the party primarily liable, of its certificates of indebtedness to the amount of the outstanding notes. These certificates have been marketed at fifty per cent. of their face, and thus one-half the debt is cleared off. For the balance, our creditors will accept payment in eight instalments at intervals of six months, and these payments the Eastern agrees to meet.

It will be seen that the Eastern Railroad has met us with a liberal sense of its duty to provide for the emergency into which its misfortunes had brought us, and in full recognition of the mutual importance of our two roads to each other. It has also conceded to us three points upon which your Directors insisted, and which we believe place our contracts with them upon a better footing than ever before, viz:

First, When our present note indebtedness shall have been settled in the mode indicated above, we shall not again be called upon for the use of our credit.

Second, If our contract with the Eastern Railroad shall ever be terminated it will present no claim for betterments made before the date of our new supplementary contract.

Third, We shall have a right of re-entering upon our property for other breaches of contract than the non-payment of dividends, which has heretofore been the only defect for which that remedy was expressly provided.

In consideration of all which, we have agreed, in accordance with your recent vote, that the semi-annual payment to our stockholders shall continue hereafter to be three dollars a share instead of five dollars as originally fixed. The supplemental contract embodying all these provisions, and the mortgage securing the successive instalments upon our notes, have been executed in the form adopted at your recent meeting.

It should be added that the settlement of the suit of the Boston & Maine, already mentioned, and of a counter-suit of ours against them, is concluded in a contract between the Eastern and Boston & Maine roads, already consummated.

Thus by the first of the ensuing month we shall have a property free from debt excepting $125,000 of mortgage notes, and at the expiration of four years, unless some unforeseen calamity shall befall us or the Eastern road, we shall have a six per cent. paying property free from debt or incumbrance.

Our road is in good and substantial order and repair, and the Eastern Railroad is contemplating important improvements in rails, road beds and terminal facilities at Portland. Our chattel property in charge of the Eastern Railroad is also believed to be in good order and serviceable condition.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaints, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Individual him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not send them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get temporarily relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten weeks at a time, and have been walking and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

LIFTING A WRECK.

The arduous attempt to raise the schooner Ceres, which sank alongside of Portsmouth bridge last Fall, has been abandoned for the present, after being very nearly crowned with success, as on Sunday night and Monday the vessel was raised to the top of the bank of sand and gravel in which her bow had been embedded, and which was deposited around her during the Winter by the swift currents. When the schooner sank she had on board a cargo of coal, and she went down in sixty feet of water at high tide, her bow being considerably lower than her stern, which rested on some large rocks. The wreck and cargo were purchased by Boston parties, and a wrecking gang soon after came around here, but owing to the lateness of the season operations for raising the vessel were postponed until Spring.

Some weeks ago the wrecking schooner Republic arrived,—sent around by the Boston Wrecking Company, of which Mr. Gibson is the principal, Mr. William Fredson (formerly of this city) foreman, and Mr. Larry Moran submarine diver,—and operations were at once commenced. The work of slinging the wreck by getting chains under her bottom was one of unusual difficulty and danger. The vessel was lying up against the piles of the bridge, and an immense embankment had formed around her bow; the current is so swift that the diver could work but for a short time each tide, at slack water only, and after the rains of some weeks ago he could only work at high water slack, when the influx from the ocean made the water clear, as the fresh water coming down from the rivers on the ebb was so muddy as to make the darkness absolute at low tide; and the bridge, and the wrecking schooner and the huge scow called an anchor-hoy (which were directly over the wreck) made the place at its best the darkest the diver ever worked in. An additional annoyance, and an actual peril, as well, was the vast mass of old logs lying in all directions on the bottom and tiered up many logs deep among the piles of the bridge, just as they have touched bottom when cut from the bridge through all the years it has been standing; it was quite possible that by stepping upon the end of one of these logs in the darkness a whole heap might be displaced, and the venturesome diver pinned helplessly down under sixty feet of water, with no possible chance of escape. It is not pleasant to contemplate what the feelings of a man would be in such a situation, through the many hours he would live if he were not crushed to death or the air tube of the apparatus obstructed.

The first thing to be done toward raising the vessel was to "break her out" of her bed of gravel, and the diver having succeeded in getting a chain cable under her bottom, well aft, and another around her windlass and the heel of her bowsprit, the first "lift" was given to her on Sunday, May 27th. The after chain was taken to the wrecking schooner and the forward one to the anchor-hoy; both were hove as taut as possible, at low water, and as the tide rose the tremendous lifting power started the wreck out of her bed, but not enough to clear the bank so that she could be hauled shoreward, and as the tide fell she dropped back again very nearly into her old place. Powerful hydraulic jacks were procured, to increase the lift of the tide by heaving up the timbers to which the slings were fastened; another cable was got under the forward part of the wreck, and after several days' hard work she was slued out from her broadside-on position alongside the bridge, sufficiently to enable the wreckers to place the anchor-hoy directly over her, and then preparations were made to lift her out of her bed "for good," and haul her ahead upon the bank of gravel, preparatory to the first shortening-up of the chain slings. Three heavy timbers were placed upon each end of the hoy, with their ends projecting over her sides; over these timbers' ends the chains were taken, and hauled taut as possible with tackles at low water; and then, by the application of the powerful hydraulics, the wreck was raised ten feet—enough to clear her "bedding"—and swung around to point as they wished her to. Anchors had been laid out to the eastward, and properly backed; and as soon as the wreck was raised clear from the bottom the anchors were hove on, but the hoy wouldn't budge, the anchors "coming home." What to make of this the wreckers could not tell; but the diver went down once more and found that a large rope, one end of which was fast to the wreck, had its other end twisted and jammed among and around the piles of the bridge; the wreckers did not want to tow the bridge ashore, so the diver cut the rope, the men hove away on the anchors and the Ceres at last left her Winter's berth. On Monday forenoon the wreckers' labors had resulted in the schooner's being turned around, hauled about her length to the eastward, and landed on the gravel bank, with but twenty-two feet of water on top of her house; and it was expected that unless they had some serious drawback they would in three or four days have her in a position to commence discharging her coal. But in the afternoon that "serious drawback" arrived; all was ready for a grand lift, and the vessel had been raised six feet from the bottom, when the chains broke—the after one first, and a moment later the forward one—and down to the bottom once more went the Ceres, there to lay until August before any further attempt to raise her will be made, the wrecking gang having two other vessels to get up in the meantime.

The master wrecker, Mr. Gibson, is evidently like Mr. Grant, a very obstinate man, or he never would have persisted in attempting to raise the Ceres after he found out what difficulties the job presented; a vessel in a most un-get-at-able position, under sixty feet of water in a rapidly flowing river, and embedded for two-thirds her length in hard gravel, would to most men have seemed worth more to leave where she was than to raise; but he said she must come up, and she did come part way, and will have to come the rest of it if she don't break in pieces—and even then he may insist on pulling out the pieces.

The diver, Mr. Moran, says the place where the vessel laid is by all odds the worst one he has ever worked in, the depth of water, the intense darkness, the unpleasant abundance of old logs and the rushing tide rendering a man almost helpless. On the deck of the schooner it was all very well; but when it came to poking around in the dark under her bottom, feeling his way among the piles of slimy, slippery logs, and not knowing at what moment he might hit one that would bring the whole lot down on top of him, he is free to say he was not carried away with a desire to stop there any longer than was necessary.

DOWN WITH THE PIGEONS.

Messrs. Editors: I see by an item in a recent issue of your paper that you disapprove of the killing of the pigeons which have for so long infested the belfry and projections on the North Church, and made themselves an intolerable nuisance to persons entering the church, besides defiling the front of the church in such manner as to render it repulsive to took at. You also blame the police for assisting in this good work of exterminating the pests, for pests they are. Now, of what use are these birds? They are pretty to look at, I grant, but they are not particularly cleanly, and they do not destroy insects or worms; and there is no cruelty in shooting them, and I consider that whoever does that abates a nuisance and deserves praise rather than censure. Kindness to animals does not consist in allowing them to multiply until they become an annoyance, nor to exist after they have become so, but in treating them properly as long as there is no motive for destroying them, and in killing them as expeditiously as possible when it becomes necessary to kill them.

Yours respectfully, A MEMBER.

[We do not know how "A Member" found out that we "disapprove of the killing of the pigeons," nor when we wrote any item "blaming the police" for it. We merely mentioned the fact that the doves are less numerous than formerly, and gave as an explanation of it that they have been shot in the early morning hours by some persons with new-fangled guns of some kind, adding that our informant was "under the impression" that the police assisted in the work. We commended no one, and censured no one; in fact, we expressed no opinion at all in the matter. We are aware that the pigeons used to be a great nuisance through roosting over the church doors, and it may be all right to kill them all; and if they are to be killed we don't care who kills them, though we prefer they should be killed in the early morning, for we run no danger of being hit by any stray shot until some time after the "early morning" hours are past.—Eds. Chronicle.]

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday, June 5th.

Case Julia Mahoney vs. Minnie Wilson, continued from Monday, was finished. Judgment against Minnie; fine $3; costs $10.52. Minnie entered an appeal, and furnished bonds in the sum of $50 to prosecute the same.

Minnie Walch complained of Julia Mahoney, for disorderly conduct. Case dismissed.

JOTTINGS.

Will the gentleman who posted a letter to the CHRONICLE in the mail-car (probably at Hampton) on Tuesday morning, oblige the editor by communicating his name?

Schooner Clara E. Simpson, Talpey, on her last passage from this port to Philadelphia, when in Vineyard Sound was struck by a white squall and thrown on her beam ends, but her head sails were split and blown away by the first stroke of the squall, which allowed the schooner to luff and right herself. She went over so far that a staysail which was lying on the main hatch floated away over the lee rail, and had she been a centre-board instead of a keel vessel she would doubtless have turned bottom up. At the time of the squall the schooner was sailing along with a favoring breeze, and there was no indication whatever to warn the crew of the coming puff which so nearly made a mess of things.

A petition signed by some twenty of our most influential citizens is to be presented to the Board of Aldermen on Thursday evening, asking that the wells on Daniel, Austin and Warren streets be cleaned out, and the water made fit to drink. It is hoped that our city fathers will at once see what few drinking fountains we have put in good order.

The Band of Hope will hold its annual June Festival at Franklin Hall, this (Wednesday) afternoon. Members of the Woman's Temperance League are cordially invited to be present. A picnic collation will be served in the Banquet Hall.

Assistant-Inspector-General David Urch of this city officially reports to the Adjutant-General that Portsmouth will send one hundred and ninety men and forty-seven horses to Concord on Thursday, to participate in the parade of the State militia at the inauguration of Governor-elect Prescott. The special train leaves this city at six o'clock on that morning. An opportunity will be given our Concord neighbors to see the Portsmouth phalanx in a body, either before or after the procession. We understand that the Portsmouth Cavalry has been given the right of the line in the grand procession, and that twenty-eight companies will parade.—Times.

Don't kill the cherry-birds. What if they (as well as the robins) do eat a ripe cherry or two when they get a chance? they more than pay for their board by the service they do against the canker worms. The busiest set of mortals we have seen for a long time was a flock of cherry-birds in a magnificent apple tree within fifty feet of the back windows of our office, on Tuesday evening,—that is, the tree was a magnificent one on Sunday, but is a shabby looking affair now. The little, crested gluttons stuffed themselves with the canker worms until they could hardly fly, then sat on a limb and meditated awhile, and then ate some more. Each bird must have eaten scores of the worms; and if they were too late to save the tree from destruction it is some satisfaction to have revenge on the canker worms, which we despise from the very bottom of our heart.

The police officers give a flat-footed denial to the story that they shot the pigeons on the Parade. They make their denial quite comprehensive, asserting that they have not shot pigeons or other birds, with airguns or guns of any other kind, in the "early morning hours" or at any other hours. They say they are willing to be blamed for all they do, but not for all others do. Well, we didn't blame anybody.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Messrs. Alex. Frothingham & Co., which will be found in this issue. Those of our friends who wish to transact business of that kind can find no better parties to act for them than the above firm, who are thoroughly acquainted with the business and are well known in New York Banking circles.—Thompson's Bank Note Reporter, New York.

NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

RYE, June 5th.

The third attempt of the Congregational society to get a pastor to succeed Mr. Aldrich has failed, and for the past two Sundays the meeting house has been closed, but the wardens expect another candidate next Sabbath.

An immense number of potato bugs have been picked during the past week, but their number does not seem to diminish. One farmer says his spring chickens, which are now pretty well grown, will eat them just as they will corn if they are thrown to them, and that they follow him round while he is hoeing and pick the bugs from the vines. Another says his hens will run and look at them, if thrown before them; from which it seems that chickens will eat potato bugs, while hens will not.

Oren S. Green, our town clerk, has the handsomest young pear orchard in Rye. It was set out three years since and comprises fifty trees of different varieties, and they are looking exceedingly thrifty at the present time.

Hon. Thomas J. Parsons has this Spring set out on his land, bordering on the highway, near his residence at the Centre, about 150 rock maples. They were taken from a nursery near Chesley's Four Corners, from which over 1000 trees have been taken up and transplanted this year.

Three cases of unpleasantness resulting in personal encounters have taken place not many miles from Rye Harbor during the past three weeks, between parties who are old enough to vote. No cards, no pistols, coffee,—at present.

Adny P. Locke, who died the 26th ult., was buried the following Tuesday from the Congregational church. Many were present to pay their tribute to the memory of their young associate, and to express their sympathy for the bereaved father, Mr. Jos. Locke, who now in his advanced years is left childless, two daughters having previously passed away, as also did his first wife, their mother, some years since. To the medical fraternity, his case was one of considerable interest, and Dr. J. W. Parsons, of Portsmouth, in whose charge he has been for some over a year past, made a report of it to the New Hampshire Medical Society in June last, at their annual meeting in Concord, which was published in their transactions.

The advanced guard of the summer sojourners have arrived at Foss' Beach.

NAT.

HAMPTON, June 5th.

Mr. Amos T. Leavitt, who died very suddenly on Monday, probably from heart disease, was widely known and highly respected as an honest, upright, Christian man. Not only his townsmen, but the many guests who have for a long series of years summered at his large private boarding house at North Beach, will regret his loss. Mr. Leavitt was seventy years old; his wife and six children survive him.

A case of spontaneous combustion occurred in Hampton a few days since. Mr. Freeman Brown, having completed a fishing seine and oiled it preparatory to use, placed it on a wheelbarrow in the barn. Mrs. Brown having occasion to go to the barn some time after, discovered smoke, and on opening the door found the seine a mass of fire. Most women under similar circumstances would have shrieked and ran away, leaving the barn door open so as to create a nice draft and burn up the whole concern; but Mrs. Brown, with great presence of mind, cool courage and her own two hands, promptly trundled the wheelbarrow and its dangerous load out of doors, thereby undoubtedly preventing a conflagration, which must have been a disastrous one in that neighborhood, if it had once got fairly under way.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to-day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and References and receipts placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements on the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be used at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

—It is not the loudest expressions that show the strongest feeling. Still waters run deep, and a watch ticking can be heard farther than a bed ticking.

—There was a strange christening scene in All Saints' Church, West Bromwich, Eng., on May 13. The church, the churchyard and the streets were crowded, for the gossips had known for a week that one of the vicar's parishioners, who accused him of being the father of her illegitimate child, intended to present herself before the font. "What name do you give this child?" asked the vicar, whose name was Frederick Willett. George White, the young woman's father, answered sharply, "Frederick Willett White." Mr. Willett instantly refused to give the child that name, stating that they were assuming his own name. The child's mother shook her head and the child's grandfather said "No." Taking the child in his arms and pouring water on its head, the vicar named it "George White." The grandfather remonstrated against the arbitrary use of his own name, and the High Sheriff, who happened to be the vicar's father-in-law, went forward and led the irascible gentleman out of the church.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic.

HE WILL COME;

BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. These is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative it could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung wrving climate of New England.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

— USE —

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall carry them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind in, about or on his or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city, but shall in every case be prohibited to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds; or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.
It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.
It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.
It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.
For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, CURES COUGHS, CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—At a colored ball in Memphis, Henry Joy killed a jealous rival. There was a motion to arrest him, but the general sentiment was, "On with the dance; let Joy be unconfined."

—"Which of the four is the 'Harper,' and which are the 'Brothers?'" some person once asked of James Harper. "Oh, any one of us is Harper, and all the rest are the Brothers," was the reply. In this sober jest is couched an essential ingredient of the success of the great publishing house.

—An American traveller reproved an Irish cab-driver for belaboring his horse so constantly with the lash. Pat was very good-natured about the matter. "Why," said the gentleman, "we do not employ whips at all nowadays in America." "So I've heard," rejoined the driver, quietly; "ye use revolvers."

—Base-ball has not only its own literature, but its own remarkable names of eminent players. Here in one newspaper we read the exploits of Luff, and Tipper, and Burdock, and Woodhead, and Recap, and Blong, and Start, and Blogg, and Snigg. Clearly, Dickens died too soon; should have lived to see the names we can produce in the national game.

—At the outbreak of the civil war the Mount Vernon Association left a lady of culture in charge of Washington's house and grave. Batteries were planted on the bank above and below; the pickets of each army were stationed on the wooded slopes near by; but not a tree, not a shrub on this consecrated ground was hurt. There was fighting to the south and to the west, but they "left him alone in his glory."

—A little five-year-old lady was recently very curious to learn more about the past life and residence of a little baby brother that had made his appearance not long ago, and in reply to her inquiries the nurse said: "The angels brought him down from heaven in the night. "The idea was a big one, but the young questioner grappled with it, and after pondering a moment she asked: "How did the angels get back—in an elevator?"—Rochester Democrat.

—We want to say gently, but firmly, that we have rather weak lungs; that we know it would improve them if we laid out a bit of garden, sir, and dug in it a little every day, sir, and fussed about it, sir, and all that, and that we weren't going to lay out any such a garden, that we won't dig a peck of potatoes, that we won't have a back as well as lungs, and don't intend to inflict one with a chronic ache in order to build up the other. No garden in ours. We are not averse, however, to following good advice so far as we can. We will compromise, therefore, by sitting on the porch and watching our industrious neighbor, who has no back, dig.—Hawkeye.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

COCOA SHELLS, prepared by Walter Baker & Co. furnish an excellent substitute for tea and coffee, at half their cost, and are palatable, nutritious and healthful. All grocers sell Baker's Chocolates, which are the best in the market.

Adamson's Botanic Balsam will not make new lungs, but will prevent the disease from spreading throughout the whole substance of the lungs, thereby facilitating recovery. Price 35 cts. Samples free.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Its guaranteed to relieve and cure it taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

The popular verdict of the travelling public is that the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, cannot be excelled by any other house in the Quaker City.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1877.

New Hampshire Legislature.

Most of the members of the Legislature arrived in Concord on Tuesday, and the party caucuses were held in the evening, to nominate officers of the House and Senate. The republican nominations were as follows:

House—Speaker, A. A. Woolson of Lisbon; Clerk, C. C. Danforth of Concord; Assistant Clerk, A. W. Baker of Lebanon; Sergeant-at-Arms, Charles E. Cummings; Doorkeepers, William H. Gardiner of Portsmouth, and William W. Hill of Concord.

Senate—President, Natt Head of Hooksett; Clerk, Tyler Westgate, Haverhill; Assistant Clerk, Calvin Sanders, Dover; Doorkeeper, John W. Babbitt, Keene.

The democrats nomidated Heratio Colony of Keene for Speaker of the House, John B. Mills of Manchester for Clerk, and Francis M. Hatch of Portsmouth for Assistant Clerk.

On Wednesday the nominees of the republican caucuses were elected, in Senate and House.

News and Notes.

Bath is said to be the busiest town in Maine just now. The ship-yards are more active than at any time since the war; twenty-three vessels are on the stocks, and there is not a man in the city willing to work who is unemployed. About $75,000 was added to her valuation last year and her population is increasing, while during the hard times it has been on the wane.

Admiral Reynolds, at Yokohama, on the 10th ult. was about sending the gunboat Alert to rescue sixteen men and one woman wrecked from some American vessel, reported to be on an island near Dampier Straits.

During the "Centennial Agricultural Show" at Bath, England, on the 6th inst., the bridge over the Avon river gave way when crowded with people, and sixty persons were drowned.

Mrs. Lydia Sherman, the Connecticut poisoner, who recently escaped from State Prison, was recaptured in Providence, R. I., on the 5th inst.

Those who had faith that the potato bugs could not cross water are likely to be disappointed. At New Bedford they have been seen crossing the Ocequeecan river in shoals, and the fish, though rising to flies, would not touch them.

The barn of Jesse Doliff, in Kennebunkport, Me., was struck by lightning Saturday, and Mr. Doliff, who was in it, knocked down and paralyzed.

The city government of Biddeford, Me. has passed the appropriation bill, which amounts in all to about $95 [illegible] Five hundred dollars was appropriated for Independence Day.

New Hampshire Items.

A valuable horse belonging to a Mr. Westgate of Hanover fell into an open well on the 4th inst., but was dug out without serious injury.

A curious lawsuit is soon to be tried at Rochester. When Harry Bloodgood's troupe were in the town the band frightened a Mr. Dame's team, and the wagon was smashed and Mr. Dame's ankle broken. He has, accordingly, sued the Bloodgood company for $500, and attached their horses and carriages.

A singular chain of circumstances led to the arrest of Charles Cote at Tilton, who proves to be the ring-leader in the recent burglaries in Manchester. One Louis Provancher was arrested for fornication. On him was found a gold watch burglarized from G. F. Bosher & Co.'s warerooms. Provancher, to clear himself, gave the name and address of Cote.

Political.

President Hayes' course does not appear to have smashed the republican party very badly down in Norwich, Conn. At the municipal election there on the 4th the republicans elected their candidates for Mayor and other city officers by an average majority of 550, which figures represent the republican gain over last year, when a democratic mayor was elected.

We do not intend that the negro race shall be deprived of the right of suffrage in the South so long as the race by its presence here with that right entitles us to many members of Congress more than we would otherwise have. We care little how the negro votes or whether he votes at all, for we have demonstrated our power to carry the State in spite of him, but we most strenuously insist that from henceforth the negro must have the right to vote. Our Northern brethren have put the stick into our hands, and we take infinite pleasure in breaking their heads with it.—Memphis Appeal.

Gov. Stone says that everybody in Mississippi condemns the DeKalb murderers. But nobody manifests any eagerness to hang the murderers.

Woman's Heroism.

The bravest girl in Australia is Grace Vernon Bussell. The steamer Georgette was wrecked off the west coast, near Perth; a small boat had been capsized in the surf and women and children were struggling in the water. On the crest of a precipitous cliff appeared the figure of a young lady on horseback. To the sailors on the stranded vessel it seemed utterly impossible that a horse and its rider should be able to descend that precipice. But the young lady never faltered. She plunged down at full speed, and reaching the shore, spurred her horse into the boiling surf. There were two lines of roaring breakers. With splendid pluck she dashed through them and reached the boat, to which the affrighted women and children were clinging. Her horse stumbled over a hawser which stretched between the wreck and the small boat; but she clung to the saddle and brought the women and children to land. There was still a man left on board the boat. She plunged into the breakers again and brought him safe to the shore. While those whom she had saved were rescuing those who remained on the wreck, the heroic girl, drenched with the sea foam and half fainting with fatigue, galloped a dozen miles home to have relief sent to the half-drowned, half-naked folks whom she had left on the beach. Her sister, Mrs. Brockman, took horse, galloped that night through the woods to the shore, taking tea, milk, sugar, and flour for the destitute people; and the next day the rescued were brought to Mr. Brockman's house and cared for. The anxiety and excitement proved fatal to Mrs. Brockman, who took a severe cold, and died eventually of brain fever. Grace Vernon Bussell still lives.

The Steamer George S. Wright.

An Indian named Coma, a survivor from the steamer George S. Wright, which was so mysteriously lost on the Pacific coast north of Oregon three or four years ago, has been recognized on the street at Nunaimo, British Columbia, arrested and taken to Victoria, Vancouver's Island, and he has confessed to the Superintendent of Police that one night the boilers of the steamship exploded, and she began to sink at once. Captain Ainsley, with four United States officers and a passenger, got into a boat, and told Coma, who was on deck, to get in too. The rest of the people were in bed, or tried to escape by other means. The captain's party of seven pulled ashore near Cape Caution. They were nearly naked, and the Indians gave them blankets to keep them warm. A day or two afterward three canoe-loads of Indians came to the spot, and Captain Ainsley offered the leader $500 to convey the shipwrecked men to Fort Rupert. Four of the Indians were armed with muskets, with which they soon killed all the whites. They then tied stones to their bodies and sank them in deep water. They robbed the bodies of all the valuables, including the captain's gold watch and chain. They spared Coma, but told him if he ever dared narrate the circumstances, they would kill his father. Coma thinks that all the people on board who were in bed at the time of the explosion were drowned, and that the ship went down rapidly. The prisoner was confronted at Victoria with the four Indians who were brought in as prisoners by the steamer Rocket some weeks ago and have since been in jail at Victoria, and identified two of them as belonging to the party of murderers. His story of the murders agrees with that recently told by another Indian being the scene of the tragedy.

"Freedom of the City."

"The Freedom of the City of London" which has just been given to General Grant is an honor which has been accepted with thanks by the third Napoleon, the Emperor Alexander, and the great French statesman Thiers, but has never before been conferred upon an American. London has been styled "a municipality within a metropolis." Within its limits its Lord Mayor takes precedence of all the Royal family, none of whom can even enter it, in an official character, without his formal permission. The citizens of the city proper have many rights and privileges of their own, under a special government based on the votes of its freemen, while all the remainder of the great metropolis is governed by Parliamentary authority. "The freedom of the city"—a parchment in a gold box—warrants to the holder the right of franchise as a citizen of London, and many other privileges, the exercise of which are now mostly obsolete. In the case of foreigners, the bestowal of the freedom of the city is simply a compliment, and a great one, to the recipient. The citizens have already formally voted this honor to General Grant, and he will of course accept and appear before the City Chamberlain, take the "oath of fidelity" necessary to its formal acceptance, and sign his name in a big book, with those of the officers of the City Chamber, who are ready to act as his "compurgators," and make themselves responsible for his good citizenship.

A Singular Superstition.

A queer bit of superstition is that concerning the death of all the owners of an emerald which used to flash on the shirt fronts of prominent negro minstrels. The stone was sold by Pony Moore, the London minstrel manager, first to Luke West, who was then in excellent health. Very soon West was taken sick, was at the point of death, and wishing to give Matt Peel something for his kindness in nursing him, presented him with the emerald. At once Luke began to regain his health, but Peel died after wearing the jewel a year. Hiram Rumsey bought it from the widow, wore it for a while, and dying, bequeathed it to George Christie, who after a few months of dreadful suffering with epilepsy died in New York city. The emerald was then sold to Sher Campbell, but he never wore it but loaned it to Unsworth, who sported it on the stage at Bryant's. Bryant, Unsworth and Seymour all wore the "gravestone," and in less than a year the trio, with Sher Campbell, were all dead. The night Nelse Seymour died his brother and Tony Pastor smashed the stone and scattered the tiny fragments.

Women in an Election.

A practical illustration of the workings of woman suffrage was given our citizens for the first time at the election for School Director, Monday, by which Mrs. M. L. Jordan was elected by a majority of sixty over her opponent. We stated last week that we presumed the ladies would avail themselves of the opportunity of voting which the occasion offered. They not only did so, to the fullest extent, but gave the gentlemen a lesson in politics which was hardly to have been expected from those who had had no previous experience in political wire-pulling. In fact, the ladies captured the polls, ran the election, and elected their candidate by a rousing majority. Up to the very hour of opening the polls it looked as if the ladies really, as opponents of woman suffrage have so frequently and confidently asserted, "cared nothing for the ballot, and would not exercise the privilege if accorded them." How vain are the plans of men—when women take it into their heads to thwart them! It was refreshing to see men who have persistently sneered at the idea of women doing otherwise than voting as the men dictated, themselves voting at the ladies directed! Why, these tyros in politics actually rallied business men from their stores, captured them on the streets, electioneered them wherever they could corner them, and thrusting into their hands ballots which bore the name of their candidate, sent them to the polls—not to vote as since time immemoral they have been accustomed to, for their own, but the ladies' choice.—Lake City Silver World.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

For Purifying the Blood.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia, and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potash and Iron, makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system, that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucborrhea arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure health returns.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 2½ years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels. I have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all that I have recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected in Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and would you February 22d or their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir;—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving testimony; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do a day work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the right side. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been trying and using medical stimulants, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One said he could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Tex.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last two years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

HEARD FROM.

Capt. J. Albert Sanborn, of this city, who with his uncle, Mr. John Gulliver, started from here for the Black Hills on the 3d of May, arrived at Deadwood May 28th, a private letter (from which we are permitted to make some extracts) written by Capt. Sanborn on the 29th having been received in this city on Tuesday, the 5th inst. Their party went out by way of Yancton and Fort Pierre, leaving the steamboat at the latter place and tramping over the ground between that place and Deadwood for two weeks. He says: "right glad we were to have our journey over, as we were getting pretty footsore. The first week of our march we had it very muddy, and some days we made but five miles; the last week the roads were good, but there was a scarcity of drinking water; we made about twenty-five miles a day, the last week." Messrs. Sanborn and Gulliver left the road on the last day's march and took a trail over the mountains, arriving at Deadwood five hours ahead of the train; but they "had some awful climbing by the way. It was a strange sight,—for miles in some places the trees are all broken short off about thirty feet from the ground, the track of the whirlwinds being distinctly marked. In passing through the valleys in the hills, the mountains had a very peculiar look, as though they had been heaved up by an earthquake through the overlying gravel and rock strata. We are camped at Deadwood Gulch, in the 'suburbs!' A brook of nice water flows in front of our tent and we have wood all around us." Mr. Gulliver, who is an old stager in the mines, having had twelve years of it in Idaho and eight in California, Capt. Sanborn says "likes the looks of the country here and thinks we shall do well. We shall stay here, and no doubt we shall get hold of something; but I would give no advice to anybody to come. Thousands have come here with no idea of a mining country, and there are hundreds here now, 'dead broke' and not knowing what to do; they will have to 'get.' We met nearly a thousand going back when we were coming in. Claims can be bought, but everything about here is taken up." Their party took the wrong route—at least, Capt. Sanborn says they would have saved a good deal of time, ten days or a fortnight, by going via Cheyenne, and have had good roads all the distance they would have had to foot it. We expect to get some interesting letters from Capt. Sanborn, for publication.

A SILLY RIVALRY ENDED.

The agreement entered into by the managers of the Eastern and Boston & Maine railroads, with the object of terminating the long-continued, senseless and ruinous rivalry between the two roads, went into effect June 1st and is working well. Its basis is the pooling of all competing business; the road that does the business is to have fifty per cent. of the receipts, and the balance, or the remaining fifty per cent., is to be divided equally between the two corporations. All freight cars of the Eastern road can go beyond Portland, but all other cars, with the exception of the night Pullman trains, are to stop at Portland, where passengers will be transferred. At certain stations only one agent will be employed for both roads, thereby effecting a saving in salaries. Trains of the Eastern road are allowed to run into Lawrence, and all lawsuits between the two roads are considered settled. Each road is at liberty to inspect the free passes issued by the other road.

POLICE COURT.

Wednesday, June 6th.

Lizzie Burns and Joanna White brought cross suits against each other for assault and battery. The Burns woman went to the house, Joanna White to get her trunk, but Joanna refused to let her have it and ordered her out of the house; Lizzie refused to go and Joanna tried to put her out, and there was some pulling of hair, pounding with parasol, etc., but no serious damage was done. Both cases were dismissed.

APPLEDORE.

Laighton Brothers, of Appledore, have completed all the improvements on their buildings they proposed last Autumn, the extension to the main building adding thirty rooms to the previously large number; the buildings have all been newly painted, the central (or main) one a little darker than the others, the contrast being quite noticeable some distance from shore and adding greatly to the appearance of the huge pile. The steamer Appledore has also been repainted, and been fitted with all the new improvements to add to her speed and secure the comfort and safety of her passengers. On Wednesday she towed the large landing stage to the island, and it was moored in its place for the Summer. Capt. Robinson, her popular and thoroughly capable commander, has secured the services of two officers who are well and favorably known to those who have been guests at the Appledore House in seasons past—Mr. William Gerrin as engineer, and Mr. William Hulin ("Modoc") as mate. The Laightons have also engaged most of the corps of careful and experienced sailing-boat skippers who have given such satisfaction to guests at the house in past years. As heretofore, everything that can be done to promote the comfort and enjoyment of their patrons, will be done by the "Kings of Appledore." The hotel will open on the 14th inst., when the steamer will commence making two trips daily. A large proportion of the rooms are already engaged.

A BEAUTIFUL DRIVE.

Among the many beautiful drives for which the neighborhood of our city is noted, there is none which in the same distance offers so many and so varied attractions as a trip over Sagamore road and Wentworth avenue, through the quaint old town of Newcastle and back over the three bridges to the city again. Sagamore creek, though far less beautiful than formerly, owing to the cutting away of the woods which used to stand on its south bank near the bridge, is still a beautiful place at high water; and the Wentworth road is "countryfied" enough to be refreshing to one who cannot get further out of town. The view of Little Harbor and the Atlantic from the new bridge, the drive past Hotel Wentworth and through the queerly-laid-out and picturesque streets (or roads, for we don't which they are called) on "Great Island," with glimpses of Whale's-back and the river's mouth, Fort Constitution, with its lighthouse and the old round tower whose portholes command no place in particular, the lower harbor, Pepperell's cove, Kittery Point, the harbor islands and the Navy Yard, all together make up a panorama varied and beautiful in the extreme. The upper bridges have been put in good repair and are entirely safe; and any one with a couple of hours or so to spare for a drive will find the route we have indicated a most agreeable one,—that is, if he has an eye for quiet beauty in nature, for if he has not, a drive on a race-course will probably be more satisfactory to him.

JOTTINGS.

Sanger's Great London Circus and Menagerie is to be here the last of this month.

Market square seemed very lively on the evening of Tuesday, the 5th inst. There was a large meeting in the North church, where Rev. Dr. Storrs of New York, Rev. Dr. Warren of California and Rev. Mr. Cobb of Minnesota addressed the people in the interest of Home Missions; the Philharmonic Society had their closing rehearsal for the season in Grange Hall, the Cornet Band were practising in their rooms over Frye's store, and the Heavy Artillery had a hall drill with drum and fife,—and the hot weather causing all the windows to be thrown open, loungers about the square were treated to music in variety; then the Cavalry had a drill, and pranced up and down street a number of times; and the numbers of people passing to and fro exceeded anything seen before this season.

Mr. Benjamin T. Tredick, formerly of Dover and later of Philadelphia, and who died in the latter city recently, left bequests amounting to $54,000 to charitable institutions, to be paid on the death of his widow, Dorcas H. Tredick. He left "to the Howard Benevolent Society of Portsmouth, N. H., $3000;" "to the Congregational Church and Society at Newcastle, N. H., the income for the support of the Gospel ministry, $5000;" "to the Mayor and Councils of the city of Dover, N. H., the income for the improvement of Pine Hill Cemetery, $5000." The library of deceased is bequeathed "to the Athenæum of Portsmouth N. H., his native place, its use, however, being reserved to his wife during her life."

Mr. Fred B. Coleman, for several years clerk in Thatcher's drug store at the corner of Congress and Vaughan streets, has lately purchased the stock therein and is now doing business on his own account.

Master Hugh Kuhle, recently on duty at this naval station, has been detached from the receiving ship Wabash and ordered back to this yard.

THE UNITED STATES FLAG.

It is not generally known, at least among the young, through how many changes our national flag passed before reaching its present perfection as "the star-spangled banner," the centennial anniversary of which the Veteran Artillery Association are to celebrate on the 14th of June. At first it was simply St. George's cross, or ancient flag of England. Second, St. Andrew's cross, or ancient flag of Scotland. Third, Union Jack, or combination of the St. George and St. Andrew crosses. Fourth, flag of the mercantile marine of England, identical with the "Union flags" displayed by the Colonies prior to their union in 1775. Fifth, striped "Union flag" adopted by the Colonies after their union. Sixth, U. S. flag after the independence of the Colonies, prescribed by Congress in 1777. Seventh, U. S. flag from 1795 to 1818, prescribed by Congress on the admission of Vermont and Kentucky into the Union. Eighth, the Star-spangled Banner, the most beautiful flag in all the world. What American is there whose heart does not thrill with joy as it meets his eye on land or sea, and who is not ready to exclaim with the poet,

"Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us,
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner waving o'er us!"

Who that looked upon the scene can ever forget the bright Sabbath morning when the people of New York went forth en masse to greet the First New Hampshire Regiment while on its way to the capital? when Broadway was filled by countless thousands, far as the eye could reach, cheering the dear old flag, never so dear as then, as it waved from every lofty roof, and joining their voices in the national anthem! Such a scene of wild enthusiasm was never enacted before in the great city, all vowing that the grand old banner that had been struck down by a traitor horde at Sumter, should be restored by patriot hands and float again in triumph! It was restored to the battered walls of the time-honored fortress by the hero who had defended it until overpowered by so unequal a force, and well may we sing its praises now that it has indeed

"braved a hundred years
The battle and the breeze." J. H. R.

CUI BONO?

There are people in this world who delight in nothing but misery. Like Simon the Stylite, they would stand perched up on one leg for the love of pain, and so prominently that every one besides will have an opportunity of enjoying their misery; for it is an old and true saying, that "misery loves company." They can never see a beautiful bird, without wanting to destroy it. If you show them a pretty flower, they will say "of what use is it? There might be potatoes and cabbages growing instead of flowers—and potatoes and cabbages are of much more use than flowers." Like Judas Iscariot they will say of anything fine, let it be sold and the money given to the poor,—so much regard do they profess to have for the miserable. When they see a beautiful ornamental tree, they have a longing desire to cut it down for use as fire wood, even if there should be a plenty of other combustible material all around. A howling wilderness would suit them better than the garden of Paradise. I once knew a good old lady, who was so much actuated by a pious regard for the Christian Sabbath as to ask one of her friends to bring in for Sunday reading some newspapers, containing solemn subjects. Said she, "I want something giving an account of a horrible murder, and other such matters, so that I may have something serious to read about." If such people see doves or pigeons flying about the streets, devouring what would otherwise be wasted, and doing no injury to any one, when proper precautions are used, they are at once seized with an irresistible desire for their extermination, for fear that some one may derive pleasure from looking at them. Doves and pigeons, however, combine the useful with the beautiful, as many an invalid can attest. In Venice the pigeons are fed every day at the public expense.

UNCLE ROBERT, THE NURSE.

Who does not know Uncle Robert? Even the children of tender years know and love his genial face, for they have learned how much of harmlessness and real kindness may accompany looseness of dress and a wood saw! Many of us have known Uncle Robert in years past, as the generalissimo at the Court House, for he was as good at keeping order among the boys there, as he was for trimming and pruning the surplus growth of suckers on an apple tree. He was as much at home in the Hospital, nursing a bad case of small-pox, as he was in grafting pear and apple scions in the orchard.

Uncle Robert has a large circle of friends in every class of society,—some very warm and grateful friends, who owe to him their comfort during illness, and perhaps their lives. As we were passing to and fro a few days since, on one of our main business streets, there stood Uncle Robert, in his usual easy attire (for he was never a dandy in his style of dress, usually at this season wearing neither coat nor vest,) with the sleeves of his blue shirt turned up to the elbows, revealing his healthy, sun-burnt arms. In this guise he stood for a long time, earnestly talking with a fashionably dressed and charming young lady of perhaps twenty summers. The contrast was striking; and when, after the long interview, the young lady placed her delicately gloved hand in his rough and ready, bidding him a very cordial good bye as they parted, we accosted Uncle Robert with a pertinent (or impertinent) inquiry as to his relative, for such we took her to be. "Bless ye—no, she's no relation of mine," said he. We ventured a remark upon her appearance: "Yes, yes," said he, "she looks well enough now, but I have seen her when she was anything but handsome, for I tended her when she had the small-pox a few years ago. Indeed, I tended the whole family, some eight or nine of them; they all had it, and they all lived but one, the father,—he died." "Well," we said, "she certainly is an evidence of your faithful and successful nursing." "Yes," he continued, "I have not seen her for a long while, and we have been talking over the old times and our old acquaintance; she's a fine girl, but I've seen the time when she wouldn't have known herself in the glass, but she's all right now, that's a fact." Of such ministrations the life of Uncle Robert has been full. May it be long before we shall miss his ruddy, genial face upon our daily walks. OBSERVER.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son or Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

JOHN H. BROUGHTON, Mayor, Ex. Of.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them—will be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstores of J. H. FOSTE , or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

A Strange Bird Story.

L. Page and son, cutting wood near San Jose, noticed for several days that a number of birds remained constantly upon a tree near them, some going and coming from time to time. Upon cutting down the tree they discovered a limb with a hollow cavity, some two feet in length and three or four inches in diameter, in which were two full-grown birds of some goodly-sized species. There was a small aperture through which the birds were supplied with food from their mates. The limb was cut and the birds liberated. They were neither of them able to fly, having evidently never been out of their imprisonment. How they came inside is a question. It is probable that the mother bird was small, and though able to make her nest in the hollow of the tree and rear her young, could not extricate them, and they did not gain strength enough to help themselves until the hollow had so closed that escape was impossible. Those who examined the birds say they are about two years old. They had been fed from their birth by their bird-fellows through the aperture in the limb of the tree. A nobler instance of devotion even the human family never exhibited.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

FLEMINGTON, Hunterdon Co., N. J.
Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, and all those ugly ulcers have healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write.
Yours truly, JAMES O. BELLIS.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. Sold by booksellers, or prepaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery."
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England.
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
— USE —
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. His offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water or houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be drained by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to be thrown within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may receive it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and on a future one before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit one pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer offal to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or if after his usual place of abode he shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flats or marshes, adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

DANIEL W. JONES, M. D.,
ROBERT SHILLABER,
DANIEL DANIELSON,

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for Dr. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Mr. Biles' Pictures.

The manager of our theatre recently organized a circus and menagerie as a kind of supplemental show to the theatre, and he got a young artist in Wilmington to get up some designs for posters. When they were done they were not completely satisfactory, and Mills, the manager, sent for the artist in order to explain his views of the designs. He said—

"Mr. Biles, there are some few little matters about these drawings that struck me as being, as it were, hardly calculated to impress the public mind with a sense of the dignity of this undertaking. Now, in this picture of Professor Martine doing his great bareback act, I think the professor would be better satisfied if you would place his mouth in front and not around under his ear; and if you would fix up that right eye so that it would be as small as the other one, and would not so closely resemble the bottom of a teacup. The professor is sensitive about such things. And smooth down his hair a little, too; reduce that off hind leg of the horse so that it will not be a couple of feet longer than the other legs, and draw in his neck until it ceases to look as if he were a cross between a mule and a giraffe. Don't you think that would be an improvement?"

"Maybe it would," said Biles.

"And, Mr. Biles, I think if you were to daub in another kind of an elephant, perhaps the cravings of the public mind for conformity to nature would be better satisfied. This elephant is so constructed that an ordinary observer cannot tell which is his tail and which is his trunk. He looks to me as if he were picking up hay with his tail, and switching flies with his trunk. I see that you have painted him a light green color, too. Now a light green elephant is rarely seen. I cannot offer such a phenomenon to the public. What you want is to go out and study elephants a couple of years, so's to get some idea of what they are like; so's to ascertain that their ears do not stick up like a rabbit's, and that they have no wings. If those wings ever reach the public eye I'm a goner. Now you must needs know that an elephant has no wings."

"Maybe it hasn't."

"There is another thing. I've been trying to find out what you meant by painting in that picture a flour barrel lying on a four-legged table with a keg on the side of it and a calf's head sticking out of the end. We have nothing of the kind in our menagerie. We do not barrel our calves, and if we did we should not place the barrel on the table."

"Why, thunder!" said Biles, "that's intended for a dromedary. That's not a keg; it's the hump on the dromedary's back."

"Oh, it is, hey? Well, our dromedary is less phenomenal than that. I think I would reconstruct the picture. Our object is to instruct the public; not to make them laugh. And while you are at it, I would fix up that pig somehow. Precisely why you have wrapped the pig in blankets and represented it with a carbuncle on its snout, I do not know. I suppose you must have had some mysterious purpose in view."

"Why, you don't understand. That is a rhinoceros with a horn on his nose. What you call blankets is his thick skin hanging in folds."

"Ah, hah! I should never have suspected it. Smear it over, anyway! a rhinoceros like that would provoke a riot. The public would burst the tent down. I think, if I were you, I'd overhaul that picture of the acrobat making a double-back somersault. You will see, upon examination, that you have given him three legs and put the knees at the back, like the hind legs of a horse, and you have put two elbows on his right arm. He does not place his head under his armpit, as you depict him, and he never jams his nose against the small of his back. I'd build him over again, and at the same time reduce the size of the clown so that he will not appear twice as large as the elephant by which he is standing. You must either run up the elephant or compress the clown."

"Maybe it'd be better."

"I think so. Have you made up your mind whether that is a zebra or a Bengal tiger? Sometimes I think it's one, and sometimes the other; and my ring-master has a bet with me that you meant it for a cow, because it has horns. I should have thought so myself if you hadn't put stripes on it and painted it with a bill like a poll-parrot. It will excite curiosity as it stands, but I think you'd better make up your mind what kind of an animal you want it to be and then rearrange the details. If you intend it for a poll-parrot, wipe out a couple of legs, and if you propose a tiger, modify the beak and remove the feathers from the tail. There is a large scope for improvement in that work of art."

"I'll look it over," said Biles.

"Do. Now observe that kangaroo! The hind legs of a real kangaroo are long and its fore legs are short. But you have made one hind leg and one fore leg long and the others short. You have got up a kangaroo that can walk sideways on a steep hill, first rate. But it is unlike the kangaroo of nature, and you hurt the effect more by representing it in the act of laying an egg in a nest on the top of a tree. S'pose you modify that kangaroo a little, and also stop that Brazilian ape from reading the newspaper while he picks his teeth with his tail. Pebble will go wild about such great blunders."

"Why, that is not intended for an ape," said Biles. "I painted that for a picture of you, standing in the ring, looking over your programme while you sucked the end of your cane."

"Me?"

"Yes, sir, a likeness of you."

"Mr. Biles, that lets you out. You mean well, no doubt; but you are not in your element as the artist of a first-class circus. When a man gets out a portrait of me so that it is mistaken for a Brazilian ape, his usefulness is ended. You can go, sir. I'll hunt up another painter to finish the contract."—Max Adeler, in N. Y. Weekly.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, JUNE 8, 1877.

New Hampshire Legislature.

On Wednesday the nominees of the republican caucuses were elected, in Senate and House.

Hon. J. E. Sargent of Concord was chosen temporary chairman of the House, and a ballot for Speaker was taken, resulting as follows:

Whole number of votes	364
Necessary to a choice	183
Horatio Colony of Keene had	147
Augustus A. Woolson of Lisbon	217

And Mr. Woolson was declared elected.

Royal H. Porter was chosen temporary chairman of the Senate, and a ballot for President was taken, with the following result:

Whole number of votes	12
Necessary to a choice	7
John F. Cloutman had	4
Natt Head	8

And Natt Head was declared elected.

Routine business only was transacted, and both Houses adjourned at an early hour.

New Hampshire Items.

The military show at Concord on Thursday was one of the most extensive ever made there on inauguration day, but the storm of Wednesday, which continued through the night and up to nine o'clock Thursday morning, prevented any extended decoration of buildings. The Portsmouth Cavalry led the column. The walking was execrable, but the tramp was kept up bravely through the mud to the capitol, where Gov. Prescott took the oath of office and delivered a long message. The troops were reviewed by Brig. Gen. Clough in the afternoon.

Charles Cotry, the ringleader of the notorious gang of burglars recently operating extensively in Manchester, was arraigned in the Police Court Wednesday morning, pleaded guilty to five complaints and was bound over to the Supreme Court in $1900, and in default goes to jail. Other complaints are held against him.

The valuation of Concord is $9,244,428, and the rate of taxation is $1.45 on the $100.

The War.

You can get all kinds of news from Eastern Europe in the same column of any of the large city dailies. You can learn positively that there is to be peace, that the war is going on; that the Danube will be crossed June 16, that it will not be crossed at all; that Mukhtar Pasha is cashiered, that he is still fighting away; that Ardahan is recaptured, and that it is not; that the Turks in Asia are perfectly powerless, and that the Russians there are badly beaten, etc. etc. After reading all this, and columns more like it, the only thing that you reliably know is that you don't know anything.

Turkish despatches report a victory over the Montenegrins at Maljat, at the entrance to the Duga pass. The Montenegrins fought desperately, and repulsed many assaults, though the odds against them were tremendous, the Turks having 35,000 men. The assailants finally occupied a hill commanding Danilograd, after losing 1000 men. Montenegrin accounts say the Turks were repulsed. The London Times correspondent at Vienna says the Turkish attack was but a feint to draw off troops from the Montenegrin army besieging Niesics. Another correspondent of the same paper announces some minor successes of the Monteuegrins near Niesics, and says that the Turks lost over 1000 men in an attack on Martinitza, the Montenegrins losing fifty men.

The Turks on the 5th shelled a line of pontoons which the Russians were launching at Gnirgevo, on the Danube. The shells were thrown from a battery located on the heights outside of the town, which had previously been dismantled. The firing was evidently from Krupp field guns of considerable size. At six o'clock, or one hour after beginning, they had thrown twenty-five shots, with splendid aim, into the midst of the working party. Several boats were blown up, but the Russian preparations continued without any halt. The Russians batteries made no reply.

Fire and Death in Boston.

A tenement house corner of Shawmut Avenue and Pleasant street, Boston, built of brick, four stories high and with a French roof, and occupied by eight families, the lower floor being used as a bake-shop and liquor saloon, took fire Wednesday evening and was destroyed. How the fire caught is not definitely known, one account stating that the building was struck by lightning, while the more general opinion is that the baker, Henry Kewer, was kindling his fire in the basement with kerosene. The fire was first seen by a boy named Henry Woodbury, who hastened to give the alarm; three alarms were struck, calling out the whole fire department of the city; but in two minutes the fire completely filled the only stairway in the building, from cellar to attic, cutting off all retreat by that way. The occupants of the building, thus cut off from the only means of exit, were seized with indescribable consternation. Shrieks and calls for help arose on every hand, and a scene of heart-sickening dismay ensued. Many of the people, thus hemmed in by the advancing flames, jumped from the front and rear windows to the streets, amid the utmost excitement of the spectators. Some were rescued by means of ladders by the brave firemen, and there were several marvellous escapes from death. The suddenness of the disaster did not prevent the firemen from displaying a great deal of genuine heroism. Some of the rescued persons were severely burned, and others were cruelly bruised and otherwise maimed. One man was killed, and several persons were seriously hurt, one, at least, fatally.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4th.

At a lecture delivered at Odd Fellows' Hall last evening, Rev. F. E. Boyle, pastor of St. Peter's (Catholic) church, Capitol Hill, took occasion to make a rather ill-natured attack upon Secretary Thompson, author of a lately published work entitled "Papacy and the civil power." The bigoted priest was perceptible all the way through the harangue. He referred to the Secretary as "a certain R. W. Thompson," and attempted to ridicule the work by pointing out a grammatical error in the preface; Mr. Thompson's intelligence, culture and honesty were all assailed; and I think Mr. Boyle did not advance his reputation by his last evening's effort.

The ladies assembled at Mount Vernon concluded their business after a week's session, and feeling the responsibility of awarding the contract for transportation of visitors from this city to Mount Vernon and return too weighty for their own shoulders, they transferred it to the executive committee. It is understood that the competition among steamboat men was so sharp that the Association will be able to make it much more profitable than it has been heretofore.

Those not familiar with the postal service have little idea of its steady expansion. New localities in the West are almost daily calling for an extension of the mail service, and old ones all over the country for its increase. Increase of cost in the month of May was, for railroad service, $17,774.62; for steamboat service, $1,336.42; and for "star service" (by any means that will insure certainty, celerity and safety, at the option of the contractor) $7,939.08. The service in certain portions of the South is a source of great vexation and annoyance, usually on account of political disturbances and intolerance. One postmaster in Louisiana, appointed more than two months ago, has not yet dared to assume the functions of the office, because assured by the threats made that his life would pay the forfeit. Another has had his commission sent him with notice of his appointment, three times, and as often returned endorsed "not called for," because threatened with death should he dare take it from the office. The Department now proposes to put the appointment into his hand by special messenger, and should he be interfered with the mail will be discontinued.

There is great delay in adjusting claims before the Pension Offices. Pensioners should understand that this is partially due to a lack of clerical force, and partially dependent upon the red-tape exactions of the pompous Commissioner at the head of the office, according to the statement of those having business with him. KNOX.

New York Fashions.

The contest at present waged between Nature on the one hand, and Art on the other, is often extremely curious. A potent example of such combat, is that process of compression which takes place when a stout individual wishes to reduce herself to those nymph-like proportions necessary for a becoming appearance in her new Princess costume. Cinderella's sisters never tried harder to fit themselves to the fabled slipper; but here, as there, the net result must be classed under the head of mortifying failures. True, our friend does actually get into her costume, but what then? Nature, like murder, "will out," and to my way of thinking, her ample dimensions become only the more conspicuous. On the other hand, one might reasonably conclude that the half-developed damsel would rest content in the knowledge that she at any rate possessed a degree of slenderness requisite for the fulfilment of the demands of Dame Fashion. Not so. She squeezes herself just as much, and I suggest as a question for some debating society, which of the two results in the greater absurdity. From the above remarks, a deduction may be drawn that just now one needs to be slender in order to be fashionable. Precisely so; and to attain such end, not only are costumes cut accordingly, but underclothing is narrowed down to the extremist limit. Garments are so diminished in breadth as scarce to be recognizable; petticoats strings are a thing of the past, and this because the petticoat proper is not allowed to come higher than the hips, where it is attached to a tight fitting yoke, while as a recent improvement even on this, we find that the corset cover is made to serve a double purpose, and brought down low gives support to a skirt cut as narrow as is consistent with locomotion. We do manage to walk, but should matters be carried any farther, I assert without fear of contradiction, that we would have to be carried around in litters.

A COTE DE LA MODE.

The consequence of all this is that not a few of us are content with being a cote de la mode; which literally translated, means, "by the side of the Fashion." But let us be done lecturing, and come to actual facts, to something practical. In our list of new designs for summer, we find the Veronique polonaise, which is another of the many modifications of the Princess. It is tight fitting; the fronts lapped evenly on the waist, but below this, the right side extends over the left. The Alexandra is also one of the most elegant of the many Princess polonaises. The Carmita basque, in connection with the Eugenie train forms an effective costume, and for children, the Rita dress, for girls from eight to twelve years of age, and the Lily blouse, for from one to six years old, may be recommended.

FASHIONABLE FANCIES.

For perfume, fashionables delight themselves just now in Colgate & Co.'s Violet Water. Really it is delicious, yielding the essential principles of a hundred bouquets of violets, for little more than the cost of one, and for use in the bath is equally delightful as for the handkerchief. Colgate & Co's Cachmere Bouquet Extract is also in very great favor, and mention may be made of the Cachmere Bouquet Toilet Soap as being preferred by our elegantes. In fans, our fancies are so numerous, that I hesitate to write concerning one kind, for fear of doing injustice to some other kind. There are fans of feathers, satin, silk, morocco, kid, and lace, each of these being subdivided into many differing varieties, and furthermore diverse as to combinations of different material, such as ivory, tortoise shell, wood, ebony, mother of pearl, gilt, etc. Which is the more fashionable, 'tis hard to say, since all are fashionable. Sizes are medium, and in price, we surely have range enough, since from three cents, they go up to one hundred and fifty dollars. Vexillo—the new lawn game—is the latest attraction among our fashionables. "Croquet in fancy dress, and much improved," as a leading journal puts it. The features of the latter's popularity have been carefully preserved, so that Vexillo, while it offers its own peculiar charms, furnishes something new to those who while they would enjoy, affect ennui of the old name.

LUCY CARTER.

Train Wreckers Caught.

Four of the gang of villains who recently threw a train from the track of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad near Woodend station, Mo., by which three men were killed, have been caught. A young man named Oliver was suspected and arrested; he confessed and gave the names of the other parties, viz., George Gibson, Allen Greenstreet and James Long, who have since been arrested and are under a strong guard at Richland. Four others connected with the gang are not yet captured. Oliver says that an ex-convict put up the job and led the party. Their intention was to run the train off the track and then rob the passengers and plunder the train. Detectives are on the track of the other scoundrels. All the parties live at or near Richland, Mo.

MAGIC
CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine, I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are what they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May, John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 20th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I commenced I was sick four years and weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise, so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the worst form. I tried it of no more but many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One doctor I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression there seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkinsvurg, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

THE TROOPS REMOVED.

The threatening weather on Thursday morning did not deter the military from turning out with full ranks to participate in the "Election Day" display at Concord. The Cavalry were on hand at four o'clock to oversee the embarking of their horses on the cars, which was completed in safety before the arrival of the Infantry and Artillery companies at the depot, and there was no delay, all being in readiness to start at the time previously set, six o'clock. The Cavalry, Capt. Elbridge G. Peirce, Jr., went up with forty-eight horses, all but three uniforms being filled. The Heavy Artillery, Capt. D. J. Vaughan, were accompanied by the Portsmouth Cornet Band, and the Light Artillery, Lieut. Wm. O. Sides commanding, were accompanied by the Newmarket Cornet Band. The Newmarket Band on this occasion appeared for the first time in public in their new uniform, which is a very handsome one of dark gray trimmed with black and gold lace, red epaulettes with gold fringe, caps trimmed with the same, and white plumes tipped with red. The City Guards, Lieut. Ford commanding, were up to their usual standard and were first of the three companies of foot soldiers to appear at the depot, receiving the others as they arrived with a military salute. Portsmouth added as much to the military display at Concord as any city in the State. A large number of citizens, and many ladies, went up in the train with the troops, others following in the train leaving here at eight o'clock.

THE COMMERCIAL HOUSE

On Vaughan street—formerly the American House—after being idle for several months subsequent to the extensive alterations and improvements made in it last Fall, was opened to the public on Wednesday evening, a large number of citizens accepting the invitation of the proprietor, Mr. James W. Goodwin, to inspect the building and partake of a choice supper. Those who were familiar with the arrangements and accommodations of the old house would not recognize it now—although the old house was not a bad one—so extensive have been the improvements made. The lower floor is divided up into office, sample room for commercial travellers, sitting room, ladies' parlor, dining room (with seating accommodations for forty persons,) and bar-room. The ladies' parlor is very handsomely furnished with black walnut furniture and English tapestry carpets, with handsome pictures tastefully arranged on the walls. On the upper floors are twenty sleeping rooms, all furnished with spring beds, gas, etc., the electric annunciator running all over the house; and in all the arrangements care has been taken to provide as far as possible for the comfort and convenience of guests. Mr. Goodwin has with him as clerk Mr. Herbert W. Nowell, formerly clerk at the Kearsarge House—an assurance that guests will always meet with courteous attention instead of the "grand bounce" when business or inclination takes them to the office. The hotel is really a very fine one, and most conveniently situated within a few minutes walk of Market square and the railroad stations; the furniture and fittings are all new, and the charges moderate; and we can see no reason why the house should not be patronized to the extent of its capacity. The landlord proposes, whether he receives a liberal patronage or not, to deserve it by keeping his hotel as it should be kept.

JOTTINGS.

Carpenter Daniel Jones, U. S. N., died at his home in Kittery on the 5th inst. Mr. Jones was one of the oldest carpenters in the service, having been appointed Dec. 9th, 1847; of the 29 years and 6 months he spent in the service, he was 11 years and 6 mos. at sea, 6 years and 9 mos. on shore or other duty, and unemployed 11 years and 3 months; his last cruise ended in February, 1865. He was placed on the retired list some years since on account of incapacity induced by long and faithful service. He is to be buried this afternoon at two o'clock, with military and Masonic honors, at Kittery, the place of his birth and death.

The Brewers' Convention met at Milwaukee, Wis., on the 6th inst. Hon Frank Jones of this city was there, and was one of three brewers who were chosen Honorary Presidents of the Convention. There were 213 delegates present.

Some four hundred children attended the June festival of the Band of Hope in Franklin Hall on Wednesday afternoon, and a general good time was enjoyed.

The canker worms are more than usually numerous and destructive this year, not only in this city but all over the Eastern States, and any easily applied and effective method of checking their ravages must be of great value. It is well known that a very light jar will throw them down from a tree, but the pesky things will crawl right back again. Mr. George A. Mansfield, of Melrose Highlands, Mass., having easily and cheaply saved his trees when attacked by the worms, has sent all around to the papers postal cards giving his recipe, as follows: "Shake the worms from the tree. Bank the tree (steep) a few inches with dry, fine ashes, lime or plaster. The worms cannot pass it. Better than ink." Mr. Mansfield evidently believes in this remedy, as he has been at some trouble and expense in making it known; it is easily tried, certainly, and costs nothing.

The Heavy Artillery last year won well deserved plaudits at Concord for precision in marching and evolutions, and soldierly appearance, and we are informed that the good they impression created then was increased on Thursday. And as neatly performed an evolution as we ever saw was the wheel from fours to company front when they struck Congress street from Vaughan, on their return to this city in the evening. The company had the right of the second battalion of the first regiment, in the column at Concord. All the "bold soger boys" arrived back in good condition at about eight o'clock in the evening, and marched to Market square and dismissed shortly before nine.

The Scientific American has this comforting intelligence for smokers: "The effects of tobacco smoking are discoloring of the teeth by carbon, excitement of the salivary glands by the ammonia, headache and lassitude from the carbonic acid, disease of the heart from the carbonic oxide, nausea from the bitter extract, and a tainting of the breath by the volatile empyreumatic substance. The system may become used to these things, yet is made liable to consumption, nervous exhaustion, paralysis, and other ailments."

Daniel Sullivan, a thirteen-year-old boy, attempted to cross the railroad track in front of a train, Wednesday evening, but fell and had the calf of his left leg badly crushed by a wheel. No bones were broken.

Until quite recently we were under the impression that canker worms confined their attention to apple trees, but we notice that they are engaged in ruining many of the fine elms about the city. The noble trees on the Raynes estate have been attacked by them, and now present a pitiful appearance. In another paragraph is given what is claimed to be an effective remedy for the canker worm pest, but we do not see how it could be put in practice in the case of such large trees, for Goliath of Gath would have a tough job at shaking the worms off those big elms.

The "International" Boat Race.

The boat-race on the Kennebecassis river, near St. John, N. B., on the 6th inst., between Plaisted of Philadelphia and Ross of Portland, N. B., resulted in a very easy victory for Ross. Plaisted won the toss and took the outside position. A prompt start was made. Plaisted took the first water and got ahead, striking the water viciously when ahead, settling down to thirty-three strokes a minute, using all his force. Ross rowed coolly at thirty-two strokes a minute. Plaisted crossed into Ross' water and jockeyed him, his movements being discovered from the Judges' boat. This jockying continued for three-quarters of a mile, Plaisted rowing his best, while Ross made no exertion. At three-quarters of a mile Ross made a spurt and steered away to get a clear course. Then Plaisted again crossed over and got into Ross' way, when a foul occurred, both boats stopped and the judge at once declared Ross the winner of the race, Plaisted being blamed for the foul. Not knowing this the carsmen again started off fairly, Ross rowing easily and going right ahead, and Plaisted following in a hopeless and desperate stern chase. Ross kept two or three lengths ahead without exertion, and reached the finishing point in 27.07 3-4. Plaisted was two lengths behind. Ross was quite fresh, Plaisted showing signs of exhaustion. The latter claimed a foul, but it was not allowed.

News and Notes.

A tornado near Easton, Pa., Tuesdry night, did considerable damage. It killed G. Bruser, a farmer; Hattie Williams, a little girl; and a tramp.

Mrs. Gov. Van Zandt of Rhode Island is a daughter of the late Albert G. Green, who wrote that excessively picturesque chant "Old Grimes is Dead." Mrs. Van Zandt is known for her zeal in charitable projects.

As to the results of Miss Neilson's dramatic tour of the country, Mr. Max Strakosch, her manager, says: "Miss Neilson has made her greatest success this season. For 140 performances I have paid her $70,000 as her share and $3000 she got for benefits. I never turned over so much money so willingly, for I never made so much myself so easily and so pleasantly. Miss Neilson is, to my mind, at once a gold mine and a beautiful star."

An Italian corvette, with two hundred men aboard, came to grief in the Dardanelles by striking a torpedo. No further particulars.

The Summer Holiday Number of Wide Awake will open with a delightful story by Cicely Morney Marston, the sister of the English poet, Philip Bourke Marston.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 151.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

In the main room in Phillips Academy at Exeter is a fine collection of portraits, obtained chiefly, if not altogether, by Hon. B. F. Prescott of Epping, the present Governor of the State. His preparatory course for college was there commenced in 1850.

Directly behind the teacher's desk, which is midway on the north side of the room, is a portrait of John Phillips, LL. D., the founder of the Academy. It is life size, in a sitting posture. The dress is as in the time in which he lived, breeches, light colored stockings, up to his knees, buckles on the knees and shoes.

We find those of teachers in the Academy next. Benjamin Abbot, LL. D., Principal and teacher fifty years, ending in 1838. This is at the east end. Gideon L. Soule, long a teacher, and after Dr. Abbot's retirement, Principal, is nearly opposite at the west end. He is still living. Of others who taught in the institution are those of Daniel Dana, D. D., and Professor Joseph G. Hoyt.

Now we will mention portraits of some who were students, who rose to great distinction: Gov. Edward Everett, Hon. Lewis Cass, Hon. Daniel Webster and Hon. John P. Hale. There are also portraits of Gov. Josiah Bartlett and Gov. Jeremiah Smith. One of Charles Burroughs, D. D., one of Hon. John Kelly and Hon. Amos Tuck. Last, but not least, one of Mr. Bancroft, author of the most extensive History of the United States ever published.

We have only noticed a portion. The whole number is about twenty-five, we think. It is a fine show. Literary persons, statesmen and others delight to spend a little time there.

Better Than Killing Them.

Mr. Pliny Jewell, of Hartford, Conn., has a great deal of satisfaction every evening in feeding the crowd of goldfish which swarm in the lake on his premises. The fish have learned to look for his daily visits. He first places a quantity of crackers in the water near the edge of the lake. The fish will not touch these, as they are for the birds, who come flying down in flocks to get their evening meal. Then Mr. Jewell goes to the other side of the lake, and ringing a small bell, the water is seen to bubble and boil, as it were, with the fishes who come hastily to the edge and grab at the bits of cracker and bread thrown into the water for them. Even the frogs and the turtles come up for their share, and so tame have some of the frogs become that they will come out of the water and hop to Mr. Jewell's feet to pick up the crumbs that are dropped. The turtles eat ravenously and do not show the slightest sign of fear. One and all, birds, frogs, fish and turtles, seem to heartily enjoy their evening meal. In some parts of the city flocks of pigeons have also been tamed and know the whistle of those who feed them, and come sweeping down without fear to eat the bits of bread and crumbs provided for them.

—We see by a fashion exchange that light dolmans will be very fashionable this spring. There is one style to which the young lady takes most, and that is the very light doll-man, who parts his hair in the middle and breathes sweetly through a bronze mustache.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St. Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Bell, Woodbury, others, with a full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them—may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

Buffalo Bill as a Justice.

A good story is told of how Buffalo Bill performed the ceremony of marriage while he was justice of the peace. It was his first attempt, and the applicants were of the true Western type. They called upon Cody in the log cabin where he held his justice office. Bill had a book of forms, which he took down and studied attentively to get some idea of how he should tie the knot. There were forms for nearly every transaction of life, but he failed to find what he was looking for, and finally slammed the book down and observed to the parties:

"You two fellers join hands;" and the "two fellers" did so.

Then he said to the groom: "Are you willing to take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife, to love her, honor her and obey her?"

"You bet your butes," was the response of the bashful hair-lifter.

"And you, miss, are you willing to take this here man to be your wedded husband, to love him, honor him and support him?"

She giggled, and nodded in the affirmative; but this didn't suit Bill, who said: "See here, miss, we've got to have this on the dead square, and we can't marry folks by halves in this country. We are bound to go the whole hog. If you want this here man for a husband you must speak out and say so, as though you meant it sure. I'll ask you again. Will you take this here man to be your lawful wedded husband, to love him, honor him and support him?"

This time the lady responded, bravely, "Yes sir, I will."

This satisfied his honor, and he remarked: "That settles it."

"And now," added Bill, let's take another sip of tarantula juice, and drink to the happiness of the happy couple," which everybody with true Western unanimity proceeded to do.

"A Fascinating Work on an Enthralling Topic."
HE WILL COME;
BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.
This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL,
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
or the terrible diseases engendered by the humid irrying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and notknowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
—USE—
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 19, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but will bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may reuire it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be entitled to leave any offal, heads, feet, or other, of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, and for them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the City. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but will either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable matter, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 15. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, yard or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier of said notice having been given to him, or at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by section of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing adverse to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any premises occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom will be discharged or drained into either of said mills or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading into the same, or into any other place in such a manner as to cause any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other wholesome or offensive place, into either of said mills, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. Nor shall any person shall throw or suffer to be thrown on his land into either of said ponds, or upon any said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substance.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

COUSIN MARY ANN.

Eveleen Blake was a school-teacher.

Rather a laborious and ill-paid life it was for a girl of nineteen; but our little heroine knew she had her living to earn somehow. There wasn't an inkling of romance in her life, except what she had unconsciously absorbed out of yellow covered novels in the circulating library. Her two sisters were both married—Mrs. Simon Sykes and Mrs. John Smith—each of them looked out industriously for Number One.

"Eveleen has had an education," said Mrs. Sykes. "Let her take care of herself. Of course one wants to be sisterly, and all that sort of thing, but when dear Simon married me he did not intend to marry the whole family."

"Of course not," said Mrs. Smith. "She can't expect us to support her."

She was mending a pair of gloves one October afternoon, by the window, when Mrs. Simon Sykes walked in with a great rustling and smell of patchouli. Mrs. Simon Sykes—nee Blake—was tall, large and rosy. Eveleen was on the petite scale with large, limpid gray eyes, very little color, and straight brown hair, which shone like satin, in the level rays of the setting sun.

"Dear me," said Mrs. Sykes, "how good that teapot smells, and I'm tired out with my walk."

"Would you like a cup of tea?" said Eveleen.

"Well, I don't mind," said Mrs. Sykes, unpinning her shawl; "that is if you've a bun or a biscuit, or something to nibble with it. Tea, alone, always gives me the heartburn."

So Eveleen went industriously to work and brewed a cup of tea, and brought out a plate of rusks, which were to have made her own frugal evening meal.

"But I can eat a biscuit or two," thought self-denying little Eveleen, as she watched the biscuits disappear before Mrs. Simon Sykes' appetite.

"I've had such a turn," said Mrs. Sykes, as she held out her cup for a second replenishing.

"A turn?" asked Eveleen inquiringly.

"Yes," nodded Mrs. Sykes; "a visit from a poor relation. I dare say she will be here next, but I advise you to send her about her business, as I did."

"Who is it?" asked Eveleen, in surprise.

"It's Mary Ann Blake. Wants some thing to do. Expects me to take her in and give her a home until she can obtain a situation."

"There's the little hall bed-room that you don't use," hinted Eveleen, who had a sort of instinctive sympathy for the houseless and homeless.

"I want that for Mr. Sykes' relatives when they come to town," said Mrs. Sykes. "He's got a single brother with property, and a married sister, with no children, who is very well off indeed; and if I didn't want it, I don't propose to open a free asylum for every old maid that comes along."

"But what will she do?"

"Do! Why, do as other folks do, I suppose. Go to a lodging-house. There's plenty of them, I'm sure."

"But if she hasn't got any money?"

"Then she's no business here," said autocratic Mrs. Sykes. "Why didn't she stay where her friends could take care of her."

"Perhaps she hasn't any friends."

"Then she certainly must be an undeserving character," said Mrs. Sykes, shaking the crumbs down upon Eveleen's neatly swept carpet. "Oh, here's Selina Smith as true as the world."

Mrs. John Smith came fluttering in—a thin, sharp-featured little woman, with snapping black eyes, and a new Fall hat, all a-quiver with artificial asters.

"Oh!" said Mrs. Smith, "you're here, are you, Debby? How do, Eveleen? Well, since you're taking tea, I will have a cup. Heard the news?" as she sat herself down.

"About Mary Ann Blake? Yes, of course," answered Mrs. Sykes, with a toss of the head. "She's been to see us; but I sent her about her business."

"Well, she certainly can't expect us to provide for her," said Mrs. Smith, beginning to crumble up the reserve of biscuits that Eveleen had brought out with a sigh. "Smith's salary ain't large, and I've a good-sized family of my own. I told her pretty plainly that as far as I was concerned, she needn't expect anything. I do hate these genteel beggars! And if she should come here, Eveleen, I hope you will give her the cold shoulder. Hush! There's a knock now. If it should be her!"

"It's a good thing we're here to advise her," said Mrs. Sykes, as Eveleen went to the door. "Eveleen is so unsuspecting! Anybody could impose upon her."

"Yes, to be sure," nodded Mrs. Smith, complacently. "And—but dear me, it is Mary Ann!"

Both sisters nodded frigidly at the approach of a tall, nervous-looking female, in poor black, followed by Eveleen, who drew out the softest easy-chair for her accommodation, and gently untied her wispy bonnet-strings.

"Do sit down," said Eveleen; "I am sure you are tired. Let me give you a cup of tea at once."

"Yes," said Mary Ann Blake, looking apprehensively from Mrs. Simon Sykes to Mrs. John Smith," I am tired. I've been walking a good way."

"I hope you got a situation?" said Mrs. Smith, icily.

But Mary Ann Blake shook her head.

"It was very foolish of you coming here at all, wasting your money on an expensive journey," said Mrs. Sykes. "Why couldn't you go to Aunt Pamela?"

[Now Aunt Pamela was the rich old aunt who so systematically ignored her nieces and kept her money in bonds instead of investing it in Mr. Sykes' wholesale grocery, or Mr. Smith's insurance company.]

"I did," said Mary Ann, dejectedly. "But she declined to assist me."

"Stingy old harridan!" said Mrs. Sykes, with energy.

"She has a right to do as she pleases with her own, I suppose," said Eveleen, who was making some fresh tea for the pale guest, and cutting thin slices.

"No, she hasn't," said Mrs. Smith. "People get so miserly."

"Sykes thinks we might some day clap her into a lunatic asylum, and put the property into the hands of trustees, for the use of her relatives," said Mrs. Sykes.

"I don't know about that," said Mary Ann Blake. "I only know that she wouldn't give me anything. And I do not know what to do. You are my cousins. Perhaps—"

"Oh, indeed, we can't do anything for you," said Mrs. Sykes, becoming absolutely Arctic in her demeanor, while Mrs. Smith drew herself up and set her thin lips together like a thread of carmine. "Better get back as fast as you can," added Mrs. Sykes.

"By all means," said Mrs. Smith, with a toss of the artificial asters. "And to tell that old lady that she's a deal better able to provide for you than we are."

"No," said Eveleen, gently. "Cousin Mary Ann shall stay with me. There's plenty of room on my little iron bedstead for two, and I can go out with her, looking for a situation, after school hours."

"Eveleen, you're crazy?" said Mrs. Simon Sykes, uplifting both her hands.

"You're a fool!" politely added Mrs. John Smith.

But the stranger's lips quivered.

"God bless you, child!" said she, rising up, and putting aside the veil of worn lace that drooped on her face. "And now, girls, I may as well tell you that I am your Aunt Pamela."

"You, Aunt Pamela?" shrieked Mrs. Sykes.

"Yes, I."

"But—you are rich!"

"People say so."

"Then," gasped Mrs. Smith, "why do you come here in the guise of a beggar?"

"To try the hearts and natures of my three nieces," said Aunt Pamela, drily. "Deborah calls me an old harridan; Louisa refuses to help me by so much as a penny; but little Eveleen is willing to share her scanty all with me. What money the old woman has to leave shall be Eveleen Blake's.

Mrs. Simon Sykes and Mrs. John Smith looked at each other in dismay, but it was too late to apologize now. And little Eveleen was an heiress, after all.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1877.

News and Notes.

Barque Emily Smith has been wrecked on Kangaroo Island, off the coast of Australia, and thirty-eight lives were lost.

The town authorities at Windsor Locks, Conn., having recently offered a reward of one dollar each for dead dogs, a fine animal of the Newfoundland species, that had but lately saved two children from drowning, was one of the first victims.

Brig Mary A. Chase, of Portland, Me., previously reported abandoned, was towed into Bonsco, Bay of Honduras, December 6th, by twenty men from the island, and pumped out. By order of the Governor, the brig was sold at public auction, bringing $900, and the men who brought the wreck in were awarded by the American Consul $14 to be divided among the twenty, being seventy cents each!

George William Curtis has declined the mission to England, and James Russell Lowell the mission to Austria.

The wife of Dr. George E. Woodbury, a physician of Methuen, Mass., gave birth Wednesday night to four children, three girls and a boy. Two girls and the boy died after living about three hours.

G. A. Lensey of Harvard, Mass., a soldier of the rebellion, attempted suicide Tuesday by discharging a revolver at his head. The bullet flattened on the skull and caused little injury. That's the kind of a skull for a soldier to wear.

Painters, Frescoers and Upholsterers have done good service the past three months and the American House, Boston, now looks brighter and neater than ever. This is saying a great deal.

Two new oil wells in Bullion district, Penn., yield each 1000 barrels of oil daily.

A boy two and a half years old killed a boy three years old in Charlestown, Mass., on Thursday, by smashing in his head with a stone.

Political.

The blackened, scarred and mutilated remains of Miss Cornelia Chisolm, the heroine who laid down her life in efforts to shield her father from the fury of a mob, may well provoke a cry for vengeance, but we have demanded justice only, that the law should be enforced, that guilty parties should be arrested, tried and, after conviction, punished. Judge Chisolm, daughter and son, and the brave Scotchman, McClellan, were sent to untimely graves,—their voices are silenced forever. The murderous work was perpetrated by a mob, and its fiendishness can never be obscured by the stale cry of "bloody shirt." * * * Thank God! the Northern press are beginning to realize something of the true condition of affairs, and God grant that the enlightment may go on until the history of Southern democracy shall be known, and held up to the execration of mankind.—Jackson, (Miss.) Times.

The Boston Post has already commenced to again carry Maine for the democracy. Its Bangor correspondent writes that "owing to pressing business engagements" the candidate for Governor who was run down last year will not run again, but that Gen. Samuel J. Anderson of Portland will probably get the nomination, and "prove a candidate to whose support the people of Maine would rally with an enthusiasm which would give assurance of a glorious triumph." If the democrats had won all the "glorious triumphs" the Post gave them "assurance of" for the last ten years, the republicans would not have carried a single State.

It is now stated that Peter B. Sweeny has compromised his suits and will be allowed to go unpunished on the payment of $400,000. Tweed's release on a compromise of $2,000,000, is also soon expected. It is a great shame and disgrace that the leaders of the Tammany ring should be permitted to compound their felony. It is true Tweed has been already severely punished for his misdeeds, but his case was exceptional and the country needs just the example which he would furnish, if compelled to serve out a life sentence. Sweeney is generally credited with providing the brains for the ring, and is guiltier, because he had greater abilities. If he can not be convicted, then New York law is a mockery of justice. That misgoverned city needs an organization of the nature of a vigilance committee to insist on the summary punishment of rogues.—Worcester Gazette.

Narrow Escape.

Two of the crew of the schooner Centennial of Gloucester, recently arrived from a Grand Bank trip, Peter Scanlan and George Stickling, were capsized in a dory on the fishing grounds on the 21st ult., and had a narrow escape from a watery grave. They had completed the hauling of their trawls and were ready to return to the vessel, when a sea boarded and sunk the dory, but she soon capsized and came up again, and the men succeeded in getting hold of her, Scanlan at the bow and Stickling at the stern. In going over the hook of one of the trawls caught in the leg of Stickling, and he was compelled to bear his own weight and that of the trawl, which he was enabled to do by fortunately securing a foothold in the stern becket of the dory. But the combined weight of man and line kept the unfortunate man nearly under water the greater part of the time, and his position was one of extreme discomfort and peril. Scanlan was more fortunately situated, having no encumbrance except his clothing. After being thus exposed for about a quarter of an hour they were discovered by the men in another dory, who were returning to the vessel, who at once went to their rescue. Stickling was nearly exhausted, and in pulling him in the hook was broken off in his leg, and on reaching the vessel it was found necessary to cut it out, making an ugly wound from which he has not yet fully recovered.—Cape Ann Advertiser.

"The Conflict of Ages."

Men differ on nearly every issue. There have always been opposite parties in politics and religion, though the measures fought over one day may be universally adopted at another, and those sacrificed regarded as heroes and martyrs. Medicine has also been subject to revolutionary disturbances. When Drs. Harvey and Jenner announced their discoveries, they were held in contempt and ridicule by an incredulous and ignorant public, yet to-day they are received and honored by all as benefactors. When Dr. Pierce announced his Discovery, many scoured to doubt, and were skeptical concerning all medicines and doctors, but proof of merit has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the Golden Medical Discovery is the standard remedy in curing the most obstinate diseases of the liver and blood, having almost entirely superseded the old-time sarsaparillas by reason of its superior merits.

NORWICH, Chenango Co., N. Y., Nov. 3d, 1876.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.:

I was afflicted with a scrofulous affection on one of my legs. It was very troublesome for over two years, so much so that I could not wear a boot, and I had to keep my leg bandaged. It resulted in a raw sore. It got so bad that it became a general talk that I would have to undergo amputation of the limb. One physician told me he never saw such a sore cured. I commenced taking your Golden Medical Discovery together with your Pellets as directed on the bottles, and when I had consumed six bottles of Discovery, my leg was entirely well, and has remained so ever since,—a period of over two years,—and I would not swap it for fifty wooden legs.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrotula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 29, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room (not two rears, as I could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $1.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days.. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and fifty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at at, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Individual him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yea, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, NOV. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been travelling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that would cure me. Hence for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and oblige Mrs. Laugh Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS they have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as these pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who come to me. Please send me four packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

CITY AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, a message was received from the Common Council to the effect that that body had concurred in the Aldermen's amendments to the appropriation bill with the exception of the amendment substituting $300 in place of $500 for sprinkling streets. The Board voted to recede from said amendment.

A message from the Common Council announced that the Council had accepted in concurrence the report of the joint committee on application of B. F. Webster for purchase of part of the city farm.

Petition of Charles W. Gardner and others for drainage of waste water around public wells was accepted and referred to the committee on streets with power.

Petition of Samuel Adams and others to utilize the spring near Richards avenue for drinking and other purposes, was referred to the committee on streets to report.

Petition of George E. Hodgdon and others for the construction of urinals, was received, and the Board voted that the petitioners have leave to withdraw.

Application for settees in Plains schoolhouse was referred to committee on schoolhouses with power.

Petition of George W. Plumer for leave to erect two hitching posts on Congress street, was referred to committee on streets with power.

Voted, that the pay for labor on highways under the surveyors be $1.50 per day for men, $1.25 for horses and $2 for oxen.

Subject of removing stagnant water on land near reservoir on Madison street, was referred to committee on streets with power.

Voted, that in making the assessment of taxes the present year, five per cent. be added to the amount previously voted to be raised by taxation, to answer any abatements that may be made, and that the same be paid into the city treasury for the use of the city; and that the State, county, school, highway and city taxes be included in one assessment, agreeably to the laws of the State.

Voted, that the subject of sprinkling streets be referred to the Mayor with power.

Sent up, the following joint vote passed by the Common Council in concurrence:

"Voted, by the City Councils of the City of Portsmouth: That the inhabitants of this city and non-residents who shall pay to the collector their taxes for the year 1877 within thirty days next after the assessors shall have committed to him, the said collector, the lists of assessments of taxes for this city, shall be entitled to a discount of six per cent. on the amount of their said taxes; within sixty days after the time aforesaid, shall be entitled to a discount of four per cent. on the amounts of their said taxes; provided, that no discount shall be allowed to any person until the whole tax of such person for the year is paid.

Voted, further, that the collector of taxes shall, four months after he shall have received the lists of assessments of taxes from the assessors, issue notice to all persons whose taxes then remain unpaid, stating the amount of the same, and that if the same shall not be paid, with twenty cents for such notice, within fourteen days thereafter, the collector shall distrain for the same."

Resignation of E. Lowd as lamp-lighter in Ward Four was presented, and the subject was referred to the committee on gaslights with power.

Remonstrance of A. T. Goodrich and others against passage of ordinance licensing hacks, job wagons, etc., was accepted.

The committee on bills on second reading, to whom was referred the bill entitled "An ordinance licensing hacks," etc., reported the same without recommendation. The bill was laid on the table.

Report of committee on accounts was presented and the bills were ordered to be paid.

The Board signed the order for the widening and straightening of Jackson Hill street, and the committee on streets were given power to have the work done.

Adjourned for two weeks.

JOTTINGS.

Sheriff Kent will sell at auction to-day, Saturday, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the foot of Hunking street, on an attachment against Alfred Hook in favor of Thomas S. Gay et als., the schooner "Emma," as she lies. Terms cash. The "Emma" was built at Hampton in 1876, is 29.6 feet long, 10 feet beam and 4.5 feet depth, and measures 7.58 tons.

At the North church, Sunday, the pastor, Rev. James W. Hubbell, will preach in the morning the fifth sermon in the series upon the Fruits of the Spirit; subject, "Gentleness." In the afternoon, upon "A word to the weary."

The Bow Mission Service, Sabbath afternoon, promises to be very interesting. This will be the last service until September. Subject of the service, "Praise and Promise." Friends are cordially invited. Service at 4:15.

Mr. Stephen W. Clark, President of the Portsmouth Temperance Mutual Relief Association, will speak at Mechanics' Hall tomorrow (Sunday) evening at eight o'clock before the Reform Club. A half-hour's Praise Service will precede the address. Collection to defray expenses.

Steamer "Appledore" will leave her wharf at the North end this afternoon on a trip down the harbor, out around the Shoals and return. Capt. Robinson and Engineer Gerlin would be pleased to have their friends accompany them, on this their first trip of the season. The steamer will leave the wharf at two o'clock.

A man calling himself Thomas Shepard, and claiming to be a Unitarian, has been visiting members of that denomination in Providence, R. I., and soliciting funds to enable him to reach this city. He is set down as a first-class fraud.

Smuty Nose Island, the fishing port of the Isles of Shoals, has recently been greatly improved by Laighton Brothers, the owners, and Mr. Samuel D. Caswell, the lessee, by the rebuilding of the wharf, the erection of new buildings and the repairing of the old ones. Mr. Caswell carries on the fishing business there, and during the past season has bought large quantities of fish to cure for the market, paying a slightly higher price than other large purchasers in this vicinity. In less than a fortnight over 50,000 lbs. of fish were landed there from small boats. An unusually large quantity of lobsters has been caught in that vicinity this season, and the fishermen report them still plentiful.

Officer John Turner, on Thursday night, at about eleven o'clock arrested Michael Cunningham, a young man formerly employed in one of the breweries, while attempting to break into a freight car standing on the line of the Eastern Railroad near the foot of Dover street. The road has for some little time been losing freight from their cars while they have been standing near this locality, in transit, and Station Agent Barrett placed the matter in the hands of an officer, this arrest being one of the results.—and Mr. Turner is entitled to much credit for his successful efforts. Cunningham was brought before Judge Batchelder Friday forenoon, Judge Page prosecuting; officer Turner, Sheriff Kent and Mr. H. F. Dixon testified for the State; Cunningham made a lame defence, and was held to answer at the October term of the Supreme Court, in the sum of $600, failing to procure bonds for which he was "jugged."

Referring to the inauguration day display in concord, the Manchester Mirror says: "Manchester and Portsmouth divided between them the honors of the procession. Their Heavy Artillery and our Battery attracted great attention, and the infantry companies were very fine." The Portsmouth Light Artillery paraded with full ranks, and their brilliant uniform attracted much attention; and their marching and wheeling, as well as that of the Portsmouth City Guards, was so far in advance of most of the other companies in line as to admit of no comparison. The Portsmouth Cavalry, being the only cavalry company in the procession, of course attracte dmarked notice,—as they would have done under any circumstances, from their proficiency in drill, their soldierly bearing, and the magnificent show of horse-flesh they gave.

THE FLAG'S CENTENNIAL.

On the 14th of June, 1777, while the armies under Generals Washington and Howe confronted each other in New Jersey, Congress

"Resolved, That the Flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

On Thursday, June 14th, the joint celebration arranged by the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery Association and the Trustees of Langdon Park will take place at the Park. The exercises will be as follows:

At sunrise a flag of thirteen stars, nearly a century old, will be hoisted at the Park by Col. Marvin; and it is desired that all the flags in the city may be raised.

About 2 o'clock P. M. the Veteran Artillery Association, Capt. G. W. Towle, with Band, will form on Market Square, and march to the Park, the Portsmouth Light Battery, Capt. Wm. O. Sides, acting as escort, and probably other military companies joining.

The Governor and ex-Governors of the State, U. S. Government and Army and Navy officers, Mayor and other officials, speakers and distinguished guests on the occasion will follow in carriages, and probably some of the scholars of the public schools.

At the Park, at three o'clock, a Federal salute of thirteen guns will be fired, in honor of the "old flag" of one hundred years ago; to be followed by music by the Band; the singing of the Star Spangled Banner by a choir, in which all are invited to join, with Band accompaniment; and brief remarks by Hon. C. L. Woodbury, Hon. John Quincy Adams, Col. A. H. Hoyt, and other distinguished gentlemen from abroad and at home.

Rev. Mr. DeNormandie will read a poem written for the occasion by Albert Laighton.

The ceremonies and amusements around the Maypole will follow, and will consist of brief remarks by Messrs. Woodbury, Albee, Adams, DeNormandie and others, and a Floral dance on the green in which, as in all the exercises, all, old and young, but especially children, are invited to join. [Citizens willing to contribute bouquets, wreaths, or loose flowers for the occasion, will please send them to the Park on Wednesday forenoon, or leave them at the store of J. H. Foster.]

At six o'clock the Veterans with invited guests will dine at the Rockingham House.

The naval officers at this station, and the marine corps, will take part in the celebration. A salute will be fired at noon from the yard, and the "Enterprise" will be dressed in bunting fore and aft, in honor of the flag and the occasion.

SHIP "DANIEL MARCY" LOST.

A dispatch from London states that the ship Daniel Marcy, of Boston, Captain Bicknell, which sailed from Manila April 20th for New York, has been lost in Gasper Straits. The crew were all saved. No particulars are received. The Daniel Marcy was a fine ship of 1212 tons register, built in this city in 1863, and was owned by J. Henry Sears & Co., of Boston. She had on board a valuable cargo, the insurance on the cargo in Boston offices being about $120,000, on the vessel and freight money $55,000, making a total of $175,000.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

T. E. MOSELEY & Co., 469 Washington street, make a specialty of boys' and misses' boots, shoes and gaiters for dress and school wear, which they offer at moderate prices.

Such a combined effort upon upon the part of all its attaches is always made to please its guests, that the visitor to the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is pretty sure to return.

COCOA SHELLS, prepared by Walter Baker & Co. furnish an excellent substitute for tea and coffee, at half their cost, and are palatable, nutritious and healthful. All grocers sell Baker's Chocolates, which are the best in the market.

Adamson's Botanic Balsam will not make new lungs, but will prevent the disease from spreading throughout the whole substance of the lungs, thereby facilitating recovery. Price 35 cts. Samples free.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

The Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world. — *Pueblo Col. LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SEAVEY, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

GOV. PRESCOTT'S INAUGURAL.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives: Having been elected by the people of the State to the position of chief executive magistrate, I have taken the oaths required by the constitution and now enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office. Grateful to the people for this honorable expression of their confidence, and the honor conferred, and fully appreciating the responsibility that rests upon an executive of a State in the performance of the various duties connected with the position, and relying upon the aid of those of him who has shaped our course as a State and nation for a completed century, I assume them, and can only assure you and the people that they shall be performed to the best of my ability, looking always to the consideration of the good of people, and the advancement of the permanent material interests of the State.

In accordance with custom, I now present to you some suggestions upon matters which will require your action, and, in some instances, your careful consideration. And first, I will call your attention to our FINANCES.

The first duty of a State is to preserve its credit, manage with economy its affairs, promptly meet its obligations, and avoid extravagant expenditures. There are no demands of an extraordinary nature upon the treasury; but those that are absolutely necessary will, without doubt, be provided for by your action.

The public will always regard the number of finances with a greater degree of interest than most topics presented for your consideration, because it directly affects all classes and individuals in the community, and they will be disposed to look at the legislative department of the government, which is charged with the duty of determining the amount necessary to be raised by taxation for the support of the State government, and the executive officers charged with the disbursement of the fund, as a strict accountability for the faithful discharge of their respective duties. The report of your auditor of accounts will show the condition of the treasury as presented at the session, will exhibit in detail the financial transactions of the year.

The net indebtedness of the State on the first day of June, 1877, was $3,574,290.87, a reduction of $33,143.87 during the year. The reduction of the debt during the year just closed has been equal to the average of the last five years; but it must be borne in mind that the payments of the educational convention have been paid from the revenues of the past year, and will not have to be provided for during the present fiscal year. It has therefore been the policy of the legislature to raise by taxation a sum which, with the miscellaneous revenues of the State, would be sufficient to meet all the expenses of the government, pay the interest on the debt, and provide for the payment of a portion of the principal of the debt each year; and the several acts of bonds which have been issued in accordance with this policy.

The long-continued depression in nearly all the leading branches of industry, both within and beyond our borders, has had the effect materially to reduce the amount of revenue derived from miscellaneous sources, particularly from the railroad and railroad corporations, there being a reduction in that item alone of $46,122.74, as compared with the receipts from that source for the year ending the year 1872; and in comparing the past year with the year immediately preceding it, there is a reduction of $19,357.70, with a corresponding further reduction the present year. I find, from an examination of the report of the financial condition of the State issued, that the bonds of the State mature as follows: Bonds of 1869, as follows: $100,000, July 1, 1877; $110,000, July 1, 1878; $250,000, July 1, 1879; and $200,000 July 1, 1880. Now, if the revenue remains substantially the same, the $110,000 which matures in July, 1878, can be paid without any extra legislation; but the provision would be made, therefore, for the $250,000 which matures July 1, 1879, by a four years' action upon the amount contribution there which will be considered in the legislature in June, 1878.

We should not incur a debt any faster than it becomes due, for the State reserved no option whereby it could refund it before maturity. At this time, if we had that power, we could put our entire debt could be refunded at a five per cent rate of interest, and find rapid sale.

It is a source of satisfaction to know that, by prudent management and economy, we are slowly but surely paying our debt. The financial condition of the State is sound, and its credit at home and abroad is unquestioned. Our bonds command a high premium in the market, and are purchased by capitalists and all institutions that seek permanent investments. I think all the expenses liable to arise during the present fiscal year will be met, and the reduction of our debt to the amount that matures in July, 1878, made, by raising a state tax of four hundred thousand dollars. I recommend that amount as the State tax.

SAVINGS BANKS.

In passing from the subject of State finances we come to a subject equally important, and, one in which more than one-fourth of our entire population have a personal interest—the savings banks and institutions for savings. The number of these institutions, under the supervision of the State, is sixty-seven, with 98,653 depositors—an increase of 1,753 over last year. The amount of deposits which the State Bank Commissioner, for ten cent., is nearly $21,000,000. The increase in the deposits over the last year has been about $270,000, which is an evidence of the economy, thrift, and industry of our people, during a great depression in all kinds of business.

It is interesting to note the rapid and healthy growth of these institutions. Twenty-seven years ago there were twelve savings banks with 12,019 depositors, and $1,641,543.71 the amount of deposits. In 1860, ten years later, the number of banks was 26, the number of depositors 47,000, and the amount of deposits $4,860,034.86. In 1870 the number of banks was 45, the number of depositors 69,000, with $18,[illegible]. Now we have 67 banks with 98,653 depositors, and $20,963,047.27 deposits, on which a tax of one-half of one per cent is paid to the State treasury, and distributed back to the towns. I present these figures to show the wonderful increase in the accumulation of money, and the increase of property, because it has sometimes been said by those who live out of the State that if they did not see how the people of New Hampshire could thrive and keep pace with the rich States of the West, or in the more mild and milder latitudes of the Middle and Southern States.

The amount of tax paid by these institutions is now more than three-fourths of the entire amount of our State tax. If it had not been for these institutions, a large amount of this vast accumulation would never have been made, and the State would have realized but little from the tax. There was great reluctance in the legislature to establish, and there should be great prudence in protecting them, for they afford, as a general rule, a safe depository for the savings of the laboring men, and pay a fair rate of interest to the depositors. You will be asked to reduce the rate of taxation, which is now one-half of one per cent, and, in the consideration of this matter, you will carefully compare the rate of taxation upon property of other kinds of property, and see that the burden of taxation falls on all kinds of property alike, and on all classes of our community as evenly as it can be adjusted.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Since the meeting of the last legislature, an important convention has been held, the amendments of 1875 directed the selectmen, in the several towns and wards, to insert the following question in the warrants for the annual election to be held in March, 1876: "Is it expedient that a convention be called to revise the Constitution?" The question was decided by a strong vote in the affirmative. By an act of the legislature of 1876, provisions were made for the election of delegates to the number of a constitutional convention. On the 7th of November last, delegates were chosen, to the number of three hundred and seventy-six, composed of the most distinguished members of both political parties, and a large proportion of the ablest men in political opinions. This body of men assembled in this hall on the first Wednesday in December last, and organized with a spirit which, regardless both political parties, thus relieving the convention of all political jealousies, as its work was for the people, and not for parties. It was a deliberative body of action, in the short space of eleven days this convention proposed thirteen amendments to our present constitution. These amendments and propositions were, on the 12th of March last, submitted to the qualified voters for their approval or rejection. The action of the convention was endorsed by the people, and eleven of the thirteen amendments were adopted. This shows the high intelligence of the convention, and a credit to the intelligence of our voters.

His Excellency Governor Cheney, on the 16th day of April last, by public proclamation, announced the result to the people. Thus the beginning of the long-needed change in our fundamental law has been made, and the task of putting the amended constitution into operation devolves upon you.

Our present constitution, adopted in 1792, was prepared with great care and ability by some of the distinguished men who had the difficult work of framing it. A convention assembled in 1850 to revise it, but their work was rejected by the people. Only one unimportant amendment was carried and that was submitted at a second assembling of the convention. Thus, with one slight alteration, our fundamental law has remained unchanged for eighty-five years.

You gentlemen, are to fix the "time or times" when these amendments "shall take effect and be in force." The question of time, and the time, apart of economy, for which the second and tenth amendments were proposed and adopted, requires that these two shall take effect at once. The great and disproportionate public and private cost of the present judicial system of the courts in our courts has called forth a strong expression of public opinion. The adoption of the second and tenth amendments is a demand for a speedy and more expedit'ous mode of trying such cases. It is for you now to say how soon that demand shall be complied with. The existing referees are now employed for the speedy and economical trial of cases to which, in the second amendment, referees could not be applied to the small cases described in the second and tenth amendments as soon as those amendments are in force, and in accordance with legislation. The general sentiment of the State, so far as I have any knowledge of it, is decidedly in favor of the trial of small cases by referees, whose decision of questions of fact shall be final. The expediency of the trial of small cases by referees is by the last legislature. Whether that, or any other referee law, will answer the expectations of the people, may be certainly known at the next session. Whether they will be or whether they ought to be satisfied until a referee law is fairly and right tried is a question to be duly considered. There may be no urgent necessity that any of the constitutional amendments, except the second and tenth, should take effect at once. But all of them, except the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and ninth, can go into operation immediately, as well as at any other time. Being adopted as a part of the fundamental law, they may all appropriately take effect forthwith, except those as to which a postponement is actually necessary, or practically convenient. The third, fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth amendments will, at some time, require legislation on several subjects connected with elections. "The general court, in enacting laws for the assessment shall take effect, shall equitably apportion representation" in certain cases. Certain towns are to be classed; the senatorial districts are to be reorganized; the terms of various officers are to be determined. In a considerable number of particulars, the law of elections will need revising, and this will adapt it to the amended constitution. You will decide whether this work shall be done now, or be postponed till next year.

THE MILITIA.

When our constitution and bill of rights were adopted in 1792, our fathers, who had had a short time previous passed through the struggle of the revolution, had learned to value and appreciate the military spirit, principles, and organization of the military arms of the State should become paralyzed, or be inferior in its efficiency. Hence they declared that "a well-regulated militia is the proper, natural, and sure defense of the State." This expression was not changed by the constitutional convention, of 1850 and 1851, and, we are now, in the interests that a well regulated militia is as proper now as at any period in the history of our history, and meets the approbation of the people.

The active militia of the State is now consolidated into one brigade, under the command of Gen. Joseph M. Clough. It is made up of the first and second regiments, the Amoskeag Veteran Guard, the troop of horse, the Governor's Mounth Light Artillery,—twenty-seven companies in all, numbering about 2,500 officers and men. The uniforms, as a whole, are in good condition, and would be fit for service in the field. The armory in Concord is in good order, and all that they should be, and would prove inefficient in actual service. They are much inferior to those that are in the armories of other States and in the army of the United States, being the old "Springfield" muskets of the pattern of 1861. I am prepared to be able to say that there is a prospect of soon improving them. The legislature of 1876 authorized the governor and council to sell the ponderous guns in the hands of the First Battery, which were unequal in bore size, and no two of which were alike, for the purpose of providing a portion guns used in the regular army, and to draw his warrant on the treasury for the sum. Governor Cheney, by a personal visit to the War Department at Washington, succeeded in getting permission to sell the old guns and receive allowance to draw the guns required, which has been done; and although we have not received a final statement from the War Department, the terms of exchange will not increase our indebtedness to the amount originally supposed, and have permitted to anticipate our annual allowance, and to draw breech-loading rifles of the latest and most improved pattern, for the battery, and expect to be soon able to place them in the hands of the companies.

The adjutant-general has succeeded in getting authority, which had heretofore been refused, to turn in the old muskets for breech-loading rifles, which were of no use to the State and of trifling value to sell. He has also recovered about forty military caps, of the old pattern, which, on record. On the whole, our State militia is in a much better condition than for many years; and it is my belief that if the general government should cease to be able to furnish the arms and equipments to the State has been obliged to refuse permission to form new companies in twenty different towns for which we have applications, for the $250,000 which matured July 1, 1878, it will be a four action upon the amended constitution there also will be a session of the legislature in June, 1878.

We should not incur a debt any faster than it becomes due, for the State reserved no option whereby it could refund it before maturity. At this time, if we had that power, we could put our entire debt could be refunded at a five per cent rate of interest, and find rapid sale.

The legislature of 1876 authorized the governor and council to sell the ponderous guns in the hands of the First Battery, which were unequal in bore size, and no two of which were alike, for the purpose of providing a portion guns used in the regular army, and to draw his warrant on the treasury for the sum. Governor Cheney, by a personal visit to the War Department at Washington, succeeded in getting permission to sell the old guns and receive allowance to draw the guns required, which has been done; and although we have not received a final statement from the War Department, the terms of exchange will not increase our indebtedness to the amount originally supposed, and have permitted to anticipate our annual allowance, and to draw breech-loading rifles of the latest and most improved pattern, for the battery, and expect to be soon able to place them in the hands of the companies.

The adjutant-general has succeeded in getting authority, which had heretofore been refused, to turn in the old muskets for breech-loading rifles, which were of no use to the State and of trifling value to sell. He has also recovered about forty military caps, of the old pattern, which, on record. On the whole, our State militia is in a much better condition than for many years; and it is my belief that if the general government should cease to be able to furnish the arms and equipments to the State has been obliged to refuse permission to form new companies in twenty different towns for which we have applications, for the $250,000 which matured July 1, 1878, it will be a four action upon the amended constitution there also will be a session of the legislature in June, 1878.

We should not incur a debt any faster than it becomes due, for the State reserved no option whereby it could refund it before maturity. At this time, if we had that power, we could put our entire debt could be refunded at a five per cent rate of interest, and find rapid sale.

It is a source of satisfaction to know that, by prudent management and economy, we are slowly but surely paying our debt. The financial condition of the State is sound, and its credit at home and abroad is unquestioned. Our bonds command a high premium in the market, and are purchased by capitalists and all institutions that seek permanent investments. I think all the expenses liable to arise during the present fiscal year will be met, and the reduction of our debt to the amount that matures in July, 1878, made, by raising a state tax of four hundred thousand dollars. I recommend that amount as the State tax.

SAVINGS BANKS.

In passing from the subject of State finances we come to a subject equally important, and, one in which more than one-fourth of our entire population have a personal interest—the savings banks and institutions for savings. The number of these institutions, under the supervision of the State, is sixty-seven, with 98,653 depositors—an increase of 1,753 over last year. The amount of deposits which the State Bank Commissioner, for ten cent., is nearly $21,000,000. The increase in the deposits over the last year has been about $270,000, which is an evidence of the economy, thrift, and industry of our people, during a great depression in all kinds of business.

It is interesting to note the rapid and healthy growth of these institutions. Twenty-seven years ago there were twelve savings banks with 12,019 depositors, and $1,641,543.71 the amount of deposits. In 1860, ten years later, the number of banks was 26, the number of depositors 47,000, and the amount of deposits $4,860,034.86. In 1870 the number of banks was 45, the number of depositors 69,000, with $18,[illegible]. Now we have 67 banks with 98,653 depositors, and $20,963,047.27 deposits, on which a tax of one-half of one per cent is paid to the State treasury, and distributed back to the towns. I present these figures to show the wonderful increase in the accumulation of money, and the increase of property, because it has sometimes been said by those who live out of the State that if they did not see how the people of New Hampshire could thrive and keep pace with the rich States of the West, or in the more mild and milder latitudes of the Middle and Southern States.

The amount of tax paid by these institutions is now more than three-fourths of the entire amount of our State tax. If it had not been for these institutions, a large amount of this vast accumulation would never have been made, and the State would have realized but little from the tax. There was great reluctance in the legislature to establish, and there should be great prudence in protecting them, for they afford, as a general rule, a safe depository for the savings of the laboring men, and pay a fair rate of interest to the depositors. You will be asked to reduce the rate of taxation, which is now one-half of one per cent, and, in the consideration of this matter, you will carefully compare the rate of taxation upon property of other kinds of property, and see that the burden of taxation falls on all kinds of property alike, and on all classes of our community as evenly as it can be adjusted.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Since the meeting of the last legislature, an important convention has been held, the amendments of 1875 directed the selectmen, in the several towns and wards, to insert the following question in the warrants for the annual election to be held in March, 1876: "Is it expedient that a convention be called to revise the Constitution?" The question was decided by a strong vote in the affirmative. By an act of the legislature of 1876, provisions were made for the election of delegates to the number of a constitutional convention. On the 7th of November last, delegates were chosen, to the number of three hundred and seventy-six, composed of the most distinguished members of both political parties, and a large proportion of the ablest men in political opinions. This body of men assembled in this hall on the first Wednesday in December last, and organized with a spirit which, regardless both political parties, thus relieving the convention of all political jealousies, as its work was for the people, and not for parties. It was a deliberative body of action, in the short space of eleven days this convention proposed thirteen amendments to our present constitution. These amendments and propositions were, on the 12th of March last, submitted to the qualified voters for their approval or rejection. The action of the convention was endorsed by the people, and eleven of the thirteen amendments were adopted. This shows the high intelligence of the convention, and a credit to the intelligence of our voters.

His Excellency Governor Cheney, on the 16th day of April last, by public proclamation, announced the result to the people. Thus the beginning of the long-needed change in our fundamental law has been made, and the task of putting the amended constitution into operation devolves upon you.

Our present constitution, adopted in 1792, was prepared with great care and ability by some of the distinguished men who had the difficult work of framing it. A convention assembled in 1850 to revise it, but their work was rejected by the people. Only one unimportant amendment was carried and that was submitted at a second assembling of the convention. Thus, with one slight alteration, our fundamental law has remained unchanged for eighty-five years.

You, gentlemen, are to fix the "time or times" when these amendments "shall take effect and be in force." The question of time, and the time, apart of economy, for which the second and tenth amendments were proposed and adopted, requires that these two shall take effect at once. The great and disproportionate public and private cost of the present judicial system of the courts in our courts has called forth a strong expression of public opinion. The adoption of the second and tenth amendments is a demand for a speedy and more expedit'ous mode of trying such cases. It is for you now to say how soon that demand shall be complied with. The existing referees are now employed for the speedy and economical trial of cases to which, in the second amendment, referees could not be applied to the small cases described in the second and tenth amendments as soon as those amendments are in force, and in accordance with legislation. The general sentiment of the State, so far as I have any knowledge of it, is decidedly in favor of the trial of small cases by referees whose decision of questions of fact shall be final. The expediency of the trial of small cases by referees is by the last legislature. Whether that, or any other referee law, will answer the expectations of the people, may be certainly known at the next session. Whether they will be or whether they ought to be satisfied until a referee law is fairly and right tried is a question to be duly considered. There may be no urgent necessity that any of the constitutional amendments, except the second and tenth, should take effect at once. But all of them, except the third, fourth, fifth, sixth, and ninth, can go into operation immediately, as well as at any other time. Being adopted as a part of the fundamental law, they may all appropriately take effect forthwith, except those as to which a postponement is actually necessary, or practically convenient. The third, fourth, fifth, sixth and ninth amendments will, at some time, require legislation on several subjects connected with elections. "The general court, in enacting such laws for the assessment shall take effect, shall equitably apportion representation" in certain cases. Certain towns are to be classed; the senatorial districts are to be reorganized; the terms of various officers are to be determined. In a considerable number of particulars, the law of elections will need revising, and this will adapt it to the amended constitution. You will decide whether this work shall be done now, or be postponed till next year.

THE MILITIA.

When our constitution and bill of rights were adopted in 1792, our fathers, who had had a short time previous passed through the struggle of the revolution, had learned to value and appreciate the military spirit, principles, and organization of the military arms of the State should become paralyzed, or be inferior in its efficiency. Hence they declared that "a well-regulated militia is the proper, natural, and sure defense of the State." This expression was not changed by the constitutional conventions, of 1850 and 1851, and, we are now, in the interests that a well regulated militia is as proper now as at any period in the history of our history, and meets the approbation of the people.

The active militia of the State is now consolidated into one brigade, under the command of Gen. Joseph M. Clough. It is made up of the first and second regiments, the Amoskeag Veteran Guard, the troop of horse, the Governor's Mounth Light Artillery,—twenty-seven companies in all, numbering about 2,500 officers and men. The uniforms, as a whole, are in good condition, and would be fit for service in the field. The armory in Concord is in good order, and all that they should be, and would prove inefficient in actual service. They are much inferior to those that are in the armories of other States and in the army of the United States, being the old "Springfield" muskets of the pattern of 1861. I am prepared to be able to say that there is a prospect of soon improving them. The legislature of 1876 authorized the governor and council to sell the ponderous guns in the hands of the First Battery, which were unequal in bore size, and no two of which were alike, for the purpose of providing a portion guns used in the regular army, and to draw his warrant on the treasury for the sum. Governor Cheney, by a personal visit to the War Department at Washington, succeeded in getting permission to sell the old guns and receive allowance to draw the guns required, which has been done; and although we have not received a final statement from the War Department, the terms of exchange will not increase our indebtedness to the amount originally supposed, and have permitted to anticipate our annual allowance, and to draw breech-loading rifles of the latest and most improved pattern, for the battery, and expect to be soon able to place them in the hands of the companies.

The adjutant-general has succeeded in getting authority, which had heretofore been refused, to turn in the old muskets for breech-loading rifles, which were of no use to the State and of trifling value to sell. He has also recovered about forty military caps, of the old pattern, which, on record. CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 16, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of m at at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any meat, meat heads, feet or offal, of any kind about their sta ls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within forty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier die, and such notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, he shall forfeit the sum named, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Turoat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

Do Not Face the Light.

Oculists employed in infirmaries for eye diseases have shown that the habit of some persons in facing a window from which the light falls directly in the eyes as well as on the work, injures their eyes in the end. The best way to work is with a side light, or, if the work needs strong illumination, so that it is necessary to have the working table before the window, the lower portion of the latter should be covered with a screen, so as to have a top light alone, which does not shine in the eyes when the head is slightly bent over and downwards towards the work. In the schools in Germany this matter has already been attended to and the rule is adopted to have all seats and tables so arranged that the pupils never face the windows, but only have side lights from the left; and as a light simultaneously thrown from two sides gives an interference of shadows, it has been strictly forbidden to build school rooms with windows on both sides; such illuminations having also proved injurious to the eyes of the pupils. We may add to this the advice not to place the lamp in front of you in the evening, but a little on one side, and not to neglect the use of a shade, so as to prevent the strong light shining in the eyes. This is especially to be considered at the present time, when kerosene lamps, with their intensely luminous flames, become more and more common.

—Medical Journal.

—Newfoundland's sealing voyage this year has been uncommonly prosperous. Vessels of the fleet have already returned with full cargoes, the cargo of one of them being 27,000 furs. Her voyage lasted only fifteen days. All of the vessels were propelled by steam, steamers having been found more profitable than sailing vessels. Only half as many men as were formerly employed are now needed on the fleet.

—On a recent evening a young man dashed into a neighbor's house to tell the unconscious family the chimney was on fire. He sprang into the dining-room, saw no one, opened a door that he supposed led into the sitting-room, but which didn't, and with a despairing shriek he went plunging down the cellar stairs, bringing up in a wild chaos of pickle jars, pie plates, mackerel kits, and a pork barrel and a tub of ancient turnips. He says the whole town may go burn now for all he cares, because to add to his troubles the man of the house, when he heard the uproar, came out to the door and shot five times down into the gloom of the cellar, shelling the woods for a burglar.

—The Duke of Richmond's Burials Bill, which offers to English Dissenters the privilege of a silent funeral service in the parish church-yards, passed to a second reading in the House of Lords, by a vote of 141 to 102. The smallness of the majority has greatly encouraged the opponents of the bill. Lord Granville moved an amendment, declaring that no measure will be satisfactory which does not enable the relatives or friends of a deceased person to bury in the parish yard with such Christian services as may to them seem appropriate. Both the archbishops, though they voted for the Government bill, declared that it would not, in their opinion, give satisfaction. Lord Granville told, in the course of his speech, this strange story: "Some years ago, Sir Morton Peto, a Baptist, purchased a large estate in Norfolk. In the interests of his Church of England tenants, he created and endowed, at the expense of many thousand pounds, a National church and church-yard. Soon after the consecration of the church-yard he lost a beloved daughter. He was obliged to carry his daughter's corpse many miles to a strange cemetery, because it was not allowable for him to bury her with the funeral rites of the Baptists in the grave-yard which he had given to the State Church."

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1877.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 6th.

As we approach the time for the meeting of Congress in October the impression becomes more and more prevalent that influences that have only been felt locally in distant States heretofore, are to have a good deal to do with the organization of the next House, and will make themselves felt in the Senate. The continued business depression and distress throughout the country have inclined the masses, apparently, to patiently listen to anyone having a remedy to propose. The tens of thousands of laboring men all over the land who have been waiting for renumerative employment ever since the panic of September, 1873, have grown impatient of party dictation, and there are a good many signs of a positive revolt in both the great parties, struggling for supremacy; and the politicians, seeing they are likely to be defied should they attempt to continue the lead in the old directions, are hastening to put themselves at the front of the mutinous columns, thus hoping to retain their places as leaders.

The greenback and silver questions are among those issues that are assuming larger proportions here every day; and the prime agitators of both are exulting in the hope that they are soon to find themselves the central figures of a great popular movement. Many a demagogue will have his short-lived afternoon as a great statesman, only to sink back into the obscurity from which he could never have emerged had it not been that his overwhelming possession of "cheek," aided by a wholly exceptional and fortuitous circumstance, has for once enabled him to get a hearing. The attitude of the President toward the matter of a remonetization of silver is variously reported, the authority of to-day being contradicted by that of to-morrow. The Star of last evening represents him as appproving Governor Cullom's veto of the bill to make silver coin legal tender in Illinois, he giving as a reason that he does not believe it wise or constitutional,—the Republican of this morning denying it, and asserting with equal positiveness that he condemned it. Thompson, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, a recognized authority among democrats, is confident that his party will carry Ohio this fall by endorsing the "Southern policy" and putting itself squarely on record in favor of more greenbacks and the double standard, and demanding a halt on the part of Secretary Sherman in his efforts to reduce the national debt,—almost $7,000,000, having been canceled during the month just past. From Connecticut comes, according to report, a cry of distress from a prominent democrat, saying in effect, that they are whipped unless the democracy turn square about and denounce the President in every thing he does, right or wrong; while from Pennsylvania comes the lugubrious assurance that if such a course is pursued, democracy may as well abandon its organization in that State. It is also becoming more and more apparent that Southern democrats, appreciating the advantage of their position, will insist upon the Southern Pacific Railroad and other vast jobs of internal improvements in that section, paid for out of the National Treasury, or at least their bonds guaranteed by the Government, as a test of democracy; and unless Mr. Randall consents, it is believed in many quarters that his chances for the Speakership are not worth considering. Butler's incessant, but good natured assaults upon the administration furnish a good deal of amusement to those looking on, while evidences of republican discontent are not wanting. KNOX.

What They Do For a Living.

The following statement of the trades and occupations of the members of the New Hampshire House of Representatives we take from the Concord Patriot:

"The agricultural pursuits lead off with 163 farmers as its representation; there are 35 merchants, 17 lawyers, 17 manufacturers, 9 lumber merchants, 7 machinists, 6 blacksmiths, 5 butchers, 5 druggists, 5 mechanics, 4 physicians, 4 shoe manufacturers, 4 woolen manufacturers, 3 accountants, 3 auctioneers, 3 clerks, 3 dentists, 3 insurance agents, 3 lumbermen, 3 shoemakers, 2 brick manufacturers, 2 brokers, 2 dry goods merchants, 2 grocers, 2 journalists, 2 retired merchants, 2 overseers, 2 paper manufacturers, 2 provision dealers, 2 shoe dealers, 2 tanners, 2 teachers, 2 tinsmiths, and 1 each of the following: Agent, architect, artisan, banker, bank cashier, bank president, belting manufacturer, bookseller, brewer, canvasser, carriage manufacturer, clergyman, corn dealer, college professor, contractor, cooper, copper-smith, gardener, glove manufacturer, grain merchant, hardware merchant, house builder, insurance commissioner, iron founder, jeweler, last manufacturer, mason, master carpenter, master car builder, merchant tailor, milk dealer, milliner, millwright, moulder, retired news dealer, operative painter, paper hanger, peg manufacturer, photographer, pilot, professor of music, sash maker, shoe cutter, superintendent, teamster, treasurer, wooden war manufacturer, wood turner and wool merchant, stationer, stone cutter, lecturer, retired manufacturer—86 different occupations in all."

The War.

Several Turkish officers have been condemned by court martial, and shot, for the loss of Ardahan. A despatch from Vienna states that Moukhtar Pasha has been cut off from Erzeroum and Kars. Erzeroum is unprovisioned and the garrison of Kars are on half rations.

A String of Wrecks.

The Secretary of the Navy has directed the United States steamer Lackawanna, now at Acapulco, to search for the rock near Tartan shoals, upon which the steamer San Francisco struck on the 16th of May. When the locality is ascertained it will be properly buoyed, and notice will be given of the exact position. The City of San Francirco is the second of the Pacific Mail Company's iron fleet that has gone to the bottom, the first being the City of Guatemala, companion to the City of Panama, lost on Watling's Island, on the Atlantic side, in 1874. But the City of San Francisco is only one in a long list of Pacific Mail vessels that have been unfortunate. The wreck record embraces sixteen steamers. The Tennessee, the first loss in the fleet, ran ashore in a fog. The Golden Gate was wrecked on the coast of Mexico, and 250 lives were lost. The America was burned in the harbor of Yokohama, and the Japan was burned at sea between Yokohama and Hongkong. The Herman was lost on the northeast coast of the Island of Nifon, Japan, and several hundred lives lost. The Ariel was wrecked very near the spot where the Herman sank, and the Winfield Scott was lost on Anacapa Island. The Golden City was wrecked on the coast of Lower California, and the Sacramento went ashore on a reef near the Island of San Geronimo. The list might be continued. The company has quite a large and fine fleet of steamships left, however, to be either burned up or sent to the bottom.

News and Notes.

The schooner Nimble has arrived at Halifax, N. S., from Cape Race, with the machinery, anchors and chains of the steamer George Washington, wrecked last winter. Her cargo was carried off by the sea. The divers discovered that her boiler had exploded. No trace was found of the steamer George Cromwell, supposed to have been wrecked at or near the same place shortly before the George Washington was lost.

A fire at Galveston, Texas, on Friday, destroyed twenty-six of the principal buildings, entailing a loss of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

At a Cabinet meeting on Friday, the Utah troubles were discussed at some length, and the opinions of United States Attorney Howard of that territory, in regard to the prosecutions for complicity in the Mountain Meadow massacre were fully considered. It was agreed that the United States authorities in the territory should proceed with firmness in these prosecutions and all offenders be brought to justice. Should the Mormons make any attempt to prevent the punishment of their leaders the Government will see that sufficient force was sent to the territory to enforce the decrees of the Court, but it is not believed that there will be any trouble. The Secretary of State read a communication, just received by him from our Minister at Mexico, to the effect that the Mexican authorities will co-operate with the United States authorities on the Rio Grande to prevent raids into Texas and break up cattle stealing in that section.

Jenny Lind is fifty-one years old, and her baby three months.

The Ocean Bluff House at Cape Arundel, Kennebunkport, Me., under the management of Job Jenness & Son, will open for the season, June 25th.

A farmer living in Kennebunkport informs us that he has a large tract of land planted with potatoes. Soon after the potatoes showed themselves above the ground he found them to be covered with the beetle or potato bug, and he began to fear his whole potato crop would be destroyed, but learning that hens would destroy the beetle, he turned his flock into the section planted to potatoes and they completely cleaned the piece of the bugs. He now makes a practice of feeding his hens in his potato patch, and the result is he keeps it free from the potato bug.—Biddeford Journal.

Why Farragut Went Aloft.

The following letter from Thurlow Weed to the New York Tribune explains itself:

"Sir: The press has frequently spoken of an incident in Admiral Farragut's life, which in the popular mind adds to his well-earned reputation for gallantry. In a well-known painting the Admiral appears lashed to the mast of his ship in the Mobile Bay fight. The question why the Admiral took that unusual position has often been asked, but as far as I know the true answer has not been given. I looked for it in the interesting letter to the Tribune of Mr. Page, the artist, who had favorable opportunities while the Admiral was sitting for his portrait, but was disappointed. I have now read attentively a charming letter from Mrs. Bartlett to the Portsmouth (N. H.) Weekly. Mrs. Bartlett, who met the Admiral at a ball given in his honor, availed herself, during a pleasant conversation, of an interval to inquire why he lashed himself to the mast. His answer, as given by that lady, is incomplete. He was lashed to the mast, as she relates, to protect himself from being precipitated to the deck by casualty. He had another reason for the lashing which she does not mention. He needed the free use of his hands, in one of which he held his speaking trumpet. But the Admiral's object or reason for going aloft instead of remaining upon his quarter deck is still a mystery. And yet that reason, as he gave it to me very much in the spirit of his conversation with Mrs. Bartlett, was a very simple and yet a very satisfactory one. In his former battles below New Orleans and up the Mississippi River, he had been seriously embarrassed, once by the condition of the atmosphere, and again in the vicinity of bluffs, when the smoke of his guns, instead of rising and leaving his view unobstructed, formed and hung about the decks. The high bluffs in the Bay of Mobile, with a heavy atmosphere as he was about to commence the engagement, induced an apprehension that his view might again be obstructed by the smoke of his own guns. He went aloft, therefore, to get above the smoke and to obtain a clear view of the enemy's batteries and of the position and movements of his own ships."

New Hampshire Items.

Benjamin Carr, a prominent citizen of Concord, fell out of a third-story window on Saturday, and was killed.

John Coleman, a carriage painter, fell from a third story window in Manchester on Saturday, and was fatally injured.

The City Savings Bank of Manchester is in trouble, owing to the depreciation of real estate representing about $70,000 of the banks assets. The Bank Commissioners and the Trustees have had an examination, and the deposits, amounting to $411,000, have been reduced 21 per cent. There are no symptoms of a run on the bank, which is found in a perfectly sound state after the $70,000 referred to is taken out; no blame whatever is attached to the officers, and it is hoped the depositors will be paid more than the 79 per cent. guaranteed. Deposits are being received as usual, new books being issued.

Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 21, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 7 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live. I have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I feel well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $5.50.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 8th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and twenty, but am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shall continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardships on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years' Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Individual Hills to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight years, and have not been able to travel, and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most obstinate that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if our pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

JOTTINGS.

True Osgood, Esq., of Concord, Past Grand Master of the Odd Fellows in this State, and in honor of whom Osgood Lodge, No. 48, of this city, was named, recently presented the lodge named with a Chaplain's regalia of elegant material and finish, for use in the meetings and public parades of the lodge. On Thursday evening last the Noble Grand of the lodge, Mr. Edward B. Prime, presented the regalia to the Chaplain (Rev. J. A. Goss) with a few appropriate words, which were pleasantly responded to by the latter, who is much beloved by his brethren of the Order. Mr. Osgood is a printer, which fact will, in a measure, account for his liberality, as well as for the vivaciousness for which he is noted.

The Concord Patriot man is very much struck with the immaculate vest of one of our Portsmouth representatives. In his list of old members present this year he mentions "Sise of Portsmouth, wearing that white vest;" and he thus winds up his report of Friday's proceedings in the legislature: "Then, at twenty minutes past nine, the House adjourned till four o'clock on Monday afternoon, on motion of Mr. Sise of Portsmouth, who paid Norris for five 'chips,' and took his way to the depot to be sure to get that white vest home in season." The envious Patriot chap may as well understand that the Colonel is just the man who can wear a white vest, and that he can't be jeered into giving it away to any covetous newspaper man.

Daniel E. Chase, distiller, of Boston, has recently failed, and the firm of Thomas E. Call & Sons, of this city, find themselves among the list of unsecured creditors to the amount of $1200.

The Times of Saturday evening says: "By orders of the post office department, Portsmouth is to be made a money order office under the new postal treaty between Italy and the United States. Hand-organ men travelling in this neighborhood and who wish to send money home to their relatives will take notice." Why didn't the Times also notify the man who keeps the post-office peanut stand? he behaves himself like a good citizen, and is just as much entitled to postal facilities—if he pays for them—as any hand-organ man. Such favoritism is the meanest thing.

Schooner "Emma," built at Hampton in 1876, 29.6 feet long, 10 feet beam and 4.5 feet in depth, and measuring 7.58 tons, was sold on Saturday by Sheriff Kent on an execution against Alfred Hook in favor of Thomas S. Gay and others, Rider & Cotton being the purchasers at $152.50.

Steamer Appledore took out a large party of ladies and gentlemen to the Shoals on Saturday afternoon—invited guests of Capt. Robinson and Engineer Gertin. A thick fog which hung over the river up to the hour of starting cleared away just at the right time, and a very pleasant run was enjoyed to the Shoals, though a long, lazy swell caused considerable disquietude to a number of the ladies and several of the gentlemen. Arriving at Appledore a quantity of stores was landed, and the boat then steamed over to the Star Island roads; and after giving his guests a look around there Capt. Robinson headed the Appledore for town, arriving back all right—of course. The boat travels better than ever, we think, and is in excellent condition. We were particularly pleased with the pilot house, which has been very neatly fitted up, and is decorated with several very pretty and appropriate pictures and several mottoes—"Be Pure in Heart" and "The Lord is My Shepherd,"—a third one, "Peace, Be Still," and the picture beneath it, of a ship under sail in a heavy sea, being very handsomely worked in colored worsteds,—a present to the popular commander of the boat.

Mr. Walter A. Cate, whose somewhat sudden death is recorded in the usual place, was formerly a leading butcher in this city, though he has not been engaged in the business for many years. He was very active as a politician in his younger days, and was prominent and influential in town affairs before Portsmouth became a city, though we are not aware that he ever held any other office than that of selectman—which, however, is one of the most important offices under a town government.

BRING ON YOUR FOG-HORN.

The three-masted schooner Annie M. Allen, Capt. Conkling, of Providence, R. I., bound to this port from Georgetown with a load of coal, after hanging around off the coast several days attempted to make the harbor on Saturday in a fog. There was not much wind, but the schooner was slipping along through the water very nicely and all was going on apparently well, when suddenly the centre-board bumped on the bottom, to the astonishment and disgust of the crew. The lead was handled in a hurry, but there was little use in heaving it, as the centre-board kept taking soundings on its own account, so both anchors were dropped, instead of the lead, and the vessel was brought up, swinging close in to the rocks at Rye Beach. As the fog lifted so the crew could see where they were it was found that there was not room to get the vessel under weigh, as with the wind in the quarter it then was in, she would have gone ashore before she could gather headway; but her uncomfortable position was seen from the steamer Clara Bateman, (which had just towed out a schooner,) and Capt. Rand ran down, hooked on to her and before dark had her safely berthed at Concord Railroad wharf. Fire up that fog-horn on Whale's-back, please.

A REMINISCENCE.

Some time ago, in a notice of the death of Ex-Gov. Edward Kent, of Maine, we gave a brief record of his life, and particularized his election as Governor in 1840, stating that it gave rise to the Whig campaign refrain—

"Have you heard the news from Maine, Maine,
How she went, hell bent,
For Governor Kent?" [Maine,

We are sure that was the refrain as we first heard it and learned it—and it was about the first song we ever did learn; we are all the more certain of it because we still have a vivid remembrance of going into the house one afternoon and singing that "hymn" in triumph to the sewing circle, or some other gathering of the female members of the North church, which met at our house that afternoon, and of getting Cayenne pepper put on our tongue for our pains, after the folks had gone,—which accounts for our extreme circumspection in the use of words ever since. We have also seen the refrain printed in a score or more of papers, since Gov. Kent's death, just as we gave it; but a Concord correspondent, who we have no doubt is correct in what he says, writes us as follows:

Messrs. Editors: In your notice of the death of Ex-Gov. Kent of Maine, you speak of the old refrain which was an outgrowth of the campaign of 1840, when he was elected Governor, and which was different from the version given. The circumstances which brought it out, as I now recollect them, were as follows: There was an old "Tip and Ty," song with each verse ending:

"For Tippecanoe and Tyler too,
And with them we'll beat little Van.
Van, Van, Van is a used up man,
And with them we'll beat little Van."

When the news of the Maine election reached Concord, there was a Merrimac County Democratic Mass Meeting assembled in the Old North Church, which was not equal to the expectations of the leaders in point of numbers. Among the speakers were Henry Hubbard, Franklin Pierce, John P. Hale and others. Hale waited for the Boston stage to get in with the news of the expected democratic victory in Maine, (for which great efforts had been made, so as to lead off the campaign well at the start,) before making his speech, which was to infuse more courage and spirit into the convention. Joe Gale's face told the whole story of a Whig victory when he drove up to the old Eagle Hotel. George Kent, brother of the Governor, was living in Concord, and when he had finished reading the Boston Atlas, he at once wrote a new verse to head the old song, which ran:

"Have you heard the news from Maine, Maine,
All honest and true,
How she went for Governor Kent, with three thou-
For Tippecanoe and Tyler too," etc. [sand gain

It was not long before the added verse was in type, and printed copies in the hands of the boys, who sang it with unction to the democracy, as they retired sad and silent from the Convention to their homes.

ANOTHER CAUGHT.

Early Sunday morning, Officer John Turner made another important arrest of one of the gang of freight car thieves, who have been robbing the Eastern railroad in this city. He discovered in a car standing on the track near the creek, Michael Ledden, a young man, who formerly lived with his parents at the west end, but who has of late led a nomadic life. The officers having in charge this case had suspected Ledden, and Officer Turner was on the watch for him, and was provided with a warrant. As soon as Ledden saw the officer, he jumped from the opposite side of the car, in which he had been, and ran for dear life up Creek street to Islington street, and into Jones Brewery yard. The officer closely following him, knowing the crooks and turns at the brewery, having formerly worked there, Leddin dodged into a side door, and down cellar, but Officer Turner was not outwitted, and "collared" him in the cellar, where the two had a tussle, Ledden coming off second-best. He was then taken to the jail and locked up.

Mud-Throwing Statesmen.

Gen. Butler and Wayne MacVeagh have been having a mud-throwing bout, which we have carefully watched, though we cannot tell which has won most honor in the contest.

Gen. Butler uses a sharp pen, and in a private letter which was published in all the papers he very strongly hinted that MacVeagh went to New Orleans with "the Commission" in the interests of a corrupt bargain between the Administration and the democratic revolutionists who were then seeking to get (and have since succeeded in getting) control of the State government of Louisiana.

MacVeagh also uses a sharp pen, and he promptly came up to the scratch with reflections on Butler's reputation for veracity and insinuations that he stole spoons and things at New Orleans.

Butler then "got back" at MacVeagh with an insinuation that he married for money, and is mad that his father-in-law Cameron will persist in living right along.

MacVeagh replies that Butler is very much no better than he should be, using the following language: "My chief purpose [in writing the mud-throwing letters] was to exhibit you as a warning to younger men, by showing them that, in spite of great ability and energy, you had become the leper of our politics, by reason of the general conviction that you habitually disregard the eighth and ninth commandments. That purpose has been fully answered by the comments of the country upon your character, and I have no further interest in the matter. I will not even take the trouble to deny any new falsehoods you may think it to your advantage to invent about me, for those who know me will not believe anything you say against me, and those who know you of course will not believe anything you say against anybody."

We do not propose to umpire this fight; Butler's friends consider him to have flattened out and destroyed MacVeagh, and the latter's friends say he hasn't left even a grease-spot of what was once Butler; but we are unable to decide with which combatant rests the glory. We do not believe the general public regards MacVeagh as a corrupt trickster, as Butler suggests he is; nor is Butler's reputation what MacVeagh says it is. Each one has undoubtedly said of the other what he knew to be untrue, under the spur of anger; and the correspondence shows that if Benjamin F. Butler is in reality the low blackguard MacVeagh says he is, that Wayne MacVeagh can write very like a low blackguard when he gets mad. And the latter's announcement that he will not fight any more, in the same letter in which he calls Butler a thief and a liar, seems very like throwing the last handful of mud and then taking refuge in a hole and pulling the hole in after him. "Oh, that mine enemy would write a" letter to the newspaper.

—A Sabbath school teacher was attempting to teach a very small boy the meaning of wages in the passage, "The wages of sin is death," and asked him, "What does your father get on Saturday night?" "Drunk, ma'am," answered the boy, without any hesitation.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world. — *Pueblo Col. LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

FRANK W. MILLER, Chairman.
HENRY M. CLARK, Treasurer.
JOHN TALTER STRICK, Secretary.
ALFRED M. HOYT,
JOS. BILLER FOSTER,
THOMAS H. GOODRICH,
JOHN H. BROUGHTON, Mayor, Ex. Off.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them—may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTE , or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

—Felt hats—Those worn on a sore head.

—In a debate on the Leather Tax, in 1695, in the Irish House of Commons, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Plankett, observed, with great emphasis, "In the prosecution of the present war, every man ought to give his last guinea to protect the remainder." Mr. Vandeleur said, "However that might be, the tax on leather would be severely felt by the barefooted peasantry of Ireland." To which Sir Boyle Roche replied, that "This could be easily remedied by making the underleathers of wood."

—Little May had been on a visit to some of her mother's friends in Canada, and while there had heard the Sunday school hymn so well known, "Come to Jesus, He will wash you white as snow," etc. After her arrival at home, not feeling in a verry playful mood, she seated herself in her little rocking chair and began singing, "Come to Jesus—" which seemed to be all she could remember of the hymn. After repeating the words several times she was asked by her auntie, "May, where is Jesus?" May answered, "Over in Tanaday!" "Well, what does he do?" "He works," said May. "Works at what?" To which, after some hesitation, the little one replied, "He washes!"

—A droll discussion took place recently in the Town Council of Musselburgh, near Edinburgh. Bailie Smart moved that the Council spend £5 on the Queen's birthday. "Nothing of the sort," said Treasurer McKinlay. "Oh, you are teetotalers!" exclaimed the Provost. "It would be better for you," was the retort, "if you were all teetotallers. If you want to fuddle, have it at your own expense." After more sharp talk the Provost said, with much dignity, "In consequence of the coolness with which the motion is regarded, and since we cannot observe the day in a manner creditable to Her Majesty, we had better let the matter drop." "Your conduct," he added, addressing the Council, "is utterly contemptible." So the five-pound note will not be abstracted from the borough funds.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."

HE WILL COME;

BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. Sold by booksellers, or prepaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twentythree years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve You Lungs.

or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 16, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own ers or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall carry them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of m at at the stalls shall be permitted to have any such meat, fish, or other offal of any kind about their sta ls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, he shall Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectual than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS, CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH, CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvellous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My Dear Sir: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

[Written for the Chronicle.]

Memories of Napoleon the Great, Living and Dead.

As the years go by, since the great soldier who made all Europe tremble was running his brilliant career, more and more rare does it become to find one who looked upon the living face of Napoleon the First, as he came to be termed, when, strange as it would once have seemed, his nephew succeeded him upon the throne of France. It was not so within the memory of many of the present generation. I saw him, said, in substance, a resident of Portsmouth, since deceased, to the writer, at the head of a hundred thousand of the half million who followed him to Moscow, (ef whom, very sadly, so few returned,) and can never forget the enthusiasm his presence awakened within me, scarcely less, I think, than that apparent in the faces of his soldiers who so loved him; but while he had been looked upon, through English spectacles, as an ogre, and all sorts of evil beings to be detested, I had not so regarded him; for, while not a Washington, whom I had seen in my boyhood, on his last visit to Portsmouth, and though not concurring by far in the picture Byron drew of him and his career in his familiar poem, I well remember the pleasure with which I read it on its first appearance, until able to repeat it for the most part from memory, and how fully I agreed with it in sentiment in its fierce denunciation of "the land of the Gaul" for its base desertion of him at his downfall, when all Europe combined against him at Waterloo. Within a very few years, the narrator of this sketch saw among Julian's band at New York, and listened to the tones of his little instrument, the flageolet, that were like the notes of a bird in sweetness, a veteran, who, as a soldier, in his youth had accompanied Napoleon to Russia, and though suffering the horrors of the terrible retreat it makes one shudder to read of even at this late day, never lost his faith in or affection for the great captain; and among his other memories of him, loved to recall the night when many thousands of his comrades set on fire the bundles of straw, holding them upwards upon their bayonets, that had been dealt out to them to sleep upon, to bid him welcome when he joined them. No one of foreign birth, save Lafayette, since since the noble men such as Kosciusko, who served in our revolutionary struggle, was ever received in this country with warmer regard than the brave Marshal Bertrand, the "faithful among the faithless," who accompanied Napoleon to St. Helena and remained with him there until he died, and bore a conspicuous part in the removal of his remains to France, and in consigning them to their final repose beneath the dome of the Invalides. To thousands who greeted him here, so closely were they associated in the history of the past, it seemed almost as if they had seen his great commander, for whom his love was like that of David and Jonathan. Interesting as these memories are to him who recalls them, and others of a like nature, even more so are those he received from a lady who saw Napoleon often from the time in her childhood when he landed from the ship that bore him to St. Helena, until he was laid in his tomb upon the "lone barren isle;" his hands had been laid upon her head in benediction, more than once had she received a kiss from his lips, and she had been permitted to look upon his dead face and touch his dead hand when he was again brought to the light of day after reposing in the earth, while the ocean waves sounded a requiem around him by night and by day, for a score of years; and if it was with a saddened heart and tearful eyes that she saw the interment in her early youth of the mortal remains of the dead Emperor, it was with a feeling of the deepest awe that in her womanhood she witnessed their exhumation. Remembering its every particular, it was with emotion scarcely less than if it was still before her, that she recalled the scene. Commencing at midnight on the 15th of October, 1840, it was nine hours she said, before the enormous stone that covered it could be lifted from the tomb. As if fearful that the mighty dead would break forth and make the nations again to tremble, as he had done so often in life, his sepulchre had been constructed seemingly to last until the last great day. Prayer was made when the coffin was reached, and then, after the encasing metals were removed, and the lid raised, Napoleon was seen as if reposing upon his bed in slumber. The awe-struck spectators at once detected the fact that one hand was removed from the attitude in which it had been laid to repose, and for a moment a feeling of horror filled all hearts that the dead had revived after being laid in the grave, until Gen. Bertrand dispelled the dreadful thought by saying to one, who like himself had assisted at the interment, "Do you not remember that after we had arranged his limbs, and just before we left him, I raised that hand to kiss it?" Very curiously, while time had dimmed all the other ornaments; the Cross of the Legion of Honor still retained its brightness. Remembering with affection the gentle kindness with which the great man had treated her when but a little child, she had visited his tomb often as long as his remains reposed there; chatting when she did so with the veteran soldier who kept his post—the "Old Guard" indeed, who never deserted his master—until he accompanied his remains to France, where he was the first who was allowed to land, and where he was embraced by the great and honored who thought themselves honored in thus doing. Familiar with him for so long a time, it was with the deepest regret that the lady, as she said, took leave of him when he left St. Helena in the steamer that bore the remains of the Emperor from the rocky isle he had made so famed for all time. In the same room where this interesting narration to the writer took place, the once familiar engraving of "Napoleon Musing at St. Helena" could be seen. Pointing to it she said, "That is no fancy sketch. After visiting, with General and Madame Bertrand, on my sixth birthday, as it chanced, the basaltic columns upon the rocky shore that are such an attraction to strangers, I saw the Emperor, who had been near us all the time, just in that attitude, with folded arms, looking forth upon the sea." The War.

The desperate attempts of the Turks to force a passage through the Duga Pass have been defeated and the Turks driven back by the Montenegrins, the former losing 4000 men and the latter 700. The fighting lasted five days.

The Russians made several attempts to cross the Danube on Saturday, but they are believed to have been mere feints to cover the real movements.

A battle on the Danube between six Russian torpedo boats and three Turkish iron-clads, in which the former were driven off and three of them sunk, is reported.

News and Notes.

The Mansion House at Augusta, Maine, was totally destroyed by fire at one o'clock this morning. Six horses were burned to death.

Several thousand baskets of strawberries were thrown overboard at New York on Saturday night, the traders being unable to sell them at any price. They sold during the day at from two to three cents per basket, and were exceedingly fine berries.

The small boys and the big boys of Brooklyn are not to be allowed fireworks on the Fourth of July.

John Cleary, an Irishman of Newport, R. I., is under arrest for most inhumanly beating his two children for neglecting to attend the Catholic church schools. It is believed one of the children will die, both of them having been fearfully cut up with a knotted clothes-line. The savage brute is held in $1000 bail.

Isaac B. Sawtelle, Jr., is under arrest in Boston for enticing several young girls to secluded places or houses of bad reputation, and feloniously assaulting them. Three of his victims have positively identified him.

The ship Gustave and Oscar, from Bremen, reports that on June 6, lat. 42 20 N., long. 64 22 W., spoke a small two-masted boat from New Bedford for London, having one man and woman on board, undoubtedly Capt. Crapo and his wife.

The steamer Bermuda has arrived at Halifax, N. S., from St. John's, N. F. The Newfoundland seal fishery for the season has resulted in a catch of 412,000 seals, 43,000 being taken on the second trip. In number and weight the catch of the year is good, but the depreciation in value reduces it to an average one.

The clipper ship Canterbury has won the annual race of wool-ships from New Zealand to London, making the passage in sixty-five days, the fastest time on record.

A mysterious attempt was made a few nights ago to abduct a young woman named Parmelee from her home in Bristol, R. I. In the early evening her mother, who is in feeble health, went into the woodshed for some purpose, and was seized and gagged by two men, who carried her away to the woods. They said that they had been waiting two months for a chance to steal her. In their hasty flight they had not noticed that their prisoner was the mother of the person whom they intended to capture. Arrived at a place of safety, they struck a light and discovered their mistake. After a few curses, their victim was set free and allowed to return to her home, where she was prostrated for several days by the shock to her nervous system. There is no clue to the men who attempted the abduction, and nothing is known of the motive for the act. Mrs. Parmelee is unable to identify or describe the ruffians. The citizens are watching for a repetition of the attempt, and measures have been taken to prevent its success.

D. Lothrop & Co., are to issue immediately, as summer reading for the young folks, the initial volumes of the Sea-side Series, "Nan, the New-Fashioned Girl," by Mrs. S. C. Hallowell, and "Good-for-Nothing Polly," by Ella Farman, the former for the girls, the latter for the boys, "Polly" being a delightful young scapegrace drawn from life. The same firm will also bring out at once a handsome edition of "The Confessions of Augustine," a rare religious work long out of print.

The dead body of an unknown man has been found in the ruins of the fire at Galveston, Texas.

A negro caught attempting to break into a store in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday night, was arrested by the police, but was soon after taken from their custody by a mob and drowned in the river. Such incidents as this, which are constantly occurring in the South, evince a reckless disregard for the law, such as a northern man can form little idea of. When mob-law goes to the extent of murder in the large cities, as a common thing, and the murderers go unpunished by the law and are supported by public opinion, there is little wonder that the semi-civilized inhabitants of the country districts commit such atrocities as the Kemper county massacre.

A relative of the ring fugitive Connolly states that the ex-Comptroller says he will not give a red cent to New York city and don't care whether he ever sees the place again. It is understood that Keyser, Fields and Genet, of ring fame, will be permitted to make a settlement on the same basis as Sweeney and Tweed.

The wife of Capt. Tyrell of the schooner Ario Pardee, who died aboard of the vessel off Saybrook, Conn., while on a voyage from Perth Amboy to Somerset, Mass., is accused of poisoning him. His stomach shows death from poison.

The Centennial of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as our flag will be observed at Boston on the 14th, when Mr. Nathan Appleton will deliver an address on the subject. Mrs. William Stuart Appleton, 39 Beacon street, has the "Star-spangled banner" of Fort McHenry, celebrated by Francis S. Key. Lieutenant-Colonel George Armstead, who defended the fort, had the flag made to fling to the breeze on the occasion of Mrs. Appleton's (his daughter's) birth, which event took place only a couple of days before the bombardment.

A Chicago Tribune correspondent writing from Black Hills reports wages declining, the population increasing, and prices rising. On the 13th of May, flour was worth $16 per hundred pounds at Deadwood; it rose rapidly for three days, until on the afternoon of the 16th, it was $35 per hundred. That night a heavily laden ox-train came in, and in the morning flour had fallen to $16 again. Men with lean pocket-books are better off at home.

Autographs went begging at the last auction sale at New York. Even a letter written and signed by the own hand of Theodore Tilton only brought five cents, while the great George Francis Train's signature was sold at seven cents. But these, seriously speaking, were enormous prices comparatively, because the autograph of Dickens, which usually brings at least $5 was sold for $1; Tom Moore's sold for $3.-25; the Duke of Wellington's for $2.10; Sheridan's for $4.25; and Mad. de Stael's for $4.50. Rare and large paper copies of books at the same sale brought no better prices.

New Hampshire Items.

Twelve men and boys were arrested for indecent exposure by bathing in the Merrimac River near the Amoskeag Bridge, Manchester, on Sunday.

O'Brien, the East Boston thief and bully, who assaulted Officer Frain of Manchester and got shot for his pains, did a good thing Monday morning: He died.

Frank Miller was arrested at Hudson on Sunday while breaking into a house.

Political.

The Troy (N. Y.) Press, a rabid democratic sheet, says: "Grant's visit to England and the ovations he has received were all gotten up to spite Hayes, and we shall expect to see an effort made after Grant's return to run him for the much-coveted third term on the virtue of his 'popularity abroad.' We shall see how that thing works." To call the democrat who runs the Troy Press a donkey would evidently be no slander.

There have been a good many shallow jibes about the number of Federal offices bestowed upon Ohio men, but an examination of the matter reveals the fact that a smaller proportion of appointments has been made from that State than from most others. It has not a clerk or employe in the State Department. In the Consular and Diplomatic Service it has received 8 appointments, while New York has had 38. In the Secretary of the Navy's office Ohio has 1 clerk, Pennsylvania 13. Of Assistant Surgeons in the army now in service, Ohio has 2, Pennsylqania 30, and New York 27. In the Quartermaster's Department Ohio has 48 and New York 14. In the Pay Department of the Army Ohio has 8, New York 23, and Pennsylvania 17. Among the Engineers of the Navy Ohio has 5, New York 62, and Pennsylvania 61.

The grandson of a prominent well-known citizen of the Highland District rushed into the house recently and exclaimed with much vigor and great excitement: "O grandpa; I've just seen the worst Irish funeral I ever saw in my life. The men were all in the open carriages and shouting and smoking cigars!" Gentle reader, the "men" were the members of the City Council out investigating the new park scheme! A true story, as related at the City Hall.—Boston Globe.

Butler's personal allusion to Wayne MacVeagh's family matters requires explanation before the record of the controversy between these two great men can be considered complete. MacVeagh is a son-in-law of Simon Cameron, but the way he married into that family was by eloping with the young woman. Whether the Cameron family regard MacVeagh with the dislike and want of respect which Butler asserts we do not know, but the fact that he is out of sympathy with them in political matters seems to give some color to the charge. The extraordinary tenacity with which Old Simon holds on to life is what Butler refers to when he intimates that MacVeagh, having married for a share in his money, has waited many years in vain for "dead men's shoes."—Pittsburg (Pa.) Leader.

—A near sighted and modest resident of Cazenovia entered a dry goods store in that village, and, thinking to perpetrate a joke, stepped up to the dummy on which new patterns of dresses and mantles are displayed, and struck it on the shoulder, saying, "Well, old woman, how are you?" The old woman at once turned around and not only answered his question, but volunteered a great deal of information besides.

—A cross dog will make the top of a hemlock board fence feel soft as downy pillows are.

—A Georgia man named Thomas Henry is about attempting the feat of exploring an unknown cave half way down the side of a precipice on Stone Mountain. To do this he will have to be lowered from the top by a rope 2100 feet long.

—There is said to be a young girl in Clinton, Canada, whose eyesight is as good as anybody's by day, but when night sets in she becomes blind and has to be led around. She is in good health, and the cause of this singular phenomenon is a mystery.

—An exchange observes that a man who had sunk so low as to hold a seat in the New York Assembly a few years ago, by turning over a new leaf and devoting himself to honest industry, has risen to the high position of captain of a base ball nine in Kansas. There is hope for the most degraded.

—The romantic story of the elopement of a beautiful young nun of St. Franciscus Hospital, Pittsburg, Penn., with a young doctor of the institution, is qualified by the fact that the young woman had not taken the vows at all, but was only a probationer. Under the provocation of the handsome doctor she simply elected that wedded life was preferable to conventual chastity.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and Free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 5 years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I enclose $5.00.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 23d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty; but as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking Dr. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story, I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most piteously. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have live applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1876.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend the use of those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT IT?

Is there no way in which we can protect our cemeteries from the ravages of thoughtless and heartless boys and men? It would seem that these places, if no others, might be kept inviolate: as if the flowers which were planted, and the birds which sing and nest among our dead, might be left undisturbed by the hand of theft and of cruelty. But what is the truth? One scarcely dares to arrange a flowering vase, or a tasteful plot of shrubs and vines, the flowers and roots are so continually stolen. Young men have been seen actually shooting the little birds "which sing among the branches;" and if a too confiding robin or thrush dares to build its nest within the reach of human cruelty, it is ruthlessly torn down and carried away with its eggs or helpless young.

A robin built this spring in my lot: in a spruce tree, too low, alas! to prove a secure resting place. I have watched it from week to week with almost painful anxiety, knowing how little honor or mercy there was to be found among men. Sunday before last four little ones were in the nest; last Sunday all was gone—birds, and young and nest. Do you think I enjoyed my walk, that calm Summer evening, in a place where of all others we ought to be free from hard or bitter thoughts?

It is a crying shame that no place and no thing is safe; that civilized people can have no rights which these savages are bound to respect. But what can be done? I would gladly give a considerable sum to have my little birds safe back again, or, since that cannot be, to protect those yet unmolested. But what will money do? A reward has already been offered for the conviction of the bird murderers seen in the same place recently. And what will law do? Our bird law, if enforced, would protect all birds, old and young, in field or forest or garden. The law against trespass would of itself protect our cemeteries; but these laws seem powerless. What can we do?

POLICE COURT.

Monday, June 11th.

Michael Ledden, a young fellow of about twenty, and having much the appearance of a vagrant, was bound over in the sum of $600 to appear at the October term of the Supreme Court to answer to a charge of attempting to steal goods from a freight car on the Eastern railroad. In default of bail, Ledden went to jail.

A VALUABLE FOG-SIGNAL.

A good illustration of the value of the bell on Whale's-back as a guide for vessels entering—or trying to enter—this port in a fog was afforded on Saturday. The bell was heard tinkling all the afternoon by Mr. Pearson, at his place on Broad street,—several miles away, but on land, and nearly dead to leeward of the light-house; but it could not be heard at sea or to windward far enough to guide in a vessel bound into the port, though there was but a moderate breeze blowing at the time, and no sea running to speak of; and a valuable vessel owed her salvation from total wreck within a few miles of the light-house solely to the fact that she carries a centre-board, for had she been a keel vessel her first intimation of danger would have come from a smash on the rocks. The last Congress appropriated a sum of money to put a Daboll fog-trumpet on Whale's-back; and though we consider the sum referred to utterly insufficient for the purpose, (for the new tower has not room for a steam fog-horn, and the old tower was condemned as unsafe before the new one was built, and has not become any more safe since,) yet we give Hon. Frank Jones credit for bringing the matter before Congress, for the fact that any appropriation at all was made was an acknowedgement that a better signal than we now have is a necessity. We hope Mr. Jones will push the matter when Congress meets again, so that before another Winter sets in we may have a signal that can be heard further than a dab of mud thrown against a brick wall; and if the light-house engineers decide that such a signal cannot be placed on Whale's-back until the old tower is rebuilt, then let it in the meantime be put on the extremity of Odiorne's Point,—which would not be a bad place for it permanently, for a large proportion of the vessels making the harbor come in to the westward of the Shoals, and would pick up the sound of an effective signal on Odiorne's Point in ample time to steer clear of danger. Let Congressman Jones urge this matter—as we feel assured he will gladly do—and if the parties most in interest, the shippers and ship-masters and fishermen, will also work for it, before the snow flies again there will be some kind of a decent fog-signal somewhere at the harbor's mouth.

JOTTINGS.

The employes of the Eldredge Brewing Company have formed a rifle club for the purpose of practice in target shooting. To give zest to the sport they have procured an elegant gold badge, to be given to the champion shot. The Creedmoor target, six feet by four, will be used, and the best score at two hundred and three hundred yards (five shots at each distance) will decide who will carry off the honors—and the badge. As there are a number of good shots in the club the contest will no doubt be very interesting. The badge was made by Messrs. C. E. & J. E. Dixon, and its unique and chaste design and superior workmanship reflect credit on their establishment.

If you need anything in the harness-maker's line, call on Tilton, at No. 18 Congress street. He has a full line of all goods kept in a first-class harness-store, and makes and mends in the best manner, using only the best materials.

We clipped the following extracts from a recent issue of the Times. They read well together, and we heartily endorse all the assertions made: "Whatever can be purchased of our own citizens, of as good quality and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere, should be purchased at home. Many of our people have found to their cost that they cannot do as well by going abroad to buy. As a rule,—and the rule has very few exceptions,—a dollar expended in Portsmouth brings as good a return as anywhere else. Our citizens should remember that in giving a liberal support to any honorable business man here, they are helping the material prosperity of the city." "Read the advertisements and trade with those who advertise. You will save money by so doing."

The stock of groceries in the store on Market street recently occupied by Samuel Rowe, will be sold at Sheriff's sale to-day, on the premises, at 10 o'clock A. M. Also at same time and place, the store fixtures, and a wagon, sleigh, pung and harness. See advertisement.

Mr. D. J. Lynch, having purchased the stock in trade and good-will in business of the late Lafayette Laighton, will continue the business at the old stand, No. 44 Market street. See his advertisement in another column.

The One Hundredth anniversary of the Stars and Stripes will be celebrated Thursday evening, by a Grand Promenade Concert at Mechanics' Hall. Music by Harlow's Orchestra. Tickets 50 cents; ladies free. *

The Summer arrangement of trains on the Eastern railroad went into effect on Monday.

The celebration at Langdon Park on Thursday will be extremely interesting. Many prominent men will be present, and a highly interesting programme has been arranged.

The Portsmouth Weekly says: "The new organist at the Unitarian church in this city, Miss Lizzie Davis, is a pupil of Mr. A. Pearson, who has instructed most of the young organists in the city for several years. Miss Davis was recommended by Miss Miller, who declined holding the position at any reduction of salary. Miss Lizzie Ham, one of the most charming singers we have ever had in the city, has accepted the position of soprano in the quartet at this church, which otherwise remains the same as last year." The Weekly might have added that the retiring organist, Miss Miller, is included in the list of Mr. Pearson's pupils.

The Antiques and Horribles will be out on the coming 4th of July, and we learn that some persons who believe that good and effective hits at local shortcomings can be made through this medium, have nearly completed their arrangements for administering the said hits, which are expected to make the body politic hold its nose.

Mr. Benjamin Carr, a well known photographer and prominent citizen of Concord, who while reaching out of a third-story window in that city on Saturday, lost his balance and fell to the ground, receiving injuries from which he died, was formerly a resident of this city, and married a daughter of the late Mr. Levi Moses. Mr. Carr's wife survives him, and he leaves one daughter.

Schooner Light of Home, Capt. L. F. Doane, with one hundred and eighty barrels of mackerel, arrived at Doane's wharf Sunday afternoon, the first fare of mackerel landed here this season; the Light of Home sailed for the Block Island fishing ground, Monday afternoon. Schooner Glide, Capt. Thomas Jamieson, arrived at Doane's wharf Sunday evening with thirty thousand pounds of split cod, the result of twelve days' fishing; the Glide goes to Gloucester, Mass., to wash out. Schooner Daniel Marcy, with two hundred and thirty barrels of mackerel, the Henry M. Clark, with two hundred and fifty barrels, and the Mayor Jones, with one hundred and twenty-five barrels, are expected to arrive at Doane's wharf this week.

A company of forty-five boys has been organized at the High School, to take part in the celebration of Thursday. Several of the pupils are connected with other companies, and some were unwilling to march, otherwise the company would have been larger. The officers chosen are: Captain, J. H. Emery; First Lieut., S. W. Foss; Second Lieut., A. R. Locke; Orderly Sergeant, D. S. Broderick. It is expected that all, or nearly all, the school will be present at the Maypole, and sing "The Red, White and Blue," under the lead of Prof. S. W. Cole, who is now giving the school instruction in music preparatory to exhibition.

—An ingenious girl, who has never "a feller" in the world, goads the other girls in her neighborhood to madness by lighting up the parlor brilliantly and then setting her father's hat where its shadow will be boldly marked against the curtain.

—The exhumation of the obelisk "Cleopatra's needle" near Alexandria, Egypt, for London has been completed. Eighteen inches of the apex is gone, and the corners are somewhat damaged, otherwise it is in a fair condition.

—Here's another warning. A man refused to stay at home after an early supper and help his wife whitewash the back yard fence, and his black hair turned white in less than a minute.

—The St. Louis Globe makes honorable mention of an oaken chest in that city which, it asserts, is 800 years old. The boards are an inch and a half in thickness, and are held together by wooden pegs.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, for preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

COCOA SHELLS, prepared by Walter Baker & Co. furnish an excellent substitute for tea and coffee, at half their cost, and are palatable, nutritious and healthful. All grocers sell Baker's Chocolates, which are the best in the market.

Adamson's Botanic Balsam will not make new lungs, but will prevent the disease from spreading throughout the whole substance of the lungs, thereby facilitating recovery. Price 35 cts. Samples free.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

—A Harlem man has a goat which he has named "Oleomargarine," because it is a very poor kind of butter.

—"J. R. Grosse, Grocer, Groceries," is the positive, comparative, and superlative style of a Brighton store-keeper's sign.

—In six of the spaces under the arches of the theatre at Naples, Italy, opening to the street, are arranged little pine tables, at each of which sits an elderly and intelligent looking man, with an inkstand and stationery before him, and usually with a customer seated alongside and pouring a voluable story into his attentive ear. These are the public letter writers, who will indite for you an epistle of any kind, from a love letter or a proposal of marriage up to a ferocious dun or a cartel of defiance.

—A Parisian and his wife quarrelled. "I shall drown myself," she finally cried out, exasperated. "Go, if I am all that deters you," he answered. Still, he followed her, and when she threw herself into the Seine, plunged in and brought her to land. As he was climbing up the bank, however, he slipped back into the river, and being exhausted by his previous exertion, was unable to save himself. His wife seeing his situation, plunged in after him, but as she could not swim, that was of no avail, and both must have been drowned had it not been for the timely arrival of some policemen, who pulled them out. The pair went home like two turtle-doves.

—The fishermen of Norway carry in their fishing boats a water telescope or tube three or four feet in length. They immerse one end in the water, and then, looking intently through the glass, they are enabled to perceive objects ten or fifteen fathoms deep, as distinctly as if they were within a few feet of the surface. Hence, when they discover plenty of fish they surround them with their large draught nets, and often catch them by hundreds at a single haul, which, were it not for these telescopes, would often prove precarious and unprofitable fishing. This instrument is not only used by the fishermen, but it is also found in the navy and coasting vessels.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."

HE WILL COME;

BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 12mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. Sold by booksellers, or prepaid on receipt of price.

PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL!

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England!

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy elief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Bachman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. Its offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the ground. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to carry any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing adverse said to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing all irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectually than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

CURES Colds, CURES Coughs, CURES Catarrh CURES Consumption.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a leading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvelous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.

Tsernagora, or Montenegro.

The following article, which we take from an exchange, is of peculiar interest just now, when the "conflict of ages" between the Turks and Montenegrins is raging so fiercely. It gives the most graphic description of the country and people of Montenegro we have ever seen, and fully explains the trouble the Turks have had in "revictualling Niesics," which has been a standing job for them for over a year, and is not yet finished:

The backbone of European Turkey is a mountain formation shaped like the letter T. The upright line is the range between Albania and Roumelia. The horizontal line represents the Balkans. On the west, the line of the Balkans intersects the Alpine chain, running down the eastern coast of the Adriatic. The wild and broken region where the Alps and the Balkans meet, is known as the Black Mountain country—Montenegro. The principal peaks, Mount Dormitor on the northeast and Kutsh Kow on the southeast, are 8500 and 9300 feet above the sea level. The hills are wooded with dark forests of fir, oak and poplar.

For five hundred years, the people of this mountain region have held at bay the tide of Turkish war, which in 1389 overwhelmed the great Servian kingdom. Montenegro was then a part of Servia, and was governed by a prince of the royal blood. The language of the mountaineers is still a very pure Sclavonic dialect; their religion is still the religion of the Greek church. Their whole territory is 1880 square miles; Rhode Island contains 1300 miles. They number 130,000, with an army of 26,000 fighting men and a reserve of 14,000; Rhode Island has a population of 217,000.

Far up in the western part of the Black Hills is the capital, Cettigne, containing twenty or thirty well built houses, besides a convent and the Prince's palace. From this citadel, the river Zeta flows down to Lake Scutari, south of the mountains. To Cettigne, in 1484, Ivan Tchernoievitch removed the seat of government. Scutari, on the lake, had been taken by the Turks; the Herzegovinians on the north had submitted; Ivan withdrew to the mountains, and wonderful to relate, took with him a printing press, only 28 years after the appearance of the first printed book!

The mountaineers have had but little time for literature. It was a part of their fundamental law, that no son of Tsernagors,—as they call the Black Mountain in their own tongue,—should quit the field without the order of his chief; that a runaway should be forever disgraced, and banished from his people: that he should be dressed in woman's clothes, and presented with a distaff; and that the women, striking him with their distaffs, should hunt the coward away from the sanctuary of freedom. The struggle with the Turks lasted, with but little intermission, until 1714. In 1710, the Czar of Russia promised to the Prince of Montenegro an annual subsidy of 8000 ducats, which is still faithfully paid. The Turkish victory of 1714 was only temporary. As soon as the Turks withdrew, the Montenegrins refused to pay their taxes. In 1722, 1727 and 1732, Turkish armies were bitterly discomfitted, and so it has continued to this day. Last year, in July, 4000 of the Turks commanded by Mukhtar Pasha were slain with a loss of only 70 Montenegrins; in August, 5,000 Montenegrins put to flight 20,000 Turks; in September five Montenegrin battalions defeated Dervisch Pasha and slew 3000 of his men; in October, Dervisch Pasha was again driven down into the plains, with a loss of 2,000 men.

The Turks last year brought 130,000 men against the Black Mountain—an army equal to the whole population. The result of the campaign was a Turkish loss of 26,000, and a Montenegrin loss of 1,000. The mountaineers, of course, have the advantage of defending their passes against an attacking enemy. The armistice put an end, for the time being, to this series of Turkish disasters. Since the renewal of hostilities, there has been more actual fighting among the Montenegrin hills than on the Danube.

The Turkish effort now is to revictual the fort of Niesics. The Black Mountain is shaped like a wasp. In the middle, deep valleys penetrate the hills on each side, and in these valleys the Turks have established two strong fortresses—Niesics on the north, and Spuz on the south. These two forts are less than twenty miles apart, but the intervening region is nearly inaccessible. Spuz is easily reached by the Turks from Scutari and Podgoritza. Niesics can only be approached through the Duga pass. The Turks are not now fighting for conquest, but to maintain the two forts.

The road from Gatschko to Niesics is the route which Suleiman Pasha has taken. The pass begins at Fort Kristacs, and from that point, the Turks must advance in single file along two tortuous paths, exposed at every step to the fatal fire of the Montenegrins from behind the rocky parapets of overhanging cliffs. The Turks last Monday lost 3000 men in trying to dislodge the Montenegrins from the heights beyond Kristacs. The Montenegrin loss is reported at 600. The Montenegrins then withdrew from the heights, and on Wednesday suddenly attacked Spuz, but retired leaving 23 dead and 16 wounded.

The first code of written laws was promulgated in Montenegro by Prince Peter, to France, where he was the first who was allowed to land, and where he was embraced by the great and honored who thought themselves honored in thus doing. Familiar with him for so long a time, it was with the deepest regret that the lady, as she said, took leave of him when he left St. Helena in the steamer that bore the remains of the Emperor from the rocky isle he had made so famed for all time. In the same room where this interesting narration to the writer took place, the once familiar engraving of "Napoleon Musing at St. Helena" could be seen. Pointing to it she said, "That is no fancy sketch. After visiting, with General and Madame Bertrand, on my sixth birthday, as it chanced, the basaltic columns upon the rocky shore that are such an attraction to strangers, I saw the Emperor, who had been near us all the time, just in that attitude, with folded arms, looking forth upon the sea." J. H. B.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, JUNE 12, 1877.

The War.

The desperate attempts of the Turks to force a passage through the Duga Pass have been defeated and the Turks driven back by the Montenegrins, the former losing 4000 men and the latter 700. The fighting lasted five days.

The Russians made several attempts to cross the Danube on Saturday, but they are believed to have been mere feints to cover the real movements.

A battle on the Danube between six Russian torpedo boats and three Turkish iron-clads, in which the former were driven off and three of them sunk, is reported.

News and Notes.

The Mansion House at Augusta, Maine, was totally destroyed by fire at one o'clock this morning. Six horses were burned to death.

Several thousand baskets of strawberries were thrown overboard at New York on Saturday night, the traders being unable to sell them at any price. They sold during the day at from two to three cents per basket, and were exceedingly fine berries.

The small boys and the big boys of Brooklyn are not to be allowed fireworks on the Fourth of July.

John Cleary, an Irishman of Newport, R. I., is under arrest for most inhumanly beating his two children for neglecting to attend the Catholic church schools. It is believed one of the children will die, both of them having been fearfully cut up with a knotted clothes-line. The savage brute is held in $1000 bail.

Isaac B. Sawtelle, Jr., is under arrest in Boston for enticing several young girls to secluded places or houses of bad reputation, and feloniously assaulting them. Three of his victims have positively identified him.

The ship Gustave and Oscar, from Bremen, reports that on June 6, lat. 42 20 N., long. 64 22 W., spoke a small two-masted boat from New Bedford for London, having one man and woman on board, undoubtedly Capt. Crapo and his wife.

The steamer Bermuda has arrived at Halifax, N. S., from St. John's, N. F. The Newfoundland seal fishery for the season has resulted in a catch of 412,000 seals, 43,000 being taken on the second trip. In number and weight the catch of the year is good, but the depreciation in value reduces it to an average one.

The clipper ship Canterbury has won the annual race of wool-ships from New Zealand to London, making the passage in sixty-five days, the fastest time on record.

A mysterious attempt was made a few nights ago to abduct a young woman named Parmelee from her home in Bristol, R. I. In the early evening her mother, who is in feeble health, went into the woodshed for some purpose, and was seized and gagged by two men, who carried her away to the woods. They said that they had been waiting two months for a chance to steal her. In their hasty flight they had not noticed that their prisoner was the mother of the person whom they intended to capture. Arrived at a place of safety, they struck a light and discovered their mistake. After a few curses, their victim was set free and allowed to return to her home, where she was prostrated for several days by the shock to her nervous system. There is no clue to the men who attempted the abduction, and nothing is known of the motive for the act. Mrs. Parmelee is unable to identify or describe the ruffians. The citizens are watching for a repetition of the attempt, and measures have been taken to prevent its success.

D. Lothrop & Co., are to issue immediately, as summer reading for the young folks, the initial volumes of the Sea-side Series, "Nan, the New-Fashioned Girl," by Mrs. S. C. Hallowell, and "Good-for-Nothing Polly," by Ella Farman, the former for the girls, the latter for the boys. "Polly" being a delightful young scapegrace drawn from life. The same firm will also bring out at once a handsome edition of "The Confessions of Augustine," a rare religious work long out of print.

The dead body of an unknown man has been found in the ruins of the fire at Galveston, Texas.

A negro caught attempting to break into a store in Nashville, Tenn., Saturday night, was arrested by the police, but was soon after taken from their custody by a mob and drowned in the river. Such incidents as this, which are constantly occurring in the South, evince a reckless disregard for the law, such as a northern man can form little idea of. When mob-law goes to the extent of murder in the large cities, as a common thing, and the murderers go unpunished by the law and are supported by public opinion, there is little wonder that the semi-civilized inhabitants of the country districts commit such atrocities as the Kemper county massacre.

A relative of the ring fugitive Connolly states that the ex-Comptroller says he will not give a red cent to New York city and don't care whether he ever sees the place again. It is understood that Keyser, Fields and Genet, of ring fame, will be permitted to make a settlement on the same basis as Sweeney and Tweed.

The wife of Capt. Tyrell of the schooner Ario Pardee, who died aboard of the vessel off Saybrook, Conn., while on a voyage from Perth Amboy to Somerset, Mass., is accused of poisoning him. His stomach shows death from poison.

The Centennial of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as our flag will be observed at Boston on the 14th, when Mr. Nathan Appleton will deliver an address on the subject. Mrs. William Stuart Appleton, 39 Beacon street, has the "Star-spangled banner" of Fort McHenry, celebrated by Francis S. Key. Lieutenant-Colonel George Armstead, who defended the fort, had the flag made to fling to the breeze on the occasion of Mrs. Appleton's (his daughter's) birth, which event took place only a couple of days before the bombardment.

A Chicago Tribune correspondent writing from Black Hills reports wages declining, the population increasing, and prices rising. On the 13th of May, flour was worth $16 per hundred pounds at Deadwood; it rose rapidly for three days, until on the afternoon of the 16th, it was $35 per hundred. That night a heavily laden ox-train came in, and in the morning flour had fallen to $16 again. Men with lean pocket-books are better off at home.

Autographs went begging at the last auction sale at New York. Even a letter written and signed by the own hand of Theodore Tilton only brought five cents, while the great George Francis Train's signature was sold at seven cents. But these, seriously speaking, were enormous prices comparatively, because the autograph of Dickens, which usually brings at least $5 was sold for $1; Tom Moore's sold for $3.-25; the Duke of Wellington's for $2.10; Sheridan's for $4.25; and Mad. de Stael's for $4.50. Rare and large paper copies of books at the same sale brought no better prices.

New Hampshire Items.

Twelve men and boys were arrested for indecent exposure by bathing in the Merrimac River near the Amoskeag Bridge, Manchester, on Sunday.

O'Brien, the East Boston thief and bully who assaulted Officer Frain of Manchester and got shot for his pains, did a good thing Monday morning. He died.

Frank Miller was arrested at Hudson on Sunday while breaking into a house.

Political.

The Troy (N. Y.) Press, a rabid democratic sheet, says: "Grant's visit to England and the ovations he has received were all gotten up to spite Hayes, and we shall expect to see an effort made after Grant's return to run him for the much-coveted third term on the virtue of his 'popularity abroad.' We shall see how that thing works." To call the democrat who runs the Troy Press a donkey would evidently be no slander.

There have been a good many shallow jibes about the number of Federal offices bestowed upon Ohio men, but an examination of the matter reveals the fact that a smaller proportion of appointments has been made from that State than from most others. It has not a clerk or employe in the State Department. In the Consular and Diplomatic Service it has received 8 appointments, while New York has had 38. In the Secretary of the Navy's office Ohio has 1 clerk, Pennsylvania 13. Of Assistant Surgeons in the army now in service, Ohio has 2, Pennsylqania 30, and New York 27. In the Quartermaster's Department Ohio has 48 and New York 14. In the Pay Department of the Army Ohio has 8, New York 23, and Pennsylvania 17. Among the Engineers of the Navy Ohio has 5, New York 62, and Pennsylvania 61.

The grandson of a prominent well-known citizen of the Highland District rushed into the house recently and exclaimed with much vigor and great excitement: "O grandpa; I've just seen the worst Irish funeral I ever saw in my life. The men were all in the open carriages and shouting and smoking cigars!" Gentle reader, the "men" were the members of the City Council out investigating the new park scheme! A true story, as related at the City Hall.—Boston Globe.

Butler's personal allusion to Wayne MacVeagh's family matters requires explanation before the record of the controversy between these two great men can be considered complete. MacVeagh is a son-in-law of Simon Cameron, but the way he married into that family was by eloping with the young woman. Whether the Cameron family regard MacVeagh with the dislike and want of respect which Butler asserts we do not know, but the fact that he is out of sympathy with them in political matters seems to give some color to the charge. The extraordinary tenacity with which Old Simon holds on to life is what Butler refers to when he intimates that MacVeagh, having married for a share in his money, has waited many years in vain for "dead men's shoes."—Pittsburg (Pa.) Leader.

—A near sighted and modest resident of Cazenovia entered a dry goods store in that village, and, thinking to perpetrate a joke, stepped up to the dummy on which new patterns of dresses and mantles are displayed, and struck it on the shoulder, saying, "Well, old woman, how are you?" The old woman at once turned around and not only answered his question, but volunteered a great deal of information besides.

—A cross dog will make the top of a hemlock board fence feel soft as downy pillows are.

—A Georgia man named Thomas Henry is about attempting the feat of exploring an unknown cave half way down the side of a precipice on Stone Mountain. To do this he will have to be lowered from the top by a rope 2100 feet long.

—There is said to be a young girl in Clinton, Canada, whose eyesight is as good as anybody's by day, but when night sets in she becomes blind and has to be led around. She is in good health, and the cause of this singular phenomenon is a mystery.

—An exchange observes that a man who had sunk so low as to hold a seat in the New York Assembly a few years ago, by turning over a new leaf and devoting himself to honest industry, has risen to the high position of captain of a base ball nine in Kansas. There is hope for the most degraded.

—The romantic story of the elopement of a beautiful young nun of St. Franciscus Hospital, Pittsburg, Penn., with a young doctor of the institution, is qualified by the fact that the young woman had not taken the vows at all, but was only a probationer. Under the provocation of the handsome doctor she simply elected that wedded life was preferable to conventual chastity.

MAGIC

CONDITION PILLS!

The Wonderful Remedy for Liver Complaint, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Headache, Kidney Complaint, Nervousness, Scrofula, Piles, and all diseases arising from a bad state of the Blood!

No medicine ever offered to the public has given such universal satisfaction as Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. Their praises are on every tongue where their merits are known. They strike at once at the seat of disease and show their healing power almost immediately. Thousands of voluntary testimonials of their merits have been received by the agent, from those who have been cured by them, of which the following are samples:

Dyspepsia Four Years, Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels Three Years, Confined to my Room Two Years, Pain so I Could Not Sleep Without Morphine. One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills Made Me Eat Well, Sleep Well and free from Pain, after being given up by Physicians.

WEST LEBANON, ME., Feb. 22, 1

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I have been sick for 2½ years with Dyspepsia, and for the past three years Constipation and Inflammation of the Bowels, have suffered all the pain I could endure and live, have been confined to my room for two years, and could not sleep nights without the use of morphine. I have been given up by physicians as past cure. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. I sleep well, I eat well and have no pain. They are all they are recommended to be. Please send me three packages, as two of my neighbors wish to try them. I remain, &c.

Your truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Another Letter from May, John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 22, 1876

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have faith I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir:—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and that they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; to send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago I advised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, out I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years. No Rheumatism, no pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a fair trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them, and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story. I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been confined to my room most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. E. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills. MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS are put up only by the AMERICAN MEDICINE CO. Manchester, N. H., THOMAS W. LANE, Agent.

WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT IT?

Is there no way in which we can protect our cemeteries from the ravages of thoughtless and heartless boys and men? It would seem that these places, if no others, might be kept inviolate: as if the flowers which were planted, and the birds which sing and nest among our dead, might be left undisturbed by the hand of theft and of cruelty. But what is the truth? One scarcely dares to arrange a flowering vase, or a tasteful plot of shrubs and vines, the flowers and roots are so continually stolen. Young men have been seen actually shooting the little birds "which sing among the branches;" and if a too confiding robin or thrush dares to build its nest within the reach of human cruelty, it is ruthlessly torn down and carried away with its eggs or helpless young.

A robin built this spring in my lot: in a spruce tree, too low, alas! to prove a secure resting place. I have watched it from week to week with almost painful anxiety, knowing how little honor or mercy there was to be found among men. Sunday before last four little ones were in the nest; last Sunday all was gone—birds, and young and nest. Do you think I enjoyed my walk, that calm Summer evening, in a place where of all others we ought to be free from hard or bitter thoughts?

It is a crying shame that no place and no thing is safe; that civilized people can have no rights which these savages are bound to respect. But what can be done? I would gladly give a considerable sum to have my little birds safe back again, or, since that cannot be, to protect those yet unmolested. But what will money do? A reward has already been offered for the conviction of the bird murderers seen in the same place recently. And what will law do? Our bird law, if enforced, would protect all birds, old and young, in field or forest or garden. The law against trespass would of itself protect our cemeteries; but these laws seem powerless. What can we do?

M. A. F.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, June 11th.

Michael Ledden, a young fellow of about twenty, and having much the appearance of a vagrant, was bound over in the sum of $600 to appear at the October term of the Supreme Court to answer to a charge of attempting to steal goods from a freight car on the Eastern railroad. In default of bail, Ledden went to jail.

A VALUABLE FOG-SIGNAL.

A good illustration of the value of the bell on Whale's-back as a guide for vessels entering—or trying to enter—this port in a fog was afforded on Saturday. The bell was heard tinkling all the afternoon by Mr. Pearson, at his place on Broad street,—several miles away, but on land, and nearly dead to leeward of the light-house; but it could not be heard at sea or to windward far enough to guide in a vessel bound into the port, though there was but a moderate breeze blowing at the time, and no sea running to speak of; and a valuable vessel owed her salvation from total wreck within a few miles of the light-house solely to the fact that she carries a centre-board, for had she been a keel vessel her first intimation of danger would have come from a smash on the rocks. The last Congress appropriated a sum of money to put a Daboll fog-trumpet on Whale's-back; and though we consider the sum referred to utterly insufficient for the purpose, (for the new tower has not room for a steam fog-horn, and the old tower was condemned as unsafe before the new one was built, and has not become any more safe since,) yet we give Hon. Frank Jones credit for bringing the matter before Congress, for the fact that any appropriation at all was made was an acknowedgement that a better signal than we now have is a necessity. We hope Mr. Jones will push the matter when Congress meets again, so that before another Winter sets in we may have a signal that can be heard further than a dab of mud thrown against a brick wall; and if the light-house engineers decide that such a signal cannot be placed on Whale's-back until the old tower is rebuilt, then let it in the meantime be put on the extremity of Odiorne's Point,—which would not be a bad place for it permanently, for a large proportion of the vessels making the harbor come in to the westward of the Shoals, and would pick up the sound of an effective signal on Odiorne's Point in ample time to steer clear of danger. Let Congressman Jones urge this matter—as we feel assured he will gladly do—and if the parties most in interest, the shippers and ship-masters and fishermen, will also work for it, before the snow flies again there will be some kind of a decent fog-signal somewhere at the harbor's mouth.

JOTTINGS.

The employes of the Eldredge Brewing Company have formed a rifle club for the purpose of practice in target shooting. To give zest to the sport they have procured an elegant gold badge, to be given to the champion shot. The Creedmoor target, six feet by four, will be used, and the best score at two hundred and three hundred yards (five shots at each distance) will decide who will carry off the honors—and the badge. As there are a number of good shots in the club the contest will no doubt be very interesting. The badge was made by Messrs. C. E. & J. E. Dixon, and its unique and chaste design and superior workmanship reflect credit on their establishment.

If you need anything in the harness-maker's line, call on Tilton, at No. 18 Congress street. He has a full line of all goods kept in a first-class harness-store, and makes and mends in the best manner, using only the best materials.

We clipped the following extracts from a recent issue of the Times. They read well together, and we heartily endorse all the assertions made: "Whatever can be purchased of our own citizens, of as good quality and at as low prices as can be bought elsewhere, should be purchased at home. Many of our people have found to their cost that they cannot do as well by going abroad to buy. As a rule,—and the rule has very few exceptions,—a dollar expended in Portsmouth brings as good a return as anywhere else. Our citizens should remember that in giving a liberal support to any honorable business man here, they are helping the material prosperity of the city." "Read the advertisements and trade with those who advertise. You will save money by so doing."

The stock of groceries in the store on Market street recently occupied by Samuel Rowe, will be sold at Sheriff's sale to-day, on the premises, at 10 o'clock A. M. Also at same time and place, the store fixtures, and a wagon, sleigh, pung and harness. See advertisement.

Mr. D. J. Lynch, having purchased the stock in trade and good-will in business of the late Lafayette Laighton, will continue the business at the old stand, No. 44 Market street. See his advertisement in another column.

The One Hundredth anniversary of the Stars and Stripes will be celebrated Thursday evening, by a Grand Promenade Concert at Mechanics' Hall. Music by Harlow's Orchestra. Tickets 50 cents; ladies free.

The Summer arrangement of trains on the Eastern railroad went into effect on Monday.

The celebration at Langdon Park on Thursday will be extremely interesting. Many prominent men will be present, and a highly interesting programme has been arranged.

The Portsmouth Weekly says: "The new organist at the Unitarian church in this city, Miss Lizzie Davis, is a pupil of Mr. A. Pearson, who has instructed most of the young organists in the city for several years. Miss Davis was recommended by Miss Miller, who declined holding the position at any reduction of salary. Miss Lizzie Ham, one of the most charming singers we have ever had in the city, has accepted the position of soprano in the quartet at this church, which otherwise remains the same as last year." The Weekly might have added that the retiring organist, Miss Miller, is included in the list of Mr. Pearson's pupils.

The Antiques and Horribles will be out on the coming 4th of July, and we learn that some persons who believe that good and effective hits at local shortcomings can be made through this medium, have nearly completed their arrangements for administering the said hits, which are expected to make the body politic hold its nose.

Mr. Benjamin Carr, a well known photographer and prominent citizen of Concord, who while reaching out of a third-story window in that city on Saturday, lost his balance and fell to the ground, receiving injuries from which he died, was formerly a resident of this city, and married a daughter of the late Mr. Levi Moses. Mr. Carr's wife survives him, and he leaves one daughter.

Schooner Light of Home, Capt. L. F. Doane, with one hundred and eighty barrels of mackerel, arrived at Doane's wharf Sunday afternoon, the first fare of mackerel landed here this season; the Light of Home sailed for the Block Island fishing ground, Monday afternoon. Schooner Glide, Capt. Thomas Jamieson, arrived at Doane's wharf Sunday evening with thirty thousand pounds of split cod, the result of twelve days' fishing; the Glide goes to Gloucester, Mass., to wash out. Schooner Daniel Marcy, with two hundred and thirty barrels of mackerel, the Henry M. Clark, with two hundred and fifty barrels, and the Mayor Jones, with one hundred and twenty-five barrels, are expected to arrive at Doane's wharf this week.

A company of forty-five boys has been organized at the High School, to take part in the celebration of Thursday. Several of the pupils are connected with other companies, and some were unwilling to march, otherwise the company would have been larger. The officers chosen are: Captain, J. H. Emery; First Lieut., S. W. Foss; Second Lieut., A. R. Locke; Orderly Sergeant, D. S. Broderick. It is expected that all, or nearly all, the school will be present at the Maypole, and sing "The Red, White and Blue," under the lead of Prof. S. W. Cole, who is now giving the school instruction in music preparatory to exhibition.

—An ingenious girl, who has never "a feller" in the world, goads the other girls in her neighborhood to madness by lighting up the parlor brilliantly and then setting her father's hat where its shadow will be boldly marked against the curtain.

—The exhumation of the obelisk "Cleopatra's needle" near Alexandria, Egypt, for London has been completed. Eighteen inches of the apex is gone, and the corners are somewhat damaged, otherwise it is in a fair condition.

—Here's another warning. A man refused to stay at home after an early supper and help his wife whitewash the back yard fence, and his black hair turned white in less than a minute.

—The St. Louis Globe makes honorable mention of an oaken chest in that city which, it asserts, is 800 years old. The boards are an inch and a half in thickness, and are held together by wooden pegs.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, diuretic and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

T. E. MOSELEY & CO., 469 Washington street, make a specialty of boys' and misses' boots, shoes and gaiters for dress and school wear, which they offer at moderate prices.

Such a combined effort upon upon the part of all its attaches is always made to please its guests, that the visitor to the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is pretty sure to return.

COCOA SHELLS, prepared by Walter Baker & Co. furnish an excellent substitute for tea and coffee, at half their cost, and are palatable, nutritious and healthful. All grocers sell Baker's Chocolates, which are the best in the market.

Adamson's Botanic Balsam will not make new lungs, but will prevent the disease from spreading throughout the whole substance of the lungs, thereby facilitating recovery. Price 35 cts. Samples free.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen, or Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them—may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstore of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

—A Harlem man has a goat which he has named "Oleomargarine," because it is a very poor kind of butter.

—"J. R. Grosse, Grocer, Groceries," is the positive, comparative, and superlative style of a Brighton store-keeper's sign.

—In six of the spaces under the arches of the theatre at Naples, Italy, opening to the street, are arranged little pine tables, at each of which sits an elderly and intelligent looking man, with an inkstand and stationery before him, and usually with a customer seated alongside and pouring a voluable story into his attentive ear. These are the public letter writers, who will indite for you an epistle of any kind, from a love letter or a proposal of marriage up to a ferocious duo or a cartel of defiance.

—A Parisian and his wife quarrelled. "I shall drown myself," she finally cried out, exasperated. "Go, if I am all that deters you," he answered. Still, he followed her, and when she threw herself into the Seine, plunged in and brought her to land. As he was climbing up the bank, however, he slipped back into the river, and being exhausted by his previous exertion, was unable to save himself. His wife seeing his situation, plunged in after him, but as she could not swim, that was of no avail, and both must have been drowned had it not been for the timely arrival of some policemen, who pulled them out. The pair went home like two turtle-doves.

—The fishermen of Norway carry in their fishing boats a water telescope or tube three or four feet in length. They immerse one end in the water, and then, looking intently through the glass, they are enabled to perceive objects ten or fifteen fathoms deep, as distinctly as if they were within a few feet of the surface. Hence, when they discover plenty of fish they surround them with their large draught nets, and often catch them by hundreds at a single haul, which, were it not for these telescopes, would often prove precarious and unprofitable fishing. This instrument is not only used by the fishermen, but it is also found in the navy and coasting vessels.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."

HE WILL COME;

BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic as a Divine promise. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. PULMOCINE.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

or the terrible diseases engendered by the lung trying climate of New England]

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate each. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy elief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordail.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. Its offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 38, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water or houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their own ers or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, bones, or any offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any butcher of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance or any other nuisance shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing adversaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue, or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds or into any creek, or cove, or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his hand into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

Dr. A. J. Flagg's

COUGH & LUNG SYRUP.

A Safe and Sure Remedy.

The Cough and Lung Syrup

Is the remedy that during the past fifteen years has won for DR. FLAGG an extended reputation as a SPECIALIST for THROAT and LUNG Diseases. After so many years trial it can be truthfully said that it has NEVER FAILED, even in the WORST CASES. It is purely Vegetable, and its effect upon the system is at once Soothing and Tonic.

It Will Cure a Common Cold

In a few hours, not by drying it up, but by removing it from the system. TRY IT.

It will CURE a Chronic Cough, by soothing the irritated parts, and strengthening the system.

IT WILL CURE CONSUMPTION!

Even after all other remedies have failed. In the earlier stages of this disease it will effect a speedy and certain cure; and in many cases of advanced Consumption its effect has seemed almost miraculous, restoring to full strength and perfect health those whom physicians had given up as incurable. TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE CATARRH

More effectual by than any other remedy, by simply removing the cause. TRY IT.

It will Cure Bronchitis, by allaying all irritation of the Throat. TRY IT.

It will Cure Asthma, affording immediate relief and a perfect cure. TRY IT.

It Will Cure Ulcerated Sore Throat.

TRY IT.

IT WILL CURE Loss of Voice, Night Sweats, Hectic Fever, AND ALL Symptoms of Consumption. TRY IT.

For every affection of the Throat and Lungs it only needs a trial to convince the most skeptical of its wonderful curative properties.

Remember that it

CURES COLDS,
CURES COUGHS,
CURES CATARRH
CURES CONSUMPTION.

DR. WM. M. LADD, a eading Druggist of Claremont, certifies as follows:

For many years I have known Dr. A. J. Flagg as a successful practicing physician, and can assure the public that his representations relative to the Cough and Lung Syrup can be strictly relied upon. It has been used in his extended practice with marvelous success, and I know it to be all that he claims for it.
WM. M. LADD, M. D.

CLAREMONT, N. H., September, 1875.

DR. FLAGG My DEAR SIR: Your Cough and Lung Syrup has proved a great benefit to me, giving relief from severe Coughs and Soreness of the Lungs, when all other remedies and physicians had failed. I have never taken a medicine more pleasant to the taste or more satisfactory in its results.

Tsernagora, or Montenegro.

The following article, which we take from an exchange, is of peculiar interest just now, when the "conflict of ages" between the Turks and Montenegrins is raging so fiercely. It gives the most graphic description of the country and people of Montenegro we have ever seen, and fully explains the trouble the Turks have had in "revictualling Niesics," which has been a standing job for them for over a year, and is not yet finished:

The backbone of European Turkey is a mountain formation shaped like the letter T. The upright line is the range between Albania and Roumelia. The horizontal line represents the Balkans. On the west, the line of the Balkans intersects the Alpine chain, running down the eastern coast of the Adriatic. The wild and broken region where the Alps and the Balkans meet, is known as the Black Mountain country—Montenegro. The principal peaks, Mount Dormitor on the northeast and Kutsh Kow on the southeast, are 8500 and 9300 feet above the sea level. The hills are wooded with dark forests of fir, oak and poplar.

For five hundred years, the people of this mountain region have held at bay the tide of Turkish war, which in 1389 overwhelmed the great Servian kingdom. Montenegro was then a part of Servia, and was governed by a prince of the royal blood. The language of the mountaineers is still a very pure Sclavonic dialect; their religion is still the religion of the Greek church. Their whole territory is 1880 square miles; Rhode Island contains 1300 miles. They number 130,000, with an army of 26,000 fighting men and a reserve of 14,000; Rhode Island has a population of 217,000.

Far up in the western part of the Black Hills is the capital, Cettigne, containing twenty or thirty well built houses, besides a convent and the Prince's palace. From this citadel, the river Zeta flows down to Lake Scutari, south of the mountains. To Cettigne, in 1484, Ivan Tchernoievitch removed the seat of government. Scutari, on the lake, had been taken by the Turks; the Herzegovinians on the north had submitted; Ivan withdrew to the mountains, and wonderful to relate, took with him a printing press, only 28 years after the appearance of the first printed book!

The mountaineers have had but little time for literature. It was a part of their fundamental law, that no son of Tsernagoras,—as they call the Black Mountain in their own tongue,—should quit the field without the order of his chief; that a runaway should be forever disgraced, and banished from his people: that he should be dressed in woman's clothes, and presented with a distaff; and that the women, striking him with their distaffs, should hunt the coward away from the sanctuary of freedom. The struggle with the Turks lasted, with but little intermission, until 1714. In 1710, the Czar of Russia promised to the Prince of Montenegro an annual subsidy of 8000 ducats, which is still faithfully paid. The Turkish victory of 1714 was only temporary. As soon as the Turks withdrew, the Montenegrins refused to pay their taxes. In 1722, 1737 and 1732, Turkish armies were bitterly discomfitted, and so it has continued to this day. Last year, in July, 4000 of the Turks commanded by Mukhtar Pasha were slain with a loss of only 70 Montenegrins; in August, 5,000 Montenegrins put to flight 20,000 Turks; in September five Montenegrin battalions defeated Dervisch Pasha and slew 3000 of his men; in October, Dervisch Pasha was again driven down into the plains, with a loss of 2,000 men.

The Turks last year brought 130,000 men against the Black Mountain—an army equal to the whole population. The result of the campaign was a Turkish loss of 26,000, and a Montenegrin loss of 1,000. The mountaineers, of course, have the advantage of defending their passes against an attacking enemy. The armistice put an end, for the time being, to this series of Turkish disasters. Since the renewal of hostilities, there has been more actual fighting among the Montenegrin hills than on the Danube.

The Turkish effort now is to revictual the fort of Niesics. The Black Mountain is shaped like a wasp. In the middle, deep valleys penetrate the hills on each side, and in these valleys the Turks have established two strong fortresses—Niesics on the north, and Spuz on the south. These two forts are less than twenty miles apart, but the intervening region is nearly inaccessible. Spuz is easily reached by the Turks from Scutari and Podgoritza. Niesics can only be approached through the Duga pass. The Turks are not now fighting for conquest, but to maintain the two forts.

The road from Gatschko to Niesics is the route which Suleiman Pasha has taken. The pass begins at Fort Kristacs, and from that point, the Turks must advance in single file along two tortuous paths, exposed at every step to the fatal fire of the Montenegrins from behind the rocky parapets of overhanging cliffs. The Turks last Monday lost 3000 men in trying to dislodge the Montenegrins from the heights beyond Kristacs. The Montenegrin loss is reported at 600. The Montenegrins then withdrew from the heights, and on Wednesday suddenly attacked Spuz, but retired leaving 23 dead and 16 wounded.

The first code of written laws was promulgated in Montenegro by Prince Peter, the Saint, in 1796. His successor, Radatomovo, set his face sternly against the lawless practices which had grown up in twelve generations of camp life. Prince Danilo completed the work of establishing internal order. The reigning Prince, Nikitka, is now thirty-four years old. He has two fixed purposes—to continue the work of civilizing his people, and to liberate the Servian lands still in servitude. It is to his influence and example that the risings in the Herzegovina, in Bosnia and in Servia, are partly due, though the controlling agency, of course, has been the encouragement of the Czar. If the tame submission of the Serfs and Sclaves generally to the Turk has made their names synonymous for serfs and slaves everywhere, the shining courage and resolution of their kinsmen, the men of Montenegro, ought to go far to wipe out the reproach.

The following detailed account of the fighting in the Duga pass last week, is from the correspondent of an English paper:

"After making his dispositions with great care, and seizing several important positions in front of Krygstaz and at the immediate entrance of the Duga Pass, Suleiman Pacha advanced with several battalions and mountain artillery to force a defile held by the Montenegrins. There being only one available road, and that leading directly through the Duga Pass, the Turks sought by dint of sheer fighting to seize the bends of the road so as to place their guns in a position to support the advance of the head of the column. The ground was favorable for this plan of operations. For the first two days the Montenegrins slowly retired before the well deployed Turkish line until the narrowing of the ground and the increasing difficulties of the road forced the Turks to reduce their front. Then the concentrated fire of the Montenegrins, delivered from every rock and gully of the rugged mountain slopes, began to tell with frightful effect on the Turks. Amid a perfect hail storm of bullets the Turkish infantry struggled onward, encumbering the road with dead and wounded at every step. The guns posted before Golia shelled the defile in advance, but with little effect, as the Montenegrins were well covered and suffered only when the Turks desperately charged on them amid the rocks and brushwood. The fighting on the third day was almost hand to hand, the combatants firing in each other's faces at a few yards distance; but although the Turks gained ground slowly it was at a terrible loss in men. Their superior numbers enabled them to push up supports to take the place of the slain, and it seemed as if the head of the Turkish column of attack was melting away as before a furnace. Notwithstanding the stubborn bravery of Suleiman Pacha's troops the fourth day's fighting found them no nearer the key of the pass, and they had already lost nearly 3000 men. Still they endeavored to maintain possession of the ground they had gained at such a fearful cost; that effort was hopeless. The hardy Montenegrins repulsed every attempt to advance, and it became now only a question of covering the retreat of the exhausted column. This was commenced by a furious onslaught on the Montenegrins by the troops furthest in advance, but which was quickly repulsed by a murderous fire. The retreat now became general, and the victorious mountaineers speedily followed the retreating Turks, killing immense numbers and reoccupying their former positions. In this prolonged and bloody combat, lasting over five days, the Turks lost over 4000 men and a quantity of arms left on the field. The victorious Montenegrins lost 700 men. This disproportion in casualties is due wholly to the natural strength of the position, and to the necessary exposure of the Turks during the attack and retreat. The failure of the Turks to force the Duga Pass is believed to insure the capitulation of Nicsics within a short time, but it is likely that Suleiman Pacha may again attempt to relieve the town."

Another Wife Murder.

Charles H. Payson, living on a farm three miles from Tilton, attacked his wife Monday afternoon, going behind her while washing, and striking her three blows with an axe, cutting two gashes over four inches long in her head, exposing the brain, and one in the shoulder. The wounds are probably fatal. Payson was arrested by his wife's two sons, who held him till the officers came. He was intoxicated. The woman was conscious when the physician arrived, told how the deed was done, and made her will.

News and Notes.

Col. D. G. Potts, a democrat, has been appointed Postmaster of Petersburg, Va. There were five republican applicants for the office.

Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co. have now in preparation about one hundred new books for the holidays, some quite small, some quite large, and all very fully illustrated.

Hon. John A. Kasson of Iowa has accepted the Austrian ministry, and James Russell Lowell the ministry to Spain.

Ex-Mayor H. A. Blood of Fitchburg, Mass., formerly General Manager of the Boston, Clinton & Fitchburg Railroad, and prominently connected with other roads, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $1,528,310.48; nominal assets, $1,310,600.

The comparatively few deaths among us from the bites of animals or reptiles, give emphasis to the returns just received in England from India of the number of persons killed in that country during the year 1875 by wild beasts and snakes. It appears that no fewer than 21,391 persons and 48,254 head of cattle perished from these causes, snakes being responsible for the deaths of 17,070 human beings, most of them being natives who go about bare-footed. The withdrawal of the customary reward for the destruction of these reptiles by the Government, which was a fruitful source of fraud, is said to be the cause of this increased mortality, and the fact that the natives are not allowed the free use of firearms makes them and their cattle an easier prey to wild beasts.

The fishing schooner Edward H. Norton, of Wellfleet, Mass., was struck by lightning on the 7th inst., twenty miles from Noman's Land. The topmast was snapped asunder, and the fore and mainmasts were shattered and splintered beyond repair. The hull was not injured. One of the crew, Thomas Nickerson of Barnstable, Mass., was stunned and thrown to the deck by the shock, but has since recovered.

By a railroad collision near the Point of Rocks, Maryland, Tuesday, four men were killed and several others injured.

William Truedell, arrested on Saturday by a Vigalance Committee at Kirksville, Mo., confessed to being one of a gang of horse thieves extending through Illinois and Missouri, including many people believed to be respectable, one of whom, named Lowe, is a preacher who recently got up a revival, at the meetings of which his confederates could steal horses. Lowe has been arrested and is now in jail at Havana, Ill.

President Hayes will leave Boston for Providence at eight o'clock on the morning of June 28th, and next day will be the guest of Gov. Van Zandt at Newport.

For the first time the items of the Tammony Ring robberies in New York are made public, and the total is an appalling one when we consider that it represents an indebtedness incurred wholly by theft and robbery. Among the items are the following in round numbers: Advertising, $2,355,000; Broadway widening job, $8,682,000; street opening jobs, $1,500,000; concrete pavement, $607,000; wooden pavement, $2,000,000; New York Printing Company, $3,000,000; new court house, $8,000,000; market frauds, $500,000; board of education, $800,000; park commission, $8,000,000; total $29,944,000. Notwithstanding the infamous crime involved in this gigantic robbery, it is being followed by another no less infamous. The New York democratic authorities are compromising with all the chief robbers. Arrangements have already been made to settle with Tweed, Connolly and Sweeney, and similar arrangements are to be made with Keyser, Fields and Genet. Such action will do more to sap the foundations of society than the whole career of the Ring thieves.

Sunday afternoon a young man named Blow, accompanied by two young ladies, cousins of the same name, and their little five-year-old brother, were walking in a field near Tuffield Blow's house, east of Bennington, Vermont, the young man having an old shot-gun, which was capped but supposed to be unloaded. To frighten the girls he snapped the gun at them, when, going off, it hit one in the right breast and the other in the back. Seventy shot holes were counted in one girl, and possibly her wounds will prove fatal; the other girl was slightly wounded. The fracas ended by the little brother chasing the offender half a mile, armed with a hatchet.

Jane Weather Sixty Years Ago.

The following is a copy of a diary kept by Mrs. Peter Knapp, who lived at the one in the southern part of New Hampshire. The original manuscript is in the possession of Mr. A. B. Knapp, No. 108 Fifth avenue, New York city:

Wednesday, 5th of June, 1816. Cloudy and some rain in the forenoon and very warm in the afternoon; some thunder in the evening, with heat lightning.

Thursday, 6. Cool and blustering in the forenoon with snow flying; in the afternoon a severe snow-storm until evening; very cold night followed; froze the ground considerable; ice in tubs at the door three quarters of an inch thick, and some snow yet coming; looks like winter.

Friday, 7. The snow melts as it falls pretty much to-day, but continues to fall the greatest part of the day; toward evening snow comes very fast—looks like a stormy night ensuing.

Saturday, 8. Snow three inches deep in the morning and remained on the ground all the day; froze some last night, icicles hanging to the eaves of the house toward night eighteen inches long.

Sunday, 9. Some more moderate, the ground chiefly covered with snow this morning; afternoon the sun comes out and the snow gone by night; though it is a very cold wind, people go to meeting to-day on foot with great coats on; corn all killed, leaves on the trees turning black, etc.; vegetation has a gloomy appearance!!!

New Hampshire Items.

The Manchester base ball club on Monday defeated the Alleghanys, 5 to 2; and on the Saturday previous the Maple Leaf club of Canada were defeated by the Manchesters.

There is a movement at Peterboro to have a citizens' celebration there the coming Fourth, with three military companies, a good band and plenty of men willing to aid financially. N. H. Morrison of Baltimore is expected to deliver the oration.

Gen. A. F. Stevens will be the leader of the House majority and Bingham and Sinclair will hold the reins of the minority.

At a special meeting of the City Government of Manchester on Monday night a bill was introduced appropriating $100,000 to build a railroad to Peterboro, and $50,000 to extend the railroad to Henniker. The former, which would give Manchester an independent route to the West, passed the Council. Reaching the Aldermen, it was referred to a second reading. An attempt made by Alderman Clark to introduce a resolution in the interest of the Concord Railroad, which would defeat the project, was rejected. It was also voted to appropriate $20,000 for a soldiers' monument.

The boy Flanders who shot his father-in-law at Bow, a short time since, will be indicted for murder by the October Grand Jury.

The Manchester police made raids on the liquor saloons Monday evening.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association of Manchester was held in the Franklin street vestry Monday evening. Miss Alice Abbott, Treasurer, reported the receipts for the year as $554.11, expenses $832.57. Mrs. David Cross was elected President for the ensuing year.

Political.

It is necessary now to prove to the country that Mississippi justice is blind, and holds the scales with even hand whether democrats or republicans be the culprits. Unless this be done, without halting or hesitation, Mississippi will remain under a cloud for years to come, and will bear a reputation for violence and lawlessness foreign to the temper and nature of her people.—Charleston News and Courier (Dem.)

In October, 1876, Governor Stone of Mississippi thought the Governor was supreme, and that he was the man who executed all the laws and conserved the public peace, and he asserted that he was able to bring all perpetrators of wrongs to justice, and was resolved to do it. He was so assured of his absolutism that he took pains to write a letter to Attorney-General Taft, anent his speech at Cincinnati, denying his statements in regard to the affairs of Mississippi, and asserting that everybody was secure under the Governor's full power to protect everybody, and his determination to do it. Governor Stone now confesses that this was all bombast and false pretence, and that he has nothing to do with the administration of justice or the enforcement of law, and has no more authority than any other citizen to bring murderers to justice. Governor Stone now confesses that Governor Stone of that time was a very shallow pretender.—Cincinnati Gazette.

—When Puckler Muskau was in England, some forty years since, being one night at Almack's, he personally complimented Lady Jersey, who was pardonably vain of the clearness of her complexion, on "her beautiful leather." The fair Sarah stared. "Pardon," resumed Puckler Muskau, "I did mean your ladyship's beautiful hide."

Another Letter from May. John W. Lord, one month later Wonderful Cures by Dr. Quain's Pills Effected on Him in Thirteen Days. First time Free from Pain for Three Years.

WEST LEBANON, ME., March 29, 1875

MR. THOMAS W. LANE:—I commenced taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS February 9th, and wrote you February 22d of their wonderful effect. I have continued to improve ever since. My appetite is good, and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I am free from pain for the first time in three years. When I was taken sick four years ago, I weighed one hundred and eighty-six pounds; I now weigh one hundred and thirty, but, as I am gaining in strength, I have with I shall regain my flesh this summer, by the use of the Pills. I shal continue taking them for some time to come.

Yours truly, JOHN W. LORD.

Dr. Quain's Pills the Remedy for Soldiers' Aches and Pains.

WEST LEBANON, ME., June 1, 1875.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir:—I am now able to walk out every day, and am gaining in strength very fast, all of which is due to you as agent for the best Pills in the world. I have taken no other medicine, and my improvement has been steady since first taking DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done everything for me, and I will say to you, advertise them direct to the soldiers, for they will certainly cure them of aches and pains caused from exposure and hardship on the field. Please send me by return mail another package.

JOHN W. LORD.

Rheumatism for Twenty Years Cured by One Package of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills—"The Best Medicine in the World."

EAST ANDOVER, N. H., Dec. 10, 1875.

MR. LANE—Dear Sir,—As I know the value of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS and the good they have done me, I take pleasure in giving them praise; so I send you another testimonial. My father has been troubled with Rheumatism for twenty years or more, and has tried everything that could be thought of, but to no good. At times it would be so bad that he could not lift his hand to his head or do any work at all, especially in cold weather. A short time ago Indivised him to get some of these Pills. He believed nothing in them, but I gave him the last package I had of you, as I did not need them, and he has not been as free from the Rheumatic Complaint for years, as Rheumatism, or pain. What helped him? It was DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, the best medicine in the world. There is nothing like them. I know it, for I have tried them, and they are all, yes, more than they are recommended to be. Give them a trial and you will say so. I write this because I know the goodness of them and wish others to know the same. Some may think I am telling a big story, I am. But remember I am not giving them half the praise they ought to have.

Yours with respect, ED. F. PEVARE

Wonderful Effect of Four Doses of Dr. Quain's Condition Pills upon Neuralgia of Twelve Years' Duration—Testimony of Rev. J. S. Patton.

DAINGERFIELD, MORRIS CO., TEXAS, Nov. 15, '75.

MR. THOMAS W. LANE—Dear Sir,—I have been afflicted for near twelve years with Neuralgia in the face and head. I tried I do not know how many physicians, and could only get partly relieved. I also tried many patent medicines with the same result. I have been around the world, most all the time for eight or ten winters, and have been traveling and visiting medical springs, and I still suffered most intensely. The physicians pronounced my case the worst and most stubborn that they had had anything to do with. One told me I could never get well; they all advised me to go South and spend the winter, and thought that was the only chance for me, and I was trying to get ready to go to Florida, when through the kindness of Rev. H. M. Mathis, my attention was called to the advertisement of Dr. Quain's Magic Condition Pills. I immediately sent to you for a package. I have taken four doses and I am almost free from pain. The impression here seems to be that if your pills will cure me, they will cure anybody. I have five applications to send for the pills. Enclosed please find three dollars; send five packages to me and one to Mrs. Laura Sherrel, Sulphur Springs, Hopkins county, Texas.

Yours truly, J. S. PATTON.

Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache.

LACONIA, N. H., Jan. 29, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE—Sir:—I have been troubled with Bad Blood, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Dropsy and Headache. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS. They have done me more good than all the medicine I ever took; I have taken considerable medicine within the last five years. For the nerves I think there is nothing so good as those pills. I can recommend them to all who are similarly afflicted, they have done me so much good. I think they will recommend themselves wherever they go. I shall recommend those Pills to all who need them. Please send me two packages more, one for myself and one for a lady friend of mine. Many thanks to the inventor, agent and advertiser of those Pills.

MRS. P. L. ELLIOTT.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

ITS CENTENNIAL.

On the 14th of June 1777, Congress

Resolved, That the Flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.

Resolved, That Captain John Paul Jones be appointed to command the Ranger, ship of war.

Resolved, That William Whipple Esq., member of Congress, and of the marine committee; John Langdon Esq., Continental agent, and the said John Paul Jones, be authorized to appoint Lieutenants and other commissioned officers, and warrant officers, necessary for said ship.

The Ranger, a sloop-of-war of eighteen guns, six pounders, was built at Badger's Island in Portsmouth harbor, and launched in May 1777. Captain John Paul Jones sailed in command of her from Portsmouth, with a crew of 150 men; and this was undoubtedly the first ship that bore our National flag to Europe. The thirteen stars on this first flag were arranged in a circle, and this arrangement was continued until 1795, when the stars were ranged in lines.

This, then, is the Centennial that Portsmouth is to celebrate on Thursday, June 14th inst., and in which the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery Association respectfully invite all citizens and others interested to join, viz. the anniversary of the adoption of our National Flag; the anniversary of the commissioning of the officers of the first vessel that carried it abroad; and the anniversary, with sufficient nearness, of the launching and fitting out of the noted ship Ranger from this port—in all which important events the gallant John Paul Jones, our own patriot hero John Langdon, and the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity generally of that epoch took so important a part. What more fitting than that these stirring events and this interesting anniversary should receive public recognition here, on the very spot of their occurrence?

THE MAYPOLE.

The Trustees of Langdon Park, at the suggestion of Hon. C. L. Woodbury, having decided to set up a Maypole in the Park, with appropriate festivitives, on the 25d of May—that being generally accepted by the best authorities as the date of landing at Odierne's Point, of David Thomson and his party, who settled New Hampshire—a lofty pole or tree was on that day cut from the farm of Samuel Langdon, Esq., and by him drawn to and presented to the Langdon Park, and set up on the hill, by the Trustees, without public ceremony.

But on account of the near recurrence of the Flag anniversary, as above stated, and the preparations of the Portsmouth Veteran Artillery Association to celebrate the same in a befitting manner, at the Park, and for other reasons, the Board of Park Trustees preferred to defer the Maypole exercises, and to unite the two celebrations; and this, by the concurrence of the Artillery Association, has accordingly been done—and all citizens and others interested are invited to join in and assist the same.

THE ORDER OF EXERCISES,

On Thursday, June 14th,

For the double celebration, will be as follows:

At sunrise a flag of thirteen stars will be hoisted at the Park by Col. Marvin; and it is desired that all flags in the city may be raised.

The bells of the city will be rung, morning, noon and night.

The U. S. S. Enterprise, Comdr. Remey, lying at the Navy Yard, will be decorated with flags and streamers; and the flags at the yard hoisted.

At twelve o'clock, noon, a National salute of 21 guns will be fired from the Navy Yard, by order of Com. Guest, in honor of the first hoisting of the flag of the Old Thirteen, a century ago, almost on the very spot where the yard now stands.

About two o'clock P. M., the Veteran Artillery Association, Capt. G. W. Towle, with the Portsmouth Cornet Band, will form on Market Square, and march to the Park, the Portsmouth Light Battery, Capt. W. O. Sides, acting as escort, and probably other military companies joining, and the scholars of the Boys' High School.

The Governor and ex-Governors of the State, U. S. Government and Army and Navy officers, Mayor and other civil officers, speakers and distinguished guests on the occasion, will follow in carriages.

The Procession will move at half-past two o'clock, through Congress and Middle streets and Richards Avenue to the Park. Carriages will not be admitted to the Park.

At the Park, at half-past two o'clock, a Federal salute of thirteen guns will be fired, in honor of the "old flag" of one hundred years ago; to be followed by

Music by the Band.

Singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by choir, under direction of Mr. Henry L. Harlow, with Band accompaniment, in which all singers are invited to join.

Singing of "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," by the Girls' High School, under direction of Prof. Cole,—all joining in the chorus of "The Red, White and Blue."

Brief remarks by Hon. C. L. Woodbury, Governor Prescott, Col. A. H. Hoyt, and other distinguished visitors and citizens.

The ceremonies and amusements around the Maypole will follow, and will consist of Music by the Band.

Singing by the Choir, with Band accompaniment.

A Poem written for the occasion by Mr. Albert Laighton, and read by Rev. J. DeNormandie.

Brief Remarks by Messrs. Woodbury Albee, DeNormandie and others.

After which a Maypole Dance, by nineteen youthful couples, (representing in number the thirty-eight States,) under the direction of Mr. Samuel Lamprey, with Harlow's Quardrille Band.

To be followed by other Dancing on the green, at the pleasure of the public in attendance.

As in all the general exercises, old and young, but especially children, are invited to join.

The schools of the city will be closed in the afternoon. Many of the stores we understand will be closed from two o'clock to six, and all of them we hope will be.

About five o'clock the Artillery Association, with their escort, etc. will return by South, Pleasant and State streets to the Rockingham House.

At seven o'clock the Veterans, with invited guests, will dine at the Rockingham House.

POLICE COURT.

Tuesday, June 12th.

Henry Adams, charged with cruelty to a horse, in over-driving and cruelly beating the animal, was bound over in $100 to answer at the October term of the Supreme Court.

JOTTINGS.

The Boston Journal, in a recent article urging "reform" in the management of revenue collection in the customs districts of New England, published a table showing the cost to the government of the various districts, and gave as the cost of collecting the customs revenue in this district, $10,312.47. These figures were evidently gleaned from the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1875, only, whereas the expenditures for the year ending June 30th, 1876, are but $5,722.82. The entire table published at that time was evidently made on some basis prior to the sweeping reduction and reform made by Secretary Bristow.

Miss Morgan affords her pupils and their relatives a great pleasure in securing so eminent and eloquent a lecturer as Mr. James T. Fields to address her school. On Tuesday next, June 19th, at three o'clock P. M., he will give his celebrated lecture on Fiction, which is peculiarly adapted to the taste of his young audience, embracing as it does both instruction and entertainment. Indeed, it is one of the striking features of Miss Morgan's system of instruction that it combines at once pleasure and profit, instilling in her pupils an enthusiasm for their work which assumes more the character of an exhilarating intellectual entertainment, than of a task. *

A petition for presentation to the City Councils at their next meeting, for the appointment of some person to keep the street crossings in a passable condition, is in circulation, and has already received about one hundred and fifty signatures.

Eastern Railroad stock is going up. Several hundred shares changed hands on Tuesday, at $4.75 a share.

The Sheriff's sale of the stock of groceries at the store of Samuel Rowe will be continued this morning.

The body of a marine named McCarthy, who has been missing for eleven days, was found on Tuesday evening at Portsmouth bridge, near the toll-house, by Mr. Preble, a workman on the bridge.

Twenty-five years ago yesterday, (June 11, 1852,) Mr. Frank W. Miller had his sign put up for the Portsmouth CHRONICLE, Mr. Gardner J. Greenleaf of this city doing the hanging work for him. By a singular coincidence and in just a quarter of century thereafter, this same Mr. Greenleaf attended to the putting up of Mr. Miller's sign for his new Weekly.—Times, June 12th.

GREAT LONDON SHOW.

This immense establishment, which has the past week created such a furore in Boston, will perform here twice on Thursday, June 21. Of its magnitude and perfection there can be no shadow of a doubt, as the large attendance there and the unqualified endorsement of the entire press is ample proof. The Boston Herald of June 5th says:

"The Great London Circus, Dockrill's Arenic Aggregation & Sanger's English Menagerie of Trained Animals" is the somewhat pretentious title of the equestrian show which spread its acres of canvas yesterday on the vacant lot opposite the Providence depot, and will continue to exhibit till the end of the week. A visit to the performance last evening verified the statement of its managers, that it is the best appointed and best conducted circus that has visited Boston for years. It is often remarked that circuses are all alike, and that there is nothing which can be put into them that is new. This is not the fact with the London, for they have one original feature at least. That is an Irish clown in the form of John Patterson, who has been but a few weeks in the country. This man is very funny, as might be expected, his Irish dialect being natural and easy, and his jokes and stories told with a freshness somewhat at variance with the old hackneyed style of years past. The principal feature of the performance is the sensational riding of Miss Eliza Dockrill, who is without doubt the greatest female equestrian ever seen in Boston. She gave a bareback principal act with wonderful grace, agility and dash, and appeared subsequently in a four-horse act. She performs all the feats usually presented by male riders, as well as many more of her own arrangement and invention. Besides the daring act of Mme. Dockrill, there were many features of rare excellence, including the performance of Mlle. Victorine on the slack wire; the leaping of O'Brien, who turns a double somersault over the backs of five elephants; the wonderful trapeze performance of the Lawrence Sisters, the gymnast business of the Victorelli Brothers, and numerous other attractions. A remarkable performance was the pyramidal tableau of the five performing elephants. The den of performing royal Bengal tigers, was entered by their tamer, who induced the savage animals to perform many exciting acts. The menagerie comprises some thirty cages of fine looking animals of all the various species known to such exhibitions. The five great elephants are a whole show in themselves, and it is the wonder of all how they can be so brought under subjection and restraint.

—Journalists have frequently to decide how to put every man's advertisement in the same place at the same time; how to put two columns of matter in one column's space; how to display a solid nonpareil advertisement in great primer type, and not occupy more space; how to fill a paper with fresh sensation when nothing has happened; how to eulogize a dead man who was notoriously bad all his life; and how to make a grand reception out of a mush and milk party of six.

A Point on Which the Doctors Agree.

Physicians who have tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters concur in representing it to be an eminently safe stimulant, far preferable to the ordinary liquors of commerce, not only because it is infinitely pure. Its alcoholic basis is the finest old rye, and this is tempered and rendered medicinal by the curative ingredients of botanic origin which it holds in solution. It has often been imitated, but never rivalled, and is to day the leading tonic, stimulant and aperient of America. Malarial fevers are prevented and remedied by it, and it is a thoroughly reliable medicine in cases of dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, gout, nervousness, urinary and uterine affections. It improves the appetite, increases the bodily stamina, checks premature decay, and as a sustaining and comforting cordial for the aged and infirm is unequalled.

The Fresh Fragrance

of Sozodont, renders it the most agreeable article ever used as a tooth wash. It has none of the acrid properties of the astringent tooth powders, and instead of contracting the gums, it renders them firm and elastic.

Breakage is immaterial if you have Spalding's Glue at hand.

Such a combined effort upon upon the part of all its attaches is always made to please its guests, that the visitor to the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., is pretty sure to return.

COCOA SHELLS, prepared by Walter Baker & Co. furnish an excellent substitute for tea and coffee, at half their cost, and are palatable, nutritious and healthful. All grocers sell Baker's Chocolates, which are the best in the market.

Adamson's Botanic Balsam will not make new lungs, but will prevent the disease from spreading throughout the whole substance of the lungs, thereby facilitating recovery. Price 35 cts. Samples free.

WORTHY OF TRIAL.—Persons afflicted with any of the well known diseases, such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, Asthma, etc., are earnestly recommended to try Dr. A. J. Flagg's Cough and Lung Syrup. Is guaranteed to relieve and cure if taken in season. For sale by all Druggists.

THE Russian Court invited Dr. Ayer and his family to the Archduke's wedding in the Royal Palace. This distinction was awarded him not only because he was an American, but also because his name as a physician had become favorably known in Russia on its passage round the world.—Pueblo Col. People.

LANGDON PARK

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

THE citizens of Portsmouth are respectfully informed that any person can obtain permission to set out one or more Trees in the Park, on application either to a member of the Board, or to Mr. GEORGE E. SMART, Keeper, at No. 2 Mt. Vernon St.

Or any citizen of Son of Portsmouth resident elsewhere, may have a Tree set in his name, of such variety as he may indicate, by sending $5, or any larger sum he may feel disposed, to the Treasurer or any member of the Board—as has already been done by many, and their names and trees placed upon the roll.

☞ Trees which are dead may be replaced by others in the same positions, by the same parties who planted the first.

The funds which were placed in the hands of Trustees by citizens and others have been entirely expended in the improvements thus far made in the Park. They, therefore, would hereby inform all interested that they are ready to expend in further adornments and improvements of the grounds, such sums as may be donated for the purpose; and contributions of any amount are hereby solicited to be sent at any time to the Treasurer or either of the other Trustees.

Board of Trustees.

FRANK W. MILLER, Chairman.
HENRY M. CLARK, Treasurer.
T. SALTER TREDICK, Secretary.
ALFRED M. HOYT,
JOS. HILLER FOSTER,
MOSES H. GOODRICH,
JOHN H. BROUGHTON, Mayor, Ex. Of.

The PAMPHLET which was printed last year, containing a report of all the proceedings at the Dedication of the Park, the Addresses of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie, Hon. C. L. Woodbury and others, with a full list of the 600 Trees set, and the names of the persons or Associations who set or paid for them, may be had at 25 cents per copy, at the Bookstores of J. H. FOSTER, or at the Portsmouth Weekly Counting Room. Sent postpaid on receipt of price.

Daily Chronicle.

Probabilities for June.

The Providence Journal gives a long list of "probabilities" for the coming month; among them are the following:

Six Cossacks will cross the Danube; another Turkish monitor will sink with all on board, save one; Niesic will be revictualled twice, each time for six months; there will be an insurrection in Crete and Albania; the Turkish ministry will resign; England will be reported to be on the point of helping the Turks; peace will be announced by the London Daily Telegraph; Russia will issue a circular on its own disinterestedness, which nobody will believe; MacMahon, Thiers and Gambetta will publish a manifesto; the Pope will be reported to be dying; the London Change, the Paris Bourse and the Chicago grain market will have a panic; Minister Pierrepont will give thirty-seven entertainments; South America will have another revolution; there will be more raids on the Rio Grande; General Butler will write another letter; two or three insurance companies will suspend; Professor Watson will discover another asteroid; George Francis Train and Gail Hamilton will astonish themselves; three new parties will be started; the newspapers will publish editorial articles upon the weather and the clams; the college boys will make excessively solemn speeches upon nothing; the democrats will try to discover a policy; the two B.'s, Blaine and Butler, will be canonized by the radical saints; some postmasters will declaim earnestly on what might be done but for the civil service policy of Mr. Hayes; briefless lawyers will discuss the relative merits of Saratoga and the White Mountains as Meccas of rest; bronchial affections will increase in the ministerial profession, some very severe cases necessitating a European trip; lovers will "sigh like a furnace," and the world will jog on and introduce July with its noisy fusilade and sweltering heat.

—Several engagements have been broken off this spring already, because the couples would play croquet and she would insist that he hadn't passed through the last wicket and he'd get mad and say wicket words.

—"Mr. Blank appointed a foreign minister, eh?" remarked old Mr. C., as he glanced up from the paper he was reading. "Why, he's no minister! He's only a lawyer, and they do say he can swear like a pirate!" and he stopped to meditate upon the degeneracy of the pulpit.

"A Fascinating Work on an Entrancing Topic."

HE WILL COME;

BY STEPHEN H. TYNG, JR., D. D.

This work is not prophetical. It discusses the topic in a Divine manner. Its plan is to follow the narrative of a Christian's experience of the revealed facts in the next dispensation. There is not a line of controversy in the volume. Yet it is full of bold and original thought, apt illustration, and forcible writing, and it is a work which no one who is "watching and waiting" for the Lord can afford to miss. 16mo., 216 pp.; $1.25 in Cloth; $2.50 in Morocco. CITY HEALTH REGULATIONS.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 19, of the Revised Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation o health in our city to aid them in the execution of their duty:

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any putrescible or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit any pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal or fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

SEC. 16. The Health Officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or if at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said Health Officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such dwelling, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.
